Tree Seedlings Available For Rural Planting

Millions of tree seedlings await orders for one-way trips to farm and forest, advises county agent David Klemperer. A penny will buy a sturdy two-year old with boundless potential.

Availability of tree seedlings was announced recently by Joe Buhaly, WSU Extension Forester. A dozen varieties of tree seedlings are available, ranging in cost from a penny to 5 cents each. Trees must be purchased in lots of 25 or more.

Varieties available include: Douglas fir, ponderosa pine, Scotch pine, Austrian pine, western white pine, Shasta red fir, grand fir and Norway spruce.

Tree seedlings are raised by the Department of Natural Resources at the Olympia nursery. Department regulations restrict plantings to forest or Christmas tree plantations. The trees must be planted outside corporate city limits and cannot be used for ornamental purposes or be re-sold with roots attached.

Price lists and order blanks are now available at the county agent's office located at 742 County-City Building, Tacoma. Trees can be ordered now for shipment any time prior to April 15, 1964. An early order assures getting all varieties requested.

Learning Phonics

District Teachers Describe Reading Instruction

Phonics has its derivation from the Greek - Phone - meaning sound, sounds, or voice. Phonics is a vital part of reading instruction today. In this article, we will present some reading instruction background and explanation of some of our phonetic approaches.

We feel that there is no one best way to teach reading to every individual any more than there is one style or one color that is best for each member of a group.

At one time in the past, reading was begun by memorizing the alphabet, then progressing to the sounds of the letters and syllables and finally to words. When these facts were mastered, the reading of phrases, sentences, paragraphs and stories followed. This method worked well for those youngsters whose interest span was long enough to go through these laborious steps to realize the final goal - reading. Alarm began to be felt for the many who did not achieve success in this manner and the sight method was introduced.

One approach to the above method was the following: The teacher, or teacher and children-constructed a story about a shared experience. The teacher reproduced this on a chart or the chalkboard. The children read this in unison a number of times. Later phrases were reproduced on strips and an identical story produced on the sentence chart. Still later the more simple of these charts were broken down to words which were then put together in phrases, sentences and the complete story. This method also proved satisfactory to the more interested and capable students but again the number of poor readers was appalling.

The trend in schools today is toward the early introduction of phonetic teaching as an important word attack skill. At the same time, much importance is placed on understanding and fluency. Interest is generated and maintained by thought provoking pictures and subjects that most six year olds enjoy.

In one phonetic method the children are introduced at the beginning of the first grade to the long vowel sounds by means of pictures and words as illustrated. Along with these a limited sight vocabulary is taught so that they may enjoy reading primers immediately.

Soon simple rules, as shown in the photograph, are presented. Many others are introduced throughout the year as the various sounds are presented. The application of these rules makes it possible for most children to attack nearly all words on their reading level and to read fluently and with comprehension.

Teachers feel these phonetic facts need to be retaught and expanded many times through the elementary program and perhaps into junior and senior high school. Children, like adults, do not retain their learnings without repetition. When this phonetic approach is carried through the elementary grades as a progressive, repetitive program, fewer children have reading problems in later school and adult life. Educators are aware that

Rhubarb Growers Attend Meeting

Pierce county rhubarb growers, representing the rhubarb capitol of the world, Sumner, attended the International Rhubarb Grower Meeting at Toronto, Canada this past week.

The Pierce County group included John Sasaki, George Rechter, Henry Biehn, Henry Ritscher, Harold Knutson, Clayton Knoblauch and Dan Tompkins.

Dr. Tompkins, who is currently doing research on rhubarb at the Western Washington Experiment Station, presented two talks and participated in a panel discussion at the meetings.

Also, a feature speaker at the meeting was Dr. A. Laughton who has been working on rhubarb research in England since 1952.

Some children do not seem to achieve complete success in reading from any method. We do feel, however, that the per cent of failures is less when this method is employed.

Mr. And Mrs. Sprinker Honored By Grange

The early beginning of Granges in Pierce County was interwoven with the early settlement of this county, long before Washington Territory became a State. The hardships endured by these early settlers is but a page in the history of the Grange. While the early Grange slipped out of existence, their ideals were not lost. Like a dormant seed they were to sprout and be cultivated by the Granges of the future.

Our modern-day "Pioneer Grangers" will be honored from time to time by Pierce County Pomona for their untiring efforts in promoting the Grange program.

The well-known ballad "Together", might well have been the theme song of the chosen couple, Harry and Pearl Sprinker, honored this month by Pomona. They are equally well-known throughout the county and state for years of service to the Grange and still attend functions. Brother Sprinker is much in demand as a speaker for special programs and is long in praise of the work of the Grange. Their church and community have also benefited by the services of this dedicated couple.

Serving as Master of James Sales Grange for ten years and Pomona Master for eight years, gave Brother Sprinker a broad understanding of Grange policy. During his term of office at James Sales he was also Master of the Drill Team that performed at the State Grange Convention at Portland.

Sister Sprinker, a charter member of James Sales, held offices in that Grange and in Pomona for many years. She later served as District Chairman for Washington State Grange Home Economics Department and then went on to become State Home Economics Chairman serving four years under two State Masters, Henry P. Carstensen and A. Lars Nelson, the present Master.

Upon the death of a daughter, the couple took on the raising of a second family, somewhat curtailing the outside activities of Sister Sprinker, but adding a lot of excitement around the home.

Serving as Patron and Patroness of the Fern Hill Ivy Chapter of the Eastern Star holds happy memories for the Sprinkers.

On another page in the memoirs of the family we find many a raspberry was tossed around by neighboring children, as they helped the Sprinkers harvest the crop, when they were "Berry Farmers." A friend of the couple relates, "The best picker in the field was Mrs. Sprinker's mother, the late Katie Wisner, well loved "Mother of the Grange."

For County Commissioner Harry Sprinker, well-known throughout Pierce County and the state by all he serves in the capacity of his office, your friends in the Grange salute you this day.

To Sister Pearl Sprinker we impart this thought, "Our days are brighter because you passed our way."

The human heart, at whatever age, opens only to the heart that opens in return.
—Maria Edgeworth

Date Hot Cross Buns

There's eating satisfaction aplenty in "Date Hot Cross Buns," a delicious variation on the traditional Lenten rolls.

Chopped fresh California dates go into the easy-do batter made with packaged hot roll mix, and date slivers form the crosses on the powdered sugar frosting. To prepare slivers, snip dates along one side and flip out the pits - or buy pitted fresh California dates in round plastic containers, tray packs, cartons or bags.

During Lent, tuck fresh dates from the California desert into lunch boxes for a quick-energy treat; their natural sugar is rapidly converted into food energy for active youngsters and adults.

DATE HOT CROSS BUNS

1 cup fresh California dates	1 1/2 cups powdered sugar
1 package (13 3/4 oz.) hot roll mix	2 to 2 1/2 tablespoons hot water
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon	1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 egg white, slightly beaten	Pinch salt
	Fresh California dates, slivered

Chop 1 cup dates coarsely. Prepare roll mix as package directs; stir in chopped dates and cinnamon. Let rise. When almost doubled in size, shape into 18 balls. Place in greased 13 x 9 x 2-inch baking pan. Brush with egg white; cover with towel and let rise in warm place until almost doubled in bulk. Bake in 375-degree (moderately hot) oven about 20 minutes. Remove from pan; cool on wire rack. Blend powdered sugar, hot water, vanilla and salt; frost buns. Top with date slivers to form crosses. Makes 18 buns.
