provide blanket radar coverage. Off-shore extensions of the network include the Pacific Barrier on the west and the G-I-UK (Greenland-Iceland-United Kingdom) Barrier on the east. These, extensions of the DEW Line, are patrolled by radar-equipped Navy Super Constellations. Off both coasts, and between Florida and Cuba, Navy picket ships and USAF Super Constellations extend radar coverage far cut to sea. In space, the Navy's Space Surveillance System, an electronic fence across the Southern United States and the Air Force's Spacetrack System track all objects in earth orbit and feed data to the Space Detection and Tracking System at NORAD. With JACK BROWN

There are many among us who, in no uncertain terms, feel that people such as I should crawl off some place and keep our fat mouths shut. These individuals look upon us as the breeders of hate and unrest and most assuredly believe that we cry wolf when only a shaggy pup yelps at our door for warmth, food and understanding. If you and I listen intently to their ideology we too might become lulled into a false sense of security and tend to discount any danger to ourselves, our property and the very land of freedom we love so dearly. Without a real and clear knowledge of threat, without being able to clearly see the picture and without the ability to read between the lines, this false sense of security, promoted by propagandists, is an easy state for one to lapse into. Once there, it is only natural to feel indignation towards those who try to prod you into mental alertness.

..Just this past week I had the opportunity to join with those Americans upon whose shoulders rests the responsibility of defending our country, should the need arise. I met with them, talked to them, looked over the defense system at their command and, most important of all, got the answer I sought. Is there or is there not a real existing danger from communist Russia today? Were Kruchev's words "We will bury you," made without backing?

I visited the North American Air Defense Command Headquarters and saw for myself the threat as well as the tools at our command to counteract it. I personally talked to the Commander-In-Chief of NORAD, General John K. Gerhart, USAF. I talked to his men, Army men and to several of the Canadian officers serving at the joint command headquarters. From this contact I gained a knowledge of what it is like to live and know and daily witness the fact that the bark at the door is in reality from a wolf and not a whelping pup. I found out from these men what it is like to actually watch the communist threat move above us thru space, around our borders on sea and in the air. These men daily not only see the threat moving across their screens but are constantly bombarded with photos obtained from various intercepts that show huge fleets of manned Soviet bombers cruising within a few miles of our borders, carrying enough nuclear weapons to practically wipe out our civilization were they to be released upon us without notice. These people daily see this threat to our freedom. They live with it and spend every working moment striving to lessen the threat by creating better and better defenses and methods of warning.

My only regret is that each and every one of you can't make the trip and see for yourself what is being accomplished in the way of defense of our coninent and particularly those of you who have been lulled into believing that any threat is either minor or imagined.

Let me retrogress for a moment and perhaps I can bring a clearer picture into focus for you as to the point I am trying to make or rather the bell I am trying to ring, for if you are asleep, believe me I am trying hard to waken you.

The need for a strong air defense system is fully recognized by military leaders of both the United States and Canada. Both countries have joined in a common defense system, NORAD, knowing that the problem is a common one shared by both sovereign nations. By treaty agreement in 1957 they told the world they considered national security a common problem and under the agreement any air attack against the North American continent would be opposed by both countries operating under a common command, contributing forces, real estate and equipment to a single operational agency, NORAD, NOR-AD's mission is defence of the North American Continent. In carrying out this mission the system has four basic functions: DETECTION, INTERCEPTION, IDENTIFICATION AND DESTRUCTION if necessary of enemy aircraft as far from their intended targets

And there, my friends, with this summation of the mission of NORAD, can you possibly see eye to eye with those who cry "Warmongers" at us and our Canadian counterparts who are responsible for setting up an organization with the sole purpose of defense?

The communist ideology is to dominate the world. This must never happen. I firmly believe that a strong defense plus a large retaliatory force to keep the cold war cold is an absolute must at this time. As long as the communists proclaim their ideology to dominate and their giant planes fly over our borders non-stop from Moscow to Cuba (and this, daily), their Intercontinental missiles cross above our land on practice shots and their Sputniks whirl constantly overhead. we must stand ready to protect ourselves.

In this column, as you know, I have pointed out what I consider to be a waste of our tax money in many instances. On this hand, however, let me say that I firmly believe that every cent of tax money appropriated to the NORAD system is well spent and an investment in the security of America.

Some of you may say, "So old Brown hitched a ride with the Air Force over to Colorado and now he's spouting off to pay the tab". Brother, you've dialed the wrong number. No one buys my pen, including (Continued on Page 3) the U.S.A.F. In fact, just to keep the record straight, the information I needed to confirm my belief as to the wolf-pup concept cost me a few bucks, for I ended up in a commercial plane instead of Air Force or my own little sky hopper. But believe me, it was worth the trip at any price.

Before I knock it off, this week I'd like to bring out a couple more points that I learned. First, I was rather shocked to discover that Russian satelites have orbited directly over Washington, D.C. and Omaha at an altitude of less than 100 miles. Give this some thought! Suppose these satelites carried nuclear devises that could be dropped at a given remote command. It's not nice to think that our nation's capital and the headquarters of SAC, our retaliation forces, could be completely wiped out by one of these satelites. This in itself explains the urgent need for the Cheyene Mountain underground project for NORAD.

Here's another eye opener. Did you know that to date no defense has been proven effective against intercontinental ballistic missiles? There is no such thing as INTERCEPT and DESTROY, beyond our borders, for them. We do have an adequate warning system which still operates in minutes instead of hours. Our only defense against this threat is a like destroying potential aimed at Russia that could be triggered were they to decide on World War III . . . and believe me, if and when it ever starts it will be started by Russian action and not by ours.

Perhaps you have wondered why all of NOR-AD's defense system faces the north as shown in the accompanying sketches. The reason is obvious. In all the world there is no other threat to our freedom and security except from communist Russia.

I was glad to receive the information that enough shelter from nuclear fallout has been located and mapped out in the U.S. to protect over 100 million of us. This in itself is a definite retardent to war, so long as we are allowed to retain our personal firearms to repell the enemy that must follow for the ground hand-to-hand mop up, if they are to make anvuse of our land.

I think the most important thing I learned on this trip was that although there is no question of a great threat existing there is a greater hope for continued world peace. This hope grows daily with our increased defenses.

As Commander-in-Chief, General Gerhart said, "We mean to defend. Never to aggress". So long as this is our creed, then we need have no fear that we shall ever truly earn the distasteful title of "Warmongers," nor trigger World War III.

To tell the entire story unfolded to me at Colorado Springs would fill a book. I only hope that I have somehow made a dent in the shell into which some of you have withdrawn and that you will come out with an open mind and join in the challenge to defeat communist propaganda during it's infancy and not let it become a fat, over-grown tool, lulling the multitude into acceptance of national suicide.
