

It's not everyone's tree that a swarm of bees chooses for its home. Stella Jacobs, Allison and Rostedt Roads, has been so honored, but she feels that such mark of favor is lost on her. Better far that some really appreciative bee fancier come and get the swarm.

Thar She Blows

Having their boat suddenly lifted out of the water and then gently dropped back again was a bit nerve-wracking for Frank and Charles Peterson, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson of Midland. They saw a large porpoise loom up right after that and decided that was enough fishing and beat a hasty retreat shoreward. This incident took place off Fox Island where the boys were enjoying a fishing trip during the July Fourth weekend. Fish come big in our famous Puget Sound, folks.

Lady Leaves

What looked like a major tragedy in the Simi family occurred the morning of July 4th when Lady, their purebred Morgan sorrel, who was tied in the field across from their business on Mt. Highway and Garfield, the Blue Rustic, was found missing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Simi had bought the horse when she was tiny, feeding her from a bottle until she was weaned. They had bought it for their son Bobby who was only five himself. He is nine now, a proficient rider, and as fond of the horse as his mother and father.

Lady is one of the finest specimens of her breed. The cowboy singer, Jack Guthrie, rode her and was anxious to buy her but the Simis felt it was like selling one of the family.

As soon as the loss was discovered, Mrs. Simi called the State and County Patrols. Knowing how wise in such matters small boys are and how much they get around, she also offered $10 to the young man who would catch Lady. Though the Patrols worked hard on the search, her judgment was borne out and a young Parkland lad claimed the reward.

Dexter Washburn found the horse and caught her on the Mt. Highway a mile east of the Golden Slipper, and the Simi family is once more complete.

WATCHES BIKINI A-BOMB TEST

BILL WORDEN, WRITER, TELLS SUNSHINE CLUB ABOUT CLOUD EFFECTS

Eye-witness account by William Worden of the Bikini atom bomb test. "Operations Crossroads," was the high point of the evening for members of the Sunshine Community Club, at a potluck supper in the clubrooms off Sales Road, July 5th.

Worden, who does special assignments for the Saturday Evening Post, described the effect of the bomb burst, rosy cloud effects and the operation of the drone planes. One of the planes operated by remote control to test its operative ability in a radio-active atmosphere took off from the carrier on the wrong course, never reaching the bomb zone, and as far as any of the observers could tell, it's still going.

Members and guests present at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Otto Danker, Mr. and Mrs. John Kellson, Mr. and Mrs. Winthers, (Continued on Page Six)

MIDLAND CLUB SECURES SIGN

Safety Is Improved At Portland Avenue, East 98th Intersection

Through a letter written to Sheriff Lee Croft from the Midland Improvement Club, two painted stop signs were put up at the East 98th and Portland Avenue intersection by a Pierce county road crew.

Mrs. George Turner, club secretary, wrote the letter which asked for a four-way stop light at the intersection. Because that road is under county jurisdiction, the letter was referred from the sheriff's office to the Pierce county commissioners and that board decided to put up the signs.

Wallicks of Spanaway Announce Marriage Of Daughter to Harry D. Pennington

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Wallick of Ninth street, Spanaway, announce the marriage of their daughter Gladys to Harry D. Pennington, son of Mrs. Jesse Miller of Spanaway.

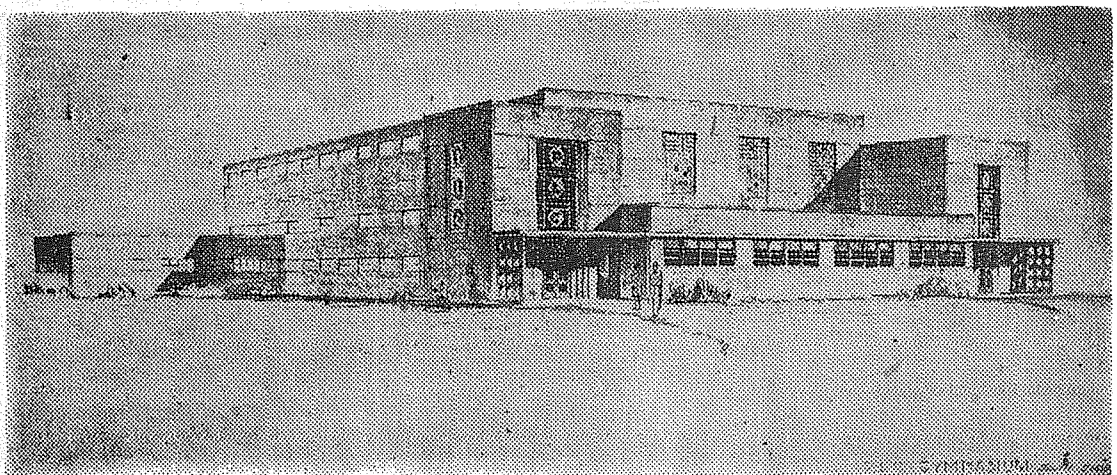

The wedding took place at the bride's home, beautifully decorated in a setting of snapdragons, calla lilies and apple blossoms, on May sixth at 7 o'clock.

The bride was given in marriage by her father in a single ring ceremony performed by Rev. Ramstad of Parkland. The bride was attired in a street length dress of delicate pink, trimmed in turquoise blue. A flowered hat and a corsage of orchids completed her costume.

Her only attendant, Miss Jane Coles, chose a street length dress of turquoise blue with a pink carnation corsage.

The groom's best man was Robert Van Dyke. The reception followed with the bridal cake cut by the bride. Mrs. Olga Csonka and Mrs. Mary Matesa served the refreshments. Mrs. Herbert Tallman supervised over the gifts. Miss Jean Coughlin, niece of the bride, passed the groom's cake. The bride is a graduate of Aquiana Academy. The groom is employed by the Northwest Door of Tacoma. They are at home to their friends on Fourteenth street, in Spanaway.

Reading

Reading is one of those pleasures that at the same time provides the individual a means to improvement—either financial as in the Horatio Alger, Jr. tradition, or personal because of the wisdom books contain.

As a people we believe in providing our citizens with every facility for happiness and success. The people of Pierce county expressed that belief when they voted for the tax which provided for the library system. Any unincorporated town may set up a library and since the beginning of the year, four branches have been established, one each in Longbranch, Gig Harbor, American Lake Gardens, and Parkland.

Though the Parkland branch has been open just a month it has had a circulation of 180 books, due in part to the lively enthusiasm of its custodian, Mrs. Ray Renwick. In order to establish the branch, Parkland had to supply quarters, (the Parkland school), shelving, light, water, heat, and janitor service. Trained librarians Mrs. Marion Cromwell and Miss Margaret Bixby of the main office select and supply the books, the filing equipment, records, and cards. The county also pays the branch custodian a small sum.

The library will grow as much as it is needed, hindered only by scarcity of books due to the paper shortage. All classifications of books will be stocked and when the library does not have a particular book, the custodian will send a request to the main office.

If the county library does not own the book, Mrs. Cromwell will borrow it from the Tacoma Public library with which the county has a contract. Individuals possessing county cards may go directly to the Tacoma library if they wish.

Shutins and people in remote areas may apply by mail for the books to the county headquarters. Postage is paid to the recipient who pays the postage in returning the books. To supply these people even more efficiently, the Pierce county library has ordered a bookmobile.

Thus, it is possible for everyone to enjoy good books. Towns in Pierce county who want to set up their own branch of the library should get in touch with Mrs. Cromwell, 502 South Eleventh St., in Tacoma.

Our Responsibility

Ever since the founding of this nation, there has arisen the controversy between advocates of state or private control and centralized Federal government control. As many people fervently say, never has our national government had so much power as we gave it during this war.

Regardless of political beliefs, it is easy to see that when the majority of people spontaneously act for the good of all, then a minimum of government control is necessary. With the cessation of price controls, businessmen have an important part of the responsibility to protect our purchasing power.

One of Parkland's merchants made a remark which, we believe, is an indication of his willingness to share this responsibility. He said there were several items whose prices he would reduce, now that there were no more ceilings. Perhaps rising costs will force him to increase his prices. Meanwhile he is doing all he can to protect the consumer. It is up to the consumer to live up to his responsibility—to keep prices down by buying reasonably.

Let's Read

Following are representative titles now in the library:

THE BLACK ROSE, by Thomas B. Costain (Doubleday and Company, Inc.) is an exciting historical novel. On a Crusade to the Holy Land, a young Englishman is captured, falls in love with an Eastern beauty, fights his way to the heart of the fabulous Mongol empire, and eventually returns to his quiet home in England. There he has to choose between an English heiress and his eastern sweetheart.

Another historical novel which is popular with boys is THE DARK FRIGATE, by Charles Boardman (Little, Brown and Company). It has been steadily popular since its appearance in 1924 when it won the John Newberry Medal, an award for the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children.

In the time when the Spanish were bringing home treasures from South and Central America, Philip Marsham, an English boy, goes to sea on the Rose Devon. He and his shipmates rescue the crew of a wrecked ship in mid-ocean who immediately capture the Devon's crew and sail her to the Caribbean to plunder Spanish towns and galleons.

Philip's adventures as a prisoner on his own ship, his eventual trial in England for piracy with his captors, and his life in the King's service are certainly never dull and qualify the book for the comment of a New York critic that THE DARK FRIGATE is the best pirate tale since TREASURE ISLAND.

WINNIE THE POOH, by A. A. Milne, is an excellent story for the very young, and like the classic, ALICE IN WONDERLAND, is a book many adults enjoy. Pooh is a small teddy bear with not very much brain but a head for a hum, or a poem. His adventures with his neighbor, Piglet, a small timid pig, are thoroughly delightful. Each character in the story, though part of the make-believe world of a little boy, has human weaknesses that amuse us and arouse our sympathy.

Parents, teachers, leaders of young people will find the book OUR TEEN AGE BOYS AND GIRLS a practical study of adjustment problems. (McGraw Hill Book Company, Inc.) Each chapter is a selected case history, vividly demonstrating problems and the technique of handling them. Suggestive chapter titles are "Josephine had a Tyrannical Father," "Mother's Fears Restrict Gertrude's Activities," "Walter Needs Money," and "Douglas Needs New Associations."

Authors Lester D. Crow, Ph. D., and Alice Crow, Ph. D., are experts in their field. Lester is assistant professor of education and coordinator of student teaching, Brooklyn College. Alice is dean and guidance chairman of the Girls High School, also in Brooklyn.

Little girls who want to learn to sew and to dress their dolls more adequately these days when clothes are so hard to get will find SEE AND SEW a useful, well illustrated book. Mariska Karosz, the author, has done a good job of showing in pictures how to make basic stitches.

Senate Appropriates Irrigation Funds

The United States Senate once again has come to the rescue of Washington state irrigation and power projects so important to the future prosperity for which the house of representatives had failed to appropriate sufficient funds.

The finals of the Washington state funds fight between the house and the senate resulted in a compromise with Columbia basin, Yakima irrigation and Bonneville power getting $43,973,350 of the $53,273,350 voted by the senate. The house originally had voted only $29,798,195.

Commenting on the importance of the funds voted, Senator Hugh Mitchell quoted a recent radio talk in which he said:

"Every year we in congress have this fight. Every year—so far—we have won it. Last year and again this year the house of representatives lost our Washington state fight and we had to win it in the senate.

"This year the house slashed drastically into the appropriations for the Pacific Northwest. With so much of our future dependent upon speedy construction of the great plants started by the federal government, an appropriation cut of roughly 14 million dollars would have been a mortal blow to our economy.

"Washington state's future depends upon the orderly development of new farms and factories. The one implements the other."

Quantity of Alien Property Still Held

Several thousand articles of alien property, confiscated by law enforcement authorities at the outbreak of the war are still unclaimed, according to John S. Denise, U. S. Marshal, and H. W. Algeo, Washington State Patrol Chief.

The items, belonging to Japanese, German and Italian aliens, include cameras, guns, rifles, shot guns, maps, field glasses and archery equipment, which may now be claimed by their owners.

Most of the confiscated property is located at the U. S. Marshal's office in the Federal Court House at Seattle, but approximately one hundred articles are being held at state patrol headquarters at the Legislative Building in Olympia. Owners are urged by the U. S. Marshal and Patrol Chief to call at one of the two locations and claim their property immediately.

The elephant and the donkey as symbols of political parties were both originated by the cartoonist Thomas Nast. The Democrat's donkey was first cartooned by Nast in 1870; the Republicans' elephant in 1874.

Red Cross Holds Annual Meeting
Forty-eighth in annual succession will be the meeting called Monday, July 15, 8 p.m., at 702 Broadway, by Pierce County Chapter, American Red Cross. All contributing to the 1946 fund-raising campaign are eligible to vote, according to Richard McCann, chairman. On the agenda are yearly reports, election of five board members and four officers for 1946-47.

At the first meeting, June 13, 1938, 175 men and women gathered in Tacoma to organize the first Red Cross auxiliary north of San Francisco. Officers were elected June 20 and on June 28 articles of incorporation were filed at Pierce County Court House.

Three wars have been fought since then and many disaster and civilian needs filled, in all of which the Spanaway neighborhood carried its full share. Spanaway was one of the first groups to affiliate with the Tacoma society.

HOW TO USE WEED KILLER
EXPERT TELLS METHOD OF APPLYING DANDELION EXTERMINATOR

How to use 2,4-D for control of dandelions in lawns is told here by Everette Kreizinger, extension agronomist at the State College of Washington.

"This information should not be considered as 'the final answer,'" said Kreizinger, "because there is still much to learn about this new insecticide. But these suggestions will serve as a guide."

The 2,4-D solution used on lawns should be "weak," or else it may injure the grass. It should contain about 1,000 parts of 2,4-D per 1,000,000 parts of water and can be made by mixing 13.4 ounces of 2,4-D parent acid in 100 gallons of water. It should be sprayed as a mist and should cover the lawn uniformly.

Use Caution
Extreme care should be taken to keep the spray from drifting onto other plants, particularly broad-leaved ornamentals such as roses. Even at low concentrations, 2,4-D is extremely toxic to many plants.

The insecticide is most effective if applied when the temperature is 65 degrees F. or higher, and at a time when the dandelions are actively growing.

The dandelions may be induced to grow rapidly by treating them with a light application of ammonium sulphate and then watering the lawn heavily. The 2,4-D should be applied two or three weeks after the fertilizer treatment.

The plants may not die until three to six weeks after the treatment. In the event the first treatment does not kill all of the dandelions, a second one will probably complete the job.

A knapsack sprayer is recommended for the treatment, but the pressure of the sprayer should be kept up and an effort made to distribute the spray uniformly. After using 2,4-D, the sprayer should be thoroughly cleaned before it is used for other sprays on other plants. It may be adequately cleaned with a strong soap or lye solution and three or four rinsings of clean, fresh water. An absolutely safe rule to follow would be to use another sprayer for the control of insects and diseases.

280 AT NAT'L 4-H CLUB CAMP

"KNOW YOUR GOV'T" THEME FEATURE AT WASHINGTON, D. C.

"Two hundred eighty club members and leaders from the United States, Puerto Rico, Canada, Peru, China and Hawaii attended National Club camp in Washington, D. C.," so said Charles T. Mee-nach, State 4-H Club agent, upon his return. He went on to say that the general theme of camp was "learning to live in a changing world." The central theme of the camp was "know your government."

In "Know Your Government" the dormitories were divided into departments which were named after the various departments of the federal government such as the department of state, department of interior, department of commerce, etc. This was a way of introducing the various departments and agencies to the camp delegates. Then in connection with the "Know Your Government" theme, all camp delegates were divided into committees which were comparable to committees in the house and senate, such as the military affairs, harbors and rivers, atomic energy, etc.

Meet With Committees
Each of these committees had as an advisor a state club leader. On an afternoon they met with their respective committee of the house and senate in the capitol building. Previously these delegate committees had received bills that were pending before the committee and they had studied them and when they met with the house and senate committee, they discussed and asked questions about the bills that they had studied and watched the committee in action handling these bills.

On the day in which they were in the national capitol, the house was adjourned but they saw the senate in action on the floor. Another feature of the program each day was the discussion groups. Following a keynote speaker each morning, they met in their respective groups and discussed one of the ten guideposts.

One of the top speakers to the groups was General Hershey, who spoke on "Health and its importance in building a strong America in the postwar periods." One point he emphasized was that a sick nation wasn't fit to assume the leadership in this world, and since the United States is the number one country in the world today they must be made healthy and stay healthy.

Two Ceremonies
There were two ceremonies which came the last day of the camp. One, a very impressive citizenship ceremony, took place on the steps of the Lincoln memorial. It featured the 47 club members who were delegates to camp who were just turning 21. The delegates took the oath of adult citizenship at this ceremony. It was given by the solicitor general of the United States government. The plans and arrangements for this ceremony were in charge of Alice Sundquist, former clothing specialist for the Washington State Extension Service.
Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, gave an impressive talk to the delegates in the Jefferson auditorium of the Department of Agriculture building. He brought out the point that these boys and girls, through 4-H, were being prepared to assume leadership in the world and not only in this country.

Visit Shrines
The delegates visited several national shrines and included in this group were the Washington monument, the Jefferson memorial, the Lincoln memorial, the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, where they laid a wreath, Robert Lee's home, Washington's home at Mount Vernon, and they saw the statue that is to be dedicated to the marines on Iwo Jima.
They went through the library of congress, the capitol building, and part of the Smithsonian Institute. Each day they passed by most of the embassies and legations of the various nations.
The four representatives from Washington state were Kenneth Price, Pomeroy; Geneva Faust, Kittitas; Florence Hillis, Snohomish; and Wayne Lenhard, Spokane.

Develop Mines, Mitchell Urges
Great mineral wealth in the state of Washington is one of the region's prime assets and has been virtually untouched, according to Senator Hugh B. Mitchell.
"Much emphasis has been placed on other natural resources in the Pacific Northwest but the very extensive ore deposits have been neglected," Mitchell declared. "We seem to have a mote in our eye concerning this potential source of new industry and increased employment."
Senator Mitchell said he had checked a recent statement by the Washington State Department of Conservation and Development reporting less than 10% of the proved mineral deposits in the state in actual production and utilization and had found this to be substantially true.
"During the war years the Bureau of Mines was successful in proving large tonnage of ores that were valuable to the war effort," the senator said. "However, no complete inventory of Washington's mineral resources has ever been made and deposits which might prove valuable to the domestic economy have never been thoroughly investigated."
"We have in the metaline triangle lead and zinc prospects that can make us one of the major producing sections of the nation," Mitchell said, adding that favorable comment has been made on Stevens county lead and zinc prospects.
The Olympic peninsula, surveyed by the bureau, was found to have ore with 15% manganese content. Research work being carried on by both government and private corporations already has disclosed large amounts of high-percentage alumina clay in Spokane, Cowlitz and Lewis counties. Nickel-iron ore is present in Kittitas, Chelan and Okanogan counties; tin-tungsten in Spokane county and lignite coal in Lewis county.

In the early pioneer days, he continued, all men had shirts, pants and lots of bacon, all scarce articles now and today it is impossible to "bring home the bacon."
When asked when he first arrived here if he had trouble getting pants, he replied, "None whatsoever," for at that time he wore only the three cornered variety and they tell me there is a shortage of those pants now.

GARDEN PESTS ARE DESCRIBED

TWO INSECT CLASSES TAKE DIFFERENT SPRAY FOR DESTRUCTION

A knowledge of the habits of garden insects and of how to use insecticides should be highly valuable to gardeners, according to David Brannon, Washington extension entomologist.

There are two general classes of garden insects, he says. One class, which chew and swallow leaves, stems, roots or other parts of vegetation, is known as "chewing insects." The other class is known as sucking insects, because they feed by sucking juices from plants.

Insecticides in general are also divided into two groups. One group is used against chewing insects which consume the insecticide and are thereby poisoned. The second group of insecticides are for control of sucking insects and are called "contact" insecticides because they kill by coming in contact with the insects' bodies.

"Stomach Poisons"
The group of insecticides used against chewing insects are sometimes called "stomach poisons." Among these are calcium arsenate, lead arsenate, cryolite and the more powerful materials such as Paris green and white arsenic. These insecticides are sprayed or dusted on the leaves or are mixed with baits; they are taken into the insects' stomachs along with the plant food.

Some of the principal contact insecticides are nicotine, rotenone, pyrethrum and sabadilla.

Both poison and contact insecticides may be applied either as dusts or sprays. The well-prepared gardener will have both a duster and a sprayer on hand, says Brannon. For most garden purposes, a duster is probably more practical than a sprayer. This is because dusting materials usually are cheaper, easier to apply, and many can be purchased already mixed.

For more complete information regarding methods of insect control, ask your county agent for a copy of extension bulletin No. 280, titled "Victory Gardens."

HOUSE PLANTS BEST OUTSIDE

TIME AND EFFORT SAVED DURING SUMMER BY OUTSIDE PLANTING

"The easiest and most enjoyable way to take care of house plants during the summer is to care for them outdoors," says S. E. Wadsworth, assistant professor of floriculture and landscape gardening, W.S.C.

"They may be cared for while you are outside enjoying your garden. Then later they may be brought inside again to brighten your home during the winter months."

Many persons prefer to put all but their most tender house plants, such as the African violet, outdoors to save time and work. If kept indoors, house plants require more attention in the summertime than in winter months. This is because they must be guarded against too much sunshine and they need more water. Either the window blinds must be drawn or the plants moved away from the direct rays of the sun during the hottest hours of the day.

Leave Plants in Pot

Sometimes the plants, when moved outdoors, are taken from the pots and set directly into the ground; but, as a general rule it is better to leave the plant in the pot, Wadsworth says. The plants should be set so that the rim of the pot is level with the soil of the garden. In order to keep the roots from growing down through the drainage hole in the pot, a double handful of gravel may be placed under the pot or the pot may be set into a closed vessel of some kind.

Several advantages are obtained by leaving a plant in the pot, says Wadsworth. "Plants which do not seem to be entirely happy in their environment may be easily shifted to another position and given more shade or more sun. Also, plants which tend to draw toward the light may be turned half way around occasionally so that they will develop evenly and not be one-sided when they are ready to go back to indoor quarters. They should generally be set in a location that will be shaded by the house or trees during the hottest hours of the day. They may be watered with a garden hose."

HOLT'S BADLY BURNED

Mrs. Lillian Holt and son Raymond of Route 3, in Clover Creek, were seriously burned last week when a pressure cooker that Mrs. Holt was using exploded. They were taken to the Northern Pacific Hospital where doctors determined that the burns were of second and third degree intensity. The accident seems to have been caused by the pressure cooker being opened before all the steam had escaped.
