MIDLAND NEWS

By Mrs. Lois Johann

PICTURED ABOVE is Virginia Seaman, Parkland Civil Defense Coordinator, discussing with Gordon Brown, 29th Dist. Representative, plans for a new Park Bill which Brown will introduce in the House, when re-elected representative from this district. Brown introduced a similar bill No. 492 in the '49 session, which was bogged down in political mire in the Rules Committee due to Spokane interests of Kaiser. If passed this new bill will enable Parkland to have a park of its own if desired by the people of the district. As Mrs. Seaman and Brown point out it is enabling legislature, not compulsory. Space limitations do not permit full details. Watch next week.

Boldly We Predict . . .

On September 12, the voters of the State of Washington will go to the polls to determine which candidates will represent the Democratic and Republican parties in the November general elections. Although the Parkland Times has not conducted a Gallup poll, it has been in close enough touch with the candidates and public sentiment so that with some degree of certainty it feels capable of picking most of the winners. It is our prediction that the following candidates will emerge as the winners on the night of September 12, 1950:

Democratic Winners:
United States Senate, Warren G. Magnuson
Representative to Congress, John M. Coffey
State Senator, 29th District, Barney Jackson
State Senator, 26th District, John Sherman
House of Representatives, 29th District, Gordon Brown, Z. A. Vane
House of Representatives, 27th District, George Kuppka, Katherine Malstrom
House of Representatives, 26th District, Willard Hedlund, Paul Wagley

County Commissioner, 1st District, This race is wide open with three out front: Spalt Wartenbe, Bob Gleason, Doug Morris County Commissioner, 3rd District, Paul Newman leading Prosecuting Attorney, E. Albert Morrison strong lead
County Auditor, Jack Sonntag
County Clerk, Robert Dykeman
County Treasurer, L. R. Johnson
County Assessor, Martin Easterday
County Sheriff, Oh brother! Looks like Lee Croft and Ollie Parnell are leading. Here is a case of many split votes, with some of the minors expecting to throw their votes at the last minute. Brown strong in rural areas.

County Coroner, Dr. Frank James, M.D., leading.
Republican Winners:
United States Senate, Walter Williams
Representative to Congress, Thor C. Tollefson
State Senator, 29th District, Donald W. Eastvold
State Senator 26th District, Russ Barlow
House of Representatives, 27th District, Neil J. Hoff, James K. Copeland
House of Representatives, 26th

Ray Wing, spectacular Midland outfielder, suffered an injury when hit on the head by a thrown ball while running the bases. Latest report from St. Joseph hospital was that after X-rays and 24 hours of observation he will be allowed to return home.

The Midland team now has two trophies to their credit, and next Sunday at 2 p.m. on the South Tacoma Boys club field, they will go against the Mineral club in the final step to determine the All-Division championship.

These boys are doing a fine job in bringing all this glory to Midland and it would be a small sign of appreciation on our part if we get out to this important game and cheer our team to victory.

C. S. C. SAYS POSTMASTERS NOT POLITICAL APPOINTEES

Harry B. Mitchell, chairman of the U. S. Civil Service Commission, has called upon the American public to recognize that postmasters are officers under the Civil Service and are entitled to all the rights and privileges of the law.

Mitchell's statement was issued as a part of a nation-wide campaign launched by the National Association of Postmasters to educate the public as to the true status of postmasters in the Civil Service System. Too many people, the Association announced, believe that postmasters are temporary political appointees and it is resulting in an incorrect attitude toward the Postal Service.

Morry Anderson, the lumber man, had his horse Vincedor claimed at Longacres several weeks ago, and he now has Maria Del Ora left to race. Maria's been running in Spokane.

And speaking of horses, we've a Whirlaway, the famous. Then there are Throwaway, Marchaway, Swingaway . . . and a SPANAWAY—honest!

A look at the Longacres chart showed Spanaway coming in seventh in a field of eight on the 52nd day of running in the sixth. But on Labor Day, Spanaway paid $9, $4.20 and $3.03 in the third. The owner: J. Bosequett.

Steele True Friend Of Aged and Needy

Prosecutor's Vigorous Actions Knocked Hundreds of Chiselers Off Relief Rolls

TACOMA, WASH.—One of the most remarkable results of Pat Steele's vigorous actions against persons fraudulently receiving welfare assistance has been the sudden disappearance of scores of names from the relief rolls. Examples of stiff penalties secured by Prosecutor Steele and fear of discovery have made it expedient for these chiselers to voluntarily withdraw from the rolls.

● PATRICK M. STEELE

Another effect traceable to the prosecutor's actions has been the submission of evidence of fraudulent relief claims by various citizens who felt they had a man in office who would take appropriate measures.

"These people who enter false claims for assistance," Steele said, "Are robbing the aged and the sick and the needy just as surely as if they were doing it with a gun. The deserving suffer because these leeches take the money appropriated for true welfare claims. It was even necessary to call a special session of the legislature to vote more funds."

George Brown, director of Pierce County welfare, credits Pat Steele with the finest cooperation ever accorded welfare agencies in the county. Steele's vigorous prosecutions of non-support cases have been particularly effective in reducing the drain on welfare funds.

Dozens of women and children who should have received support from errant husbands were forced onto the relief rolls because of the failure of former partners to fulfill financial obligations. In many cases the prosecutor achieved desired results merely by explaining to the husband and father that society provided protection, by law, for his dependents, and that these laws would be invoked unless support was provided. Most cases never had to go beyond the talking stage, according to Steele, but when action became necessary, he demonstrated that the laws regarding support had teeth in them.

"The reaction is sometimes surprising," Steele said. "A number of erring husbands have thanked me for making them conscious of their obligations. They settle down to work, support their families, and feel good about doing the right thing."

Learning to Make Friends . . . DON'T CRITICIZE CHILD'S CHOICES

By the Staff of the SCHOOL OF HOME ECONOMICS University of Washington

A child is learning to make friends from the day he is born. The tenderness with which he is handled, the loving care he gets, the admiration he senses, people's responses to him, all these build foundation for later friendships.

The feeling he has toward adults and older children in the family will determine his reactions to other adults and older children outside the family.

For admiration and self-confidence, he must look like others, be neat and clean, and dress in the style of the community. His language must be acceptable. Neither baby talk nor uncouth, strong language will make the grade with other people nor with his elders.

A child with interesting playthings or a pet attracts others to him. To make friends a special skill may help. Most friendships begin with admiration. If a child can roller skate well or bicycle or jump the rope or swim or play a mouth organ or accordion, he usually has a following. Then, while he teaches other children his skills, they often teach him theirs. These friendships mature and they educate each other.

To make friends a child must be on his own. If other children are invited to play on the sidewalk or perhaps in the yard, parents should not worry if they pick at each other, appropriate the other's playthings and openly fight. They are learning what goes on in society. Of course they must be protected from undue danger but not from all hurts.

Children must choose in a large measure, their own friends. If parents criticize their choices, say unpleasant things about a little playmate, the child either loses confidence in his own judgment or is torn between desire to please his mother and his liking for his friend. He may make friends away from home and parents may wonder why his friends are never invited to the home. The little friend you question may have the attributes you don't recognize that your child needs.

JACK SONNTAG Seeks Re-election

Jack Sonntag, member of a pioneer Tacoma family, licensed public accountant, former field auditor in Pierce county for the State Tax Commission and for the past two years Pierce County Auditor, today issued the following statement as he opened his campaign to succeed himself as Auditor:

"Two years ago when I assumed the duties of auditor, I found this county department of government operating in a chaotic manner. Annual reports by state examiners had been highly critical of the office, pointing out actual shortages and inefficiencies of the previous administration. To me it seemed imperative that we put in to immediate practice, procedures requested by state examiners to conform with state statutes.

"Acting at once, recommendations made by the state were followed. We also set up a rigid system of checks and balances in the auditor's office to make it the efficient instrument of government called for by law.

"It was my belief then, and still is, that the people of Pierce County were entitled to prompt and courteous service from honest and capable employees. To that end, carefully selected and highly trained personnel were employed and have worked together during the past two years to eliminate abuses and provide proper service.

"Results speak for themselves. Today, business men, school teachers and county employees are paid without delay and at a specified time. New voting convenience has been insured by splitting precincts and installing more voting machines. The vote count has been stepped up. Regarding this part of my administration the Tacoma News Tribune said editorially: 'Among other things, such as the biggest vote in any similar election, Tuesday finals were marked by another importance. The entire city vote, all 237 precincts, was in the courthouse and tabulated barely two hours after the polls closed. This proves two things. One is the value of rearranging the precincts and making them smaller. The other is the excellent arrangements which County Auditor Jack Sonntag had set up for handling the returns. The result was very, very smooth.'

"As you auditor I want you to know that credit for this improvement results from the loyal and intelligent service provided by a capable, competent staff. It is on the basis of their performance that I seek re-election. I firmly believe that it will pay Pierce county to keep an auditor in the auditor's office and to keep employees of proved integrity on the job."

Bob Wartenbe, Air Force reservist of Midland, will report to McChord Field for active duty Sept. 25. Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. Spalt Wartenbe, is office manager of Roman Meal Co. in Tacoma.

Knockin' on Doors

By Don Eastvold

(Editor's Note: Don Eastvold, Republican candidate for the State Senate in the 29th District, relates in this column some of the experiences he encounters as he knocks on doors and conducts his campaign from week to week.)

This being the last week that this column will appear in the Parkland Times before the primary elections, I want to take this opportunity of calling to the attention of the readers some of the important problems which will face the legislature when it convenes in January 1951.

The special session of the legislature called by Governor Langlie, graphically called to the attention of the citizens of the State of Washington, the financial crisis in which the state now finds itself.

The latest estimate of the Washington Taxpayers Association is that the general fund will be in debt somewhat more than fifty million dollars by March 1, 1951. It would appear time to stop and take a look at what we are doing to ourselves.

If a "floating" debt of that magnitude is incurred . . . and it seems inescapable at this time . . . it will be in addition to a debt of probably seventy-five million dollars in bonds issued to finance veterans' bonus payments. Further, the electorate will decide this fall on authorizing another eighty million dollars in bonds for capital construction of common schools, penal and charitable institutions and institutions of higher education. Thus the general fund deficit, bonus bonds and school and institutional bonds may total a state debt of more than two hundred million either incurred or authorized.

This represents a drastic shift during four prosperous post-war years from the unusually healthy fiscal position once occupied by this state. As late as 1947 the gross state debt of ten million six hundred thousand dollars . . . represented a per capita obligation of about four dollars and fifty cents. Today the debt is nearer fifty dollars per person and may approach one hundred dollars per capita in the near future. This is entirely exclusive of a quarter-trillion federal debt and unknown local (municipal, county and district) obligations.

The population of the State of Washington now has increased over forty per cent since 1940 but it's industrial development has increased but four per cent. One of the major reasons that our industrial development has not kept pace with our population growth is the shortage of available electrical power. Scores of new industries have been turned away from the Pacific Northwest in the past two years because of our power deficit. It has been estimated that this situation has meant to the city of Tacoma loss of between five and eight thousand job opportunities. It has been estimated that it has meant a loss of fifty thousand job opportunities on a state-wide basis. This will continue to be a problem on both the state and national level.

Our population growth has created a further problem in the field of education. Twice as many babies were born in Washington in 1948 as in 1940. That means twice as many children entering school in 1954. Every year now for several years at least the schools of Washington must house twenty to twenty-five thousand more pupils and that means seven hundred to eight hundred more class rooms, every year.

Our present welfare law now known as Initiative 172 must be changed either by initiative or by the state legislature to eliminate milking and abuses which dissipate tax moneys ear-marked for orphans, widows and senior citizens.

These are but some of the major problems which will face the legislature when it convenes in January of 1951 and which will vitally affect both the pocketbook and the welfare of every citizen in the State of Washington. Every citizen owes an obligation to his government to seriously consider the issues and intelligently cast his ballot.
