Western Washington Fair High Act

Thrills galore are promised visitors to the 46th annual Western Washington fair at Puyallup, Sept. 17 through Sept. 25, when the Paroff Trio presents its spectacular act on an unsupported ladder high above the ground. Man-power alone keeps the ladders on the stumpy platform. Day and night grandstand shows with a lavish array of outstanding talent feature the nine-day night exposition.

Puyallup Fair Biggest Ever

Hereabouts, when you smell fog in the air, it conjures up a mental picture of the Puyallup Fair. To some, the picture stands for exhibits, buckaroos and hot-dog stands. To others it means business opportunities and outside money surging into Pierce County where they build a better standard of living.

But whether you look at the fun side or business side of the Fair... this is the month of the great fall classic, "the biggest show in the state", where magic brews the 46th annual presentation on a scale that's more lavish and more potent than anything in the past. The dates are September 17th through the 25th with gates open day and night, rain or shine.

Plant Enlarged

For a fact the Western Washington Fair is "bigger and better" than ever, for the association has added a big, five-acre tract to the grounds this year. Here are grouped a "double-size" Farm Machinery row, a new rodeo barn and corral, a new reserved auto parking lot inside the grounds, and an even larger kiddieland amusement zone where all of the miniature rides are only 9c each.

Grandstand Show Sensational

For day-night grandstand acts the fair is presenting "the pick of the land," features which were personally selected by fair officials at the big shows throughout the east and south. In front of the 10,000-seat covered stands will be seen such outstanding acts as the Flying Zucchini's trapeze number, Cyclist Paul Gordon from the original "Hellzapoppin'" show, the Parker Brothers for knock-about comedy, the troupe of juvenile Gallagher acrobats, Mack brothers' hilarious clown act, outstand-

PARKLAND FIRM TO SHOW MOBIL DEMONSTRATION KITCHEN

Home Gas Company, Tacoma's local distributor of liquefied petroleum gas today announced completion of its Mobile Demonstration Kitchen.

Built on a converted passenger bus body, the kitchen contains the most modern home appliances including fully automatic gas ranges, several gas refrigerators, gas clothes drier and automatic gas water heater. There is also a General Electric Dishwasher sink combination & Frigidaire automatic washing machine included.

All equipment is connected to water and electric circuits so that demonstrations can be given anywhere that water and 110 volt electricity is available.

This modern merchandising vehicle will be on display at the Western Washington Fair at Puyallup and thereafter will be made available for civic group picnics and parties where cooking facilities are desired, or where the group wishes to see gas equipment demonstrated.
