

MIDLAND TRUCK NOW IN ACTION

NEW TRUCK, COSTING
MORE THAN $9,000, IS WAITING FOR CALLS

Brand new, and its red paint sparkling clean, Midland's new fire truck is now proudly reposing in the department's station, ready to answer any call.

Made by the Howard Cooper Corp., the truck has a Chevrolet chassis, supplied by the South Tacoma Chevrolet Co., and comes equipped with a 500 gallon per minute pump. Its "duo-safety" aluminum alloy ladder in three sections is 35 feet in length. The truck also has a 10 foot folding ladder for inside work and a 14 foot roof ladder, both made of aluminum.

Carries 1,000 Feet of New Hose

In addition to its 500 feet of 1½ inch hose, the truck carries 1,000 feet of new 2½ inch hose. "It cost us $1.20 a foot," Chief David McPherson said, "but right now it would cost $1.46, so we made a good buy." Two special nozzles, made by the Fogg Nozzle company, are provided also. They can produce a solid "fog" of water, seven feet in diameter, projecting 25 feet.

The truck carries 400 gallons of water, which will supplement that carried by the department's other truck. Two "Phomaire" containers, capable of producing 750 gallons per minute of mechanical foam will make it possible for the firemen to cope with oil or gasoline fires, or to coat a building in danger with a protective covering, if short of water. A 15 pound carbon dioxide container is also part of the truck's equipment.

Cost $9,000

Costing $9,263.86, including its special equipment, the truck was purchased from the 20 mill levy of the Harvard, Midland and Larchmont fire district. It was purchased through the Howard Cooper corporation, northwest distributors for the Seagrave company. On Tuesday, the truck successfully passed the rigorous tests of the Washington state survey and rating bureau at Spanaway and is now certified as ready for action.

Proud of Breathing Apparatus

But proud as Chief McPherson was of the new truck, there was another item which the department has possessed for many months which also excited his enthusiasm. "I'm really proud of our two 'Chemox' breathing apparatus," he said. With it we can enter a mine, the bottom of a well, or even go under water."

The breathing apparatus, he stated, cost over $600 and was purchased from the proceeds of the Firemen's Ball last year. A combined resuscitator, aspirator and inhalator, it can be used for drowning, heart attacks, or even asthma. "They use it for new born babies in the hospital," McPherson said. "Since we've had it, there have been four cases in the community where it could have been used, if the people had thought of calling us. But we must get there quickly—within three or four minutes—if we hope to do any good with it."

Farm Production at All-Time High in '46

The value of Washington farm production reached an all-time high in 1946.

The figure for last year is placed at $597,001,000, compared with $508,231,000 in 1945 and $180,255,000 in 1940, said Arthur Cagle, extension economist at the state college.

Wheat ranked first in value among the 145 different farm products produced by Washington farmers last year. The wheat crop was valued at $134,100,000. This is the first time any one Washington farm product has exceeded a $100,000,000 value in one year, said Cagle.

Apples were second with a value of $87,131,000, and milk was third at $85,103,000. The three top 1946 products were in the same order in 1945. In many previous years, milk ranked second in value.

Miss Janet Hauge Becomes Bride of Ralph Carlson on Tuesday, July First

The silver wedding anniversary of her parents was the date chosen by Miss Janet Cecelia Hauge, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Philip E. Hauge, for her marriage to Ralph O. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Carlson of 6633 So. Lawrence street. The wedding took place July 1 at 8:00 o'clock, in Trinity Lutheran Church with Dr. E. B. Steen officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white slipper satin, fashioned in princess style with a beaded bodice, buttoned to waistline in back, long sleeves, and a skirt ending in a train. She wore a double veil, one of court length and a second of finger-tip length, fastened to a lace cap, all of which was edged with wide lace from the wedding gown of her god-mother, Mrs. Lora B. Kreidler. She wore a silver heirloom pin which had belonged to her grandmother in Denmark, and carried an olive wood-covered Bible, which her father brought from the Holy Land, and an orchid arranged with stephanotis.

Miss Charlotte Swanson, wearing a blue dress and carrying white gladioli and stephanotis in a colonial bouquet, was maid of honor; bridesmaids were Miss Margie Carlson, wearing a green dress, and Miss Georgina King in a pink dress, and both carrying bouquets similar to that of the maid of honor. Candlelighters were Misses Janice Kittleson and Esther Velsvick, also wearing pink and green dresses and hair corsages. All the attendants wore pearl necklaces and crystal earrings, which were gifts of the bride. Little Margaret Ronning and Ann Marie Malmin, wearing pink net and headbands of pink carnations, were flower girls. The ring bearer was Jon Hanson, nephew of the groom, dressed in a white suit.

Cyril B. Hanson was best man for his brother-in-law; and ushers were Larry Hauge, brother of the bride, Robert LeRoy, Ralph Baird and Donald Reisinger.

Mrs. G. Malmin was the organist during the service and Mr. Richard Svare sang "Because," "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord Bless You and Keep You."

The church was decorated with white wedding bells, white regalia lilies and a host of daisies, and greens, and lighted candles illuminated the wedding ceremony.

For the reception in the church parlors, attended by over three hundred guests, the bride's mother wore a gown of pale green crepe and a gold heirloom brooch, which had been given to her grandmother on her golden wedding anniversary in Denmark, and a corsage of baby orchids. She was joined by the groom's mother, who wore a gown of black and white crepe and an identical corsage. Flowers in the parlors were garlands and centerpieces of sweet peas, with silver candelabra and service. Presiding at the urns were Mrs. L. S. Carlson, the groom's aunt, and Mesdames Lora B. Kreidler and O. J. Jordahl, godmothers of the bride. Miss Gladys Carlson, cousin of the groom, and Mrs. L. M. Hauge, aunt of the bride, were in charge of cutting the wedding cake, assisted by Misses Agnes Mykland, Florence Hauge, Barbara DeBerry and Helen Ramstad. Miss Ruth Velsvick had the guest book, and Mesdames Robert Clark and Albert Johnson were at the gift table.

For their wedding trip to Vancouver, B. C., Mrs. Carlson wore a light blue wool suit with white accessories, an orchid corsage, and a gold pin which was a gift of the groom. They are now at home to friends in Parkland.

Mrs. Carlson is a graduate of PLC, where her sorority was Delta Rho Gamma. She was also a member of the Choir of the West and the L.D.R. Mr. Carlson served in the marines for thirty-three months, and after his discharge resumed his studies at PLC in the educational department. He is a member of the Choir of the West, Tawasi, and the Veterans' Club.

Lots of Excitement But No Damage at Columbia Powder

The spilling of acid under the nitrator of the Columbia Powder Co. resulted in great excitement but almost no damage on Wednesday morning. The alarm was sounded and a call placed to the fire department, but company officials stated that they were able to control the situation before the fire department had time to arrive, and the fire department call was cancelled.

Read the Label When You Buy

"Read the label, that is the first and most important rule in buying packaged staple goods," says Miss Inez Eckblad, Extension Nutritionist, the State College of Washington. Most labels will give the quantity of food in the package and the name of the food. Law requires that the name conform to the kind and quality of the product enclosed. For example, if vinegar is defined as the fermented juice of apples with a definite acid content, the buyer will have some information as to the strength and flavor of the product.

If a product is an imitation the label must say so. When a product is a mixture or a blend, it must be told on the label. Another item that should be printed on the label is the addition of any preservatives or artificial flavoring or color. Last, the brand name will appear and will help the buyer to identify certain products she is accustomed to.

Need Better Resorts, Says Univ. Bureau

To help the state of Washington realize a potential 200 million dollar yearly tourist income, the establishment of a Tourist Research and Extension Service designed to aid resort managers raise the standards of their facilities has been recommended by the University of Washington Bureau of Business Research.

The bureau, which recently concluded a survey of the tourist industry in the state of Washington, pointed out that it will do no good to advertise and draw visitors to overcrowded surroundings and inferior service.

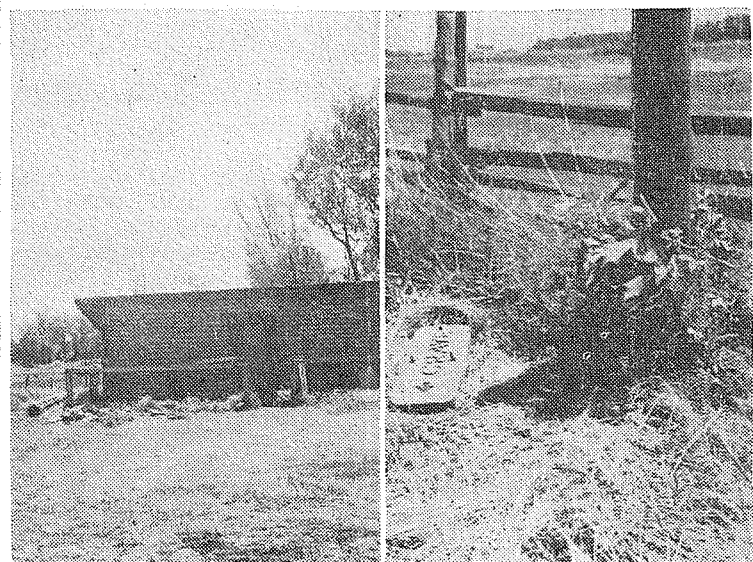

A Tourist Conference, based on information obtained in the survey and designed to acquaint resort and hotel owners of the Pacific Northwest with its findings will be held at the University of Washington, April 17 and 18.

In conducting its survey, the Business Research Bureau found that inadequate transportation, the inaccessibility of many of our finest natural beauty spots, poor roads, sub-standard facilities at many of our resorts and lack of development of state and national parks was limiting tourist travel in this state.

According to the bureau, the research and extension service could look into such problems as the effectiveness of advertising, problems of seasonal variation, possibility of seasonal diversification, and tourist travel trends. The agency could also institute a broad educational service to benefit motor court, hotel and resort owners. This program would include travel clinics, institutes and short refresher courses for managers and executives.

It was pointed out that such an agency would cost only from four-tenths to twenty-four thousand dollars per year, a small proportion of the money spent annually by tourists in the state.

This story was written exclusively for the Prairie Pointer.

It was a lovely summer day, and Mrs. Lloyd Dillingham of Elk Plain was enjoying her breakfast until she glanced out her window—and then the day was not nice, nor did she enjoy her breakfast! Clearly, it was impossible, but impossible or not, that brown bear was chasing her calf.

Mrs. Dillingham screamed for her husband, but did not stop with that. Not waiting for Mr. Dillingham to come she rushed out to drive off the bear herself. "And he hasn't been seen since," Mrs. Dillingham stated.

Is Tacoma Giving Undue Adulation to Mark Clark?

The recent visit of Mark Clark to Ft. Lewis, on the occasion of his inspection of the Fort after assuming command of the Sixth Army, produced fanfare seldom accorded a visiting general. In fact, in some ways it surpassed that given to General Eisenhower.

While it is understandable that Tacoma should be interested in Clark, since he was at Lewis, one wonders if the city could not choose a general whose feet were not so clearly made of clay. The reputations of Generals Eisenhower, Marshall, McArthur, Arnold and others are all so clearly above reproach. But that definitely is not true of Mark Clark.

General Clark, when up for promotion to the rank of full general, was opposed in Congress by the representatives of an ENTIRE DIVISION WHICH FOUGHT UNDER HIM—the famous Texas Division—which blamed him for the awful tragedy the division incurred on the ill-fated Rapido River crossing, in the Italian campaign. Led by a Major General, and other officers of high rank, this division fought every inch of the way to block Mark Clark's promotion. Some of their objections were never answered.

Why not choose an idol who has other qualifications than "head of brass, and feet of clay?" There are many great soldiers who have passed through Fort Lewis of whom Tacoma should be justly proud. Are we sure Mark Clark is the greatest of them?

Forgotten Hero

The forgotten and uncared for shrine of the greatest pioneer hero of the State of Washington is shown on page one of the Prairie Pointer, as photographed by Bill Gulick, nationally known Tacoma writer.

That the city of Walla Walla, or whoever is charged with the responsibility of maintaining Whitman's grave should be so utterly remiss in its duties is a reflection not merely on that community, but on the entire state of Washington.

Where is the public interest which should have revolted at this desecration of the dead? Where, indeed, is the enlightenment supposedly engendered by Whitman College?

It looks to us as if the college—the city and the State of Washington have all been guilty of criminal negligence in allowing the final resting place of Washington's greatest hero to become a shambles! Respectfully, we call this matter to the attention of the city of Walla Walla, Whitman College, and the Governor of Washington.

Grave of Whitman Found Neglected

tended doing some repair work someday. In fact, one workman was already on the job, lying with his hat over his face and his hands folded on his chest while he took a nap in a wheelbarrow. Perhaps he had worked hard and deserved the nap; if so, his work did not show. We tiptoed quietly away so as not to disturb his slumbers.

Debt to Whitman

Marcus Whitman was not a colorful general such as Custer. He was never president of the United States. He did not even have the luck to be a famous outlaw. What was he, then? Perhaps the one-hundredth anniversary of his death is a good occasion to pause a moment to remember a few of the things that he was.

He was the first American minister to establish a mission to the Indians in Oregon territory, which then included Washington.

In 1836, he personally led a group of emigrants from St. Louis to the Walla Walla valley; these emigrants made the first permanent American settlement within the state of Washington.

He and his wife established the first school for either Indians or whites.

Had it not been for the Whitmans, whose presence here and constant enthusiastic letters to people in the east encouraged immigration, Washington might well have become a part of Canada rather than the United States, for until the Whitmans came the only whites here were employees of the English Hudson's Bay company.

He was the first man to prove the practicability of bringing wagons the entire length of the Oregon Trail. Until he proved it could be done by doing it, it was thought impossible.

As I said before, visitors to the state must think it odd that we neglect paying the debt of honor we owe to Marcus Whitman and his wife.

Hunters Warned of Tularemia Danger

Wild animals in Adams county recently have shown evidence of tularemia, or "rabbit fever," according to Dr. Arthur L. Ringle, State Health Director, and hunters throughout this area and elsewhere in the state are warned to be extremely careful in skinning and dressing rabbits and other wild animals and birds.

The director explained that tularemia is a dangerous communicable disease passed from a sick rabbit, or any infected wild animal, to a human being. The germs are in the animal's blood and can easily work through scratches, cuts or very minor injuries in the hunter's skin.

"Leave the peopless animal alone," Dr. Ringle advises. "If an animal is an easy shot, the chances are he is ill, possibly infected with tularemia."

"Always wear rubber gloves when cleaning the animal. You may have 'microscopic cuts or breaks in your skin which—even though you can't see them—will be protected from possible tularemia germs."

"Burn the fur, refuse and paper used in cleaning at once. Wash the gloves and your hands thoroughly with soap and water when the meat has been prepared, and be careful during the whole procedure not to cut yourself with the knife, puncture a finger on an animal's broken rib, or in some way cause a break in the skin," the director emphasized.

Dr. Ringle said adequate cooking is another safeguard against this dangerous disease. Regardless of the dish being prepared, the meat should be cooked for at least twenty minutes at boiling temperatures.

The director pointed out that these precautions should be used by hunters all over Washington, whether or not tularemia has been reported in their area. He urged that these safeguards be used in any kind of hunting since tularemia occurs in all wild animals and birds.

PICNIC IS SCHEDULED

The Mary Martha Society will hold a picnic on Thursday, July 17, at the beach at Point Defiance for the members and their children. They will meet at the church at 11:30.

Letters to the Editor

Mr. Editor:
I have just finished reading your editorial "Cain's at It Again," and I would like to reply to it.

In your editorial you state that this bill, if passed, would evict thousands of tenants from government housing projects. In reality, however, the bill provides that the housing units be sold to veterans and the people now living in them.

The main purpose of this bill is to get the government out of the housing business. Most of the hue and cry about the bill is raised by bureaucrats who will lose their jobs if it is passed. These bureaucrats could hardly be called unbiased observers.

The government's dealing in housing is a form of socialism, yet you call Senator Cain a reactionary for opposing this. I would certainly consider socialism more reactionary than one who fights it.

You point out the fact that during the congressional election Hugh B. Mitchell defeated Senator Cain in the district around Tacoma. Why don't you also say that Senator Cain defeated Mr. Mitchell in his home district.

You state that it is a significant fact the way some newspapers have come to Senator Cain's defense. Would you mind telling me what is so significant about that?

You also state that under the Republicans the rich get richer, the poor get poorer and prices go higher and higher. You should know that there are three branches of government—executive, legislative and judicial. The Republicans have control of the legislative branch, and the Democrats the other two.

And while we're on the subject of politics, I would rather have Harry P. Cain in the White House than Harry S. Truman.

JOHNNIE SWANSON.
