PLU Gives Parkland Facelift As Work Starts on New Golf Clubhouse

The start of construction of the dining hall and golf clubhouse at Pacific Lutheran University this week means the passing of a familiar landmark on the Parkland prairie.

In 1928 the Parkland Golf Association, a private corporation, opened the Parkland Golf Course with a clubhouse located at the corner of S. 124th and Yakima. Depression years were tough on the Association and in 1935, facing bankruptcy, the group turned over their 18-hole course and clubhouse to PLU.

This week the clubhouse will be moved about 100 feet south to a temporary location and when the new facility is ready in November, the old building will be disposed of.

Contracts were signed yesterday (Tuesday) with two Tacoma firms to erect the new building which will cost approximately $325,000.

Warter Construction Co. will be the general contractor and Food Service Installation will be the food service contractor. Johnson-Austin Associates of Tacoma are the architects for the structure. Walter

Let Me Tell One:

Sunday Closing

The question of Sunday closing of retail outlets is a ticklish one. In many areas general merchandise is sold on a full-day basis on Sunday. Here in our area hours of the stores staying open are usually shortened. Competition has forced stores to stay open though management and employees would prefer to close.

Neil McLean

My feeling is that, although I do not wish to work on Sunday and do so only in extreme necessity, the question is one of an individual's work and his own choice for his business.

Some of my business acquaintances stay open on Sunday, but do not require their help to work.

The trend to Sunday opening has met a counter element. Some states have enacted Sunday closing laws, on the basis that commercialization of a universally recognized day of rest and recreation should be stopped.

These laws have replaced the ancient "blue laws" which, in most cases were extreme and thus unenforceable.

A prime example of the unworkable blue laws is in the State of Washington. The law requires that no activity which is loud and boisterous will be tolerated and goes on to define certain things which are friends in the grocery business say if I advocated that only stores with less than 7,000 square feet could stay open and others must close.

Where do I draw the line in reference to gasoline stations? Do I say that they can only pump gas and cannot lubricate cars or change tires?

Almost any business, food included, could be affected by this sort of legislation.

My thought is that the retail association of any given area can and should regulate themselves to a pattern and stick to it.

Until a few weeks ago, Seattle supermarkets had closed on Sunday for two years and I think will probably go back to Sunday closing soon.

Since Sunday is recognized as a day of rest and recreation, business should be held to a minimum by agreement of the retailers involved and not by legislation and pressure from any group.

The argument which comes out next is that nothing will be done unless pressure is brought or laws passed.

If you really believe that stores should not be open on Sunday, the best way to close them is to make sure your shopping is completed for the week by Saturday afternoon.

DISBANDING — The South Summit Improvement Club, organized in the 1930's, held its first meeting in 13 years on April 21, and voted to disband and bestow its collective property and additional cash to the Summit Volunteer Fire Department, for the sum of one dollar. The property, located on Military Road and Cherry St., is estimated to be worth several thousand dollars. At the firemen's request, the Club appointed a Board of Trustees to see that the Club's wishes are carried out as to disposal of the property. The firemen plan to use the new-found assets to put in fire hydrants and stand pipes in the area. When formed, the Club was very active and instrumental in acquiring water, lights and other improvements to property in the area. Only about half of the pictured residents still reside in the community.

Midland Egg Hunt Set to Start . . . On Their Way . . . Where's Everybody?

Strict Observance Of Traffic Signs Needed During Fair

Police Chief D. G. Hager today termed disregard for traffic signs as one of the biggest reasons for traffic accidents in Tacoma.

Chief Hager warned motorists that traffic signs, signals and pavement markings must be strictly observed. With the opening of Century 21 Fair there will be a marked increase in traffic due to the many visitors. He called on drivers to accept their responsibility in this matter in order to protect themselves and other motorists and pedestrians in the City.

"Traffic signs are actually Signs of Life", Chief Hager declared. "Everyone who operates a motor vehicle is responsible for knowing what the 'Signs of Life' mean and for heeding their message."

Chief Hager noted that there are six basic shapes used in traffic signs and each shape carries a different type of message. He pointed out that motorists should learn to recognize the sign shapes so that they can tell at a glance what type of problem they are about to be confronted with.

Spanish War Vets Average Age 84

There are about 750 Spanish - American War veterans in Washington State, according to John B. Kirsch, Manager of the Veterans Administration Regional Office in Seattle.

Today, 64 years after the outbreak of the war with Spain, the roll of living Spanish - American War veterans has dwindled nationally to an estimated 28,000 from the 392,000 who served in that war.

Kirsch said that the average age of the survivors is nearly 84 years.

Of the estimated 28,000 Spanish - American War veterans, there are slightly more than 26,000 on VA's compensation or pension rolls.

The veterans are most heavily concentrated in California where there are 4,000 and in Florida, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania, each of which has about 2,000.

Chief Hager noted that there are six basic shapes used in traffic signs and each shape carries a different type of message. He pointed out that motorists should learn to recognize the sign shapes so that they can tell at a glance what type of problem they are about to be confronted with.

Clocks In History

Modern men can measure time down to one billionth of a second! And the average person keeps comfortably on time with a watch that varies no more than 10 or 12 seconds a day.

This information, compiled by General Time Corporation, shows how far time-keeping has come in the past few centuries.

Compare present-day clocks and watches with the gross inaccuracy of the clepsydra (water clock) sent to Charlemagne in 807 A.D. by the legendary Haroun - Al - Rashid... or the sundial pocket watch carried by Shakespeare's contemporaries... or hour glasses filled with sand, used by the British Navy up to a century ago.

According to General Time, it was England's beloved King Alfred who invented "candle clocks"... foot-long candles calculated to burn for four hours... by which His Majesty neatly divided the day into equal parts for prayer, work and rest!

Federal tax on Oleomargarine was enacted in 1886.

National Hobby Month

The calendar is loaded with special weeks and months for this or that, but I came across one recently that makes a lot of sense. It's National Hobby Month — April 1962.

Since Americans enjoy a reputation for devising some wonderful ways to use leisure time, it's only fitting that a special month be set aside to observe this fact.

You might say National Hobby Month is a salute to the millions of model railroaders, model airplane, boat and car builders, the handicrafters, and the science hobbyists.

They deserve a special tribute, because they've learned that well spent leisure time is rewarding leisure time. They have learned how to fight boredom, how to relax, how to be more interesting. And in a pleasant way, they have gained in knowledge... the kind that always rubs off from a fun filled hobby.

If there's anyone who hasn't discovered the wonderful world of hobbies, National Hobby Month is the time to get started. Whether you're 8 or 80, there's something you can make or collect.

Join the ranks of hobbyists. I'm glad I did!

modern home wiring works rings around the old "overloaded" kind!

It's a fact: electricity works faster — and more economically — when you have an up-to-date home wiring system. Just as water needs big-enough pipes, electricity needs wires that are big enough to carry electrical loads.

So see your electrician for a wiring checkup for your home. And if you're building or remodeling, insist on up-to-date wiring. Modern electrical living demands modern electrical wiring!

Lawn Care Outlined

Your lawn represents a lot of water by removing soil large investment; in money samples at 2-hour intervals spent to establish and after the water has been maintain it, in the value it adds to your home and the research is now being conducted at the Experiment Station on ways to determine turf water needs more conveniently and accurately.

When To Water

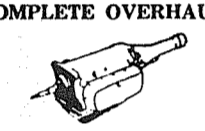

The only way to accurately tell when to water is to remove a sample of the soil and examine it. This can be done by using a soil tube, soil probe, kitchen knife, or any instrument that can be used to remove a sample of soil an inch square an eight inches deep. If the soil is dry between the 3 to 8 inch depths then water should be applied. Continue watering until this area of the soil is thoroughly wetted. A check may be kept on the downward movement

Light Rain Little Value
The same is true for light sprinkling with a water hose. The reason is that only the grass foliage and very top of the soil is moistened and this water is soon evaporated by the sun and wind. Even though it may have rained four days last week, unless the periods of rain were at least one hour long, your lawn realized very little benefit. This particularly is true for shaded or protected areas.

How Much to Apply

When you water always wet the soil to a depth of 6-10 inches. To accomplish this you may need to water for one hour then stop until this water has entered the soil and then continue watering. If you have problems with runoff of water from slopes or hard soil which will not absorb water you may want to supply a wetting agent. This material alters the structure of the soil to allow more free entry of water. This material can be purchased at most garden stores.

a - Wondering . . . and a - Wandering . . .

with Jack Brown

I had all my plans well laid for an editorial this week but it turned out that for the first time the President of the U.S. changed my mind for me. Anyway I must say that it is much more pleasant to give anyone, including the President, a pat on the back instead of a kick in the slats.

It's a pleasure to change my tune and commend the President on his actions on requesting that charges be dropped against the two guardsmen who were to be court martialed for writing their Senators. Had these court martials been carried out it would have been the greatest injustice and blow to our freedom ever perpetuated.

It boils down to a very simple sort of logic. We have been granted freedom of speech by our constitution. Nowhere in it will you find wherein it states that once a man has been called into the service of his country that this constitutional right is thereby forfeited. Whether the two guardsmen were right or wrong has no bearing on the case. A good many of us fought and some died defending their rights and yours to speak out freely. A tip of the hat to JFK on this one.

Once again I took my family on our yearly jaunt into the boondocks hunting mushrooms. That's the only sport I know of where you look up till you get a kink in your neck to find something that grows on the ground. You look up through the trees to spot a cottonwood tree and down to find the blooming delicatessen. Then when you spot some you call out to your family that you've just made a find and man, watch out! They charge at you from all directions and by the time the mushrooms are picked you're lucky if one of the kids hasn't picked the buttons off your shirt in the excitement.

I happened to overhear a remark the other day that got my dander up. I heard a man say to another, "Yea, that big slob makes all the dough, and I do all the work." Recognizing the man it was quickly apparent to me that he was talking about his employer.

The reasons a remark like this burns me up are many, but for a starter I'll list a few. Number one, the joker with the big mouth that feels he is overworked asked for work when he applied for a job. He wasn't put on the payroll to sit around on his hands. Next, I happen to know that it is a union job and that he gets a far better wage than he should really be entitled to according to his capabilities and attitude. I also happen to know that his boss has put in one heck of a lot of his life into building the business so that he can afford to hire some joker like this bum to take some of the load off his shoulders. He also is the one that through a courteous attitude and attention to business has built the business up to the point that it not only supports his family, but now also supports the family of his disgruntled employee. It also has been he who has constantly stuck his neck out at the bank borrowing money to further the business. His employee has never risked a dime in the venture.

Now at long last he is able to take life a little easier and some two bit bum working for him that has never had the guts nor ambition to better himself in life, stands around making snide remarks about one of America's small but honest businessmen who has carved out his own niche through honest efforts.

Something like this galls me, but good, because this is getting to be the rule rather than the exception, among too many employees. It's time they started earning what they are being paid and keep their mouths shut about their employers and show some appreciation for the opportunity to work.

Mrs. Hylan Johnson Honored At FP

The newly organized Council of Parent-Teacher Associations of Franklin Pierce School District, presented its first Life Membership award at the last regular meeting.

Receiving the honor was the Council's first president, Mrs. Hylan L. Johnson, for many years of community service in Parent-Teacher work, through James Sales and Central Avenue units, and Pierce County Council, Youth activities, and church work.

"To be elected to receive a Life Membership in P.T.A. is truly an honor," said Mrs. Johnson, "but better yet, is knowing that the money given for it will add to the tremendous scholarship program of the State Congress of Parent-Teacher Associations."

In Korean Tests With 1st Division

Sgt. Dempsey V. Murphy, whose wife, Ellen, lives at 3306 S. 86th St., Tacoma, Wash., recently participated with other personnel from the 1st Division's 4th Cavalry in Army Training Tests in Korea. During the tests Sergeant Murphy's unit engaged in combat exercises against an "aggressor" force under simulated combat conditions. Training of this nature is designed to maintain the constant state of combat readiness essential to a modern Army deployed to maintain the defense of the free world.

A member of the cavalry's Company D, Murphy entered the Army in 1953 and arrived overseas on this tour of duty in May 1961.

The 28-year-old sergeant, son of Mrs. Alfreda Garrett, 924 S. Ninth St., Fernandina Beach, Fla., is a 1953 graduate of Peck High School in Fernandina Beach.

Jobs Hard To Find For High School Drop-Outs

High School drop-outs are an increasingly serious problem because of the up-grading of occupational skills in the U. S. labor market, warn many authors and local educators concerned with juvenile delinquency.

"Although many more students are finishing high school today than just a few decades ago, without a particular skill or a college education, drop-outs face almost certain unemployment and possible delinquency involvement," Jack Greaves, Director of Secondary Education for the Seattle school District explained.

Where does delinquency enter into the drop-out picture? Drop-outs try to make up for their failure in school by success in some other activity, often by building hot rods, joining the service, or entering into early marriages.

Lack of employable skills continues to plague drop-outs, keeping them from useful employment. "Frustration sometimes leads to stealing auto parts," Greaves explained, "or more serious illegitimate activities."

With all factors seemingly against dropping out of school, why do students continue to do so at alarming numbers?

Gaining parental and student acceptance of technical and trade training is the prime obstacle blocking these occupations to the average student without college potential.

Psychological problems and extremely low mental ability cause some drop-outs, but a considerable number of others fail because they are either trying to follow, or being forced to follow, college preparatory courses which are too much for them.

A study of 1959 Seattle High School graduates

It's The Law

Mort Meanswell owned a parking lot. It was enclosed by an eight foot fence and had one entrance and one exit. Mort kept at least one attendant on duty at all times to park and watch after his customers' cars. Patrons were requested to leave their keys in the car to enable the attendants to park the cars as well as move them when necessary.

Hotrod Harry parked his car in Mort's lot and was given a claim check. He promptly put it into his pocket. Upon the back of the claim check was written "The Person accepting this ticket assumes all risk of accident, and expressly agrees that the management shall not be liable, under any circumstances, for any injury to person, loss or damage."

A couple of hours later Harry returned. His car had been stolen.

Mort Meanswell said that he was sorry, but pointed to the statement on the back of the claim check. Mort refused to pay for the stolen car.

Mort probably would have to pay. Most courts have held that a statement on the back of a parking claim check is only effective if called to the car owner's attention. Mort had not done this. Also, Harry had a right to believe from the fact that Mort maintained an enclosed space for parking, with attendants on duty, that he was paying the parking fee in consideration of care and watchfulness to prevent injury or loss.

(This column is written to inform, not advise. Facts may change the application of the law.)

Dr. Ostenson To Lecture On Alaska Topic

Dr. B. T. Ostenson, biology professor at Pacific Lutheran University, will be the guest speaker at the Western Washington Experiment Station Sigma XI Club Thursday, April 26th at 8 p.m. at the Winter School Building of the Experiment Station.

His topic will be "Winter Field Study of Mammals at Point Hope, Alaska".

Dr. Ostenson spent last winter in an Eskimo village at Point Hope, through the sponsorship of the Atomic Energy Commission's project "Chariot". "Chariot" is part of the larger project Plowshare, designed for the peaceful use of atomic energy, and in the Point Hope instance it is proposed to use atomic explosives to blast out a harbor near the village.

Before the blasting can progress it is necessary to know whether such a scheme would be safe for the plant, animal and human environments of the area, as well as the geological background.

Dr. Ostenson's work consisted mainly of examining the hunting methods and prey of the Eskimos. His wife, son and an assistant accompanied him on the trip.

LIKE A GIANT ERECTOR SET—A towering section of a transmission standard is lowered onto new legs. Four City Light men are in position to bolt the tower to its new base.

A giant steel transmission tower was lifted from its base by a long crane boom, much as if it were a child's erector set, and placed on a new and taller foundation by City Light crews Wednesday.

The towering section was bolted to its new steel legs in an operation that took less than two hours, according to Earl Snell, assistant supervisor of overhead lines. The move facilitated other power lines to cross beneath City Light's high voltage system.

Before the 80-foot tower section could be moved, its six 110,000-volt lines were lowered to the ground after the power had been shut off. A 60-ton crane moved near the tower and its 146-foot-long boom was attached.

Snell reported that although power from the two Nisqually hydroelectric plants was suspended during the operation, residents in the area which it served continued to receive electricity from additional power sources available. J. Dave Ferguson, City Light superintendent, cited Electrical Operations Supervisor Ralph Thomas, Albert Disbro, assistant supervisor of overhead systems and Line Foreman Jack Coughlin along with Snell for the smooth operation.
