Lakewood Architects to move to Parkland as center nears completion

The architectural firm of Johnson - Austin, Associates of Lakewood will soon be moving into their new offices now under construction at South 122nd and Pacific Avenue. The new complex, to be known as The Parkland Professional Center, is located adjacent to the Parkland

Branch of the Puget Sound National Bank, also designed by the firm.

Among other buildings in the area designed by them are the College Union Building and the Lower Campus Dining Facility and Golf Club at Pacific Lutheran University, the school addition to Parkland Evangelical Lutheran Church and Spanaway Methodist Church.

The upper floor of the two story structure, designed to be complimentary with the bank, will house the architects offices. The lower floor will have two 800 square foot office spaces available for lease. All spaces will face into a landscaped court area with the approach to the architects offices by stair to a bridge spanning the court area.

It is anticipated that the structure will be ready for occupancy in July 1964.

The partners, K. Walter Johnson and John V. Austin, have a special interest in the community and its development. Johnson was born and raised in Parkland and Austin, who has resided in Parkland for the past 10 years, is presently serving as treasurer of the newly formed Parkland Development Association, an organization devoted to making the Parkland area a better place to live.

Smoke jumpers to train in fire fighting

Training of smokejumpers for the 1964 fire season will begin soon at Cave Junction, Oregon, on the Siskiyou National Forest and Winthrop, Washington, on the Okanogan National Forest.

Refresher training for experienced jumpers is slated the week of June 8, with training of inexperienced jumpers scheduled June 15 to July 10.

About 75 jumpers will be in training at the two bases. Ten from each base will be stationed at the new U. S. Forest Service aerial center at Redmond, Oregon, later in the summer. From 8 to 16 jumpers will be stationed at the La Grande, Oregon, satellite base during summer months of highest fire danger.

A majority of smoke-jumper recruits are college students, with forestry and medical students predominating. There are always many more applicants than jobs. This year, there were 300 applicants for 22 vacancies. Mental and physical standards are high, and recruits must have at least one season of forest fire-fighting experience. They must pass a rigid physical examination, then complete the four-week course in fire-fighting, first aid, physical conditioning, and parachuting. New men make seven practice jumps.

Last summer, Pacific Northwest Regional jumpers jumped on 207 fires. They play an important role in this region's forest fire control program. Smoke-jumpers are trained for fast, initial action on fires in remote areas, and they have done a fine job of keeping many small fires from becoming big ones, says the Forest Service.

Dave Lindbo named prexy Bethel FFA

Future Farmers of America of Bethel met recently to elect officers for the coming year. Dave Lindbo, Bethel FFA representative to the state convention at Pullman, was selected for president. Steve Polly was elected vice president, Gary Bone, secretary, Dave Lorenz, treasurer, Daryl Treadway, reporter and Walt Acherson, sentinel.

Special awards were given various members at the annual awards assembly held at the high school. Steve Polly received the Star Greenhand award and the Dairy Farming Award. Jim Harpel received the Farm Mechanics award and Billy Tow, the Livestock Farming award.

In other recent events, Gary Bone and Steve Polly represented the Bethel Chapter by showing their dairy cattle at the Enumclaw Junior dairy show. He also received the reserve grand champion award for fitting and showing of his animals.

Linda was chosen by the Ladies Auxiliary of American Legion, Post 228 of Parkland, as their candidate to attend this yearly event, because of her pleasing personality and her high scholastic record at Bethel High School.

The winner will be notified as soon as possible as will be the sponsoring merchants who have made not only the big prize, but more than a dozen weeks of unprecedented bargains possible to area

AN ARCHITECT'S SKETCH shows what the finished Parkland Professional Center, new home of Johnson - Austin, Associates, architects, will add to Parkland's business district. The new building, located adjacent to the Parkland Branch of the Puget Sound National Bank, was designed to house not only the architectural firm, but two rental offices as well. It will be ready for occupancy in the immediate future.

Slaves will be freed by big hearted grocer

Bethel Boosters raised a total of $1400 for a new tennis court for the school at their recent auction. Included in the auction items were several "slaves" who are still busy "buying" their way out. Commissioners Harry Sprinker and Pat Gallagher along with teachers, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Green, will finish off their slave duties at the Bargain Basket, Saturday, June 6th. The four "slaves" will earn their freedom by serving their "master" and Bargain Basket's owner, Ethan Nelson's customers that day.

Sale of the "slaves" produced $275 of the revenue raised by the Booster Club. Other "slaves" "sold" included Jack Justice, John Milroy, Dewane Lamka, Ed Niehl, John Ostrander, Mrs. Laura Swick and Loveland Mutual Company's crew. The sale also included 30 cakes, dozens of home-baked loaves of bread and other items which brought the total revenue to $1400. The auctioneer was Glen Ash whose enthusiasm for the job and the auctioned items is credited with much of the sale's success.

The tennis court, located at the Junior High School grounds, is now complete.

New school will cause boundary line changes

With the opening of the new Elmhurst Elementary School next fall, several attendance area changes (boundary lines) will be made in the Franklin Pierce School District for the 1964-65 school year.

All children who live East of Pacific Avenue between Collins Road on the north and 114th Street on the south, who are presently attending Brookdale School, will attend the new Elmhurst Elementary School next fall. Mayfair children that are attending Parkland School will continue there next year.

All students south of 116th Street between Sheridan and Sprague will attend Brookdale.

The north boundary of Brookdale School between Park Avenue and Pacific Avenue will be 127th Street (both sides of the Street.)

All students living east of Pacific Avenue (between Pacific and East "D" Street) and from the district boundary on the north and 112th Street to the South, that have been going to the Christensen School will attend Brookdale School.

Those students that live between Park Avenue and Pacific Avenue between 109th and 112th Streets, will also go to Brookdale School.

"These changes are necessary if the children are to be adequately housed and the class loads be kept down to where a good teaching and learning situation can exist," Robert C. Richardson, Assistant Superintendent said.

Animal show attracts kids, assorted pets

Beaks, tails, ears, behavior and beauty will all be judged at the fifth annual Mutt and Small Animal Show at the South End Boys' Club athletic field, 4901 South Pine and the East Side Boys' Club, 614 East 64th Street Saturday, June 6th from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The show is sponsored by Tacoma-Pierce County Humane Society, South and East Side Boys' Club and South Tacoma Kiwanis Club. Prizes and free refreshments are donated by individuals and local business firms.

Children should be sure their pets are leashed, caged or held and not allowed to run. The show is limited to household pets only which disallows most farm animals. It is planned to sell the land at auction within the next ninety days, according to an announcement from the Park Department.

'God, Country' is theme for Bible school

Registration for Vacation Bible School will be held in the church, 4519 East 112th, Summit View, June 8th from 10:00 - 12:00 a.m.

This year's theme is "God, My Country, and I", a study of Christian citizenship, something lacking in today's society.

All children from 3 - 14 are welcome to attend. Bible study, singing, and the making of projects along with refreshments will be included in each day's activities.

Above all Our Saviors wants to help the children cultivate a deep understanding about their place in our society as young christians.

A preview of plans for Pacific Lutheran University's future expansion will highlight the next Parkland Development Association meeting at the Parkland Light & Water Building Monday, June 8 at 8 p.m.

"This will be a big chance for members and prospective members of our Association to get a glimpse of things to come in our fast-developing area," Program Chairman Sam Harris said. "PLU, in the past few years has grown beyond all expectations and found it necessary to make concrete long-range plans which they will share with us in an effort to assist us in making our own plans for expansion."

Clayton Peterson, Vice President and head of PLU's development program, will conduct a tour of the campus after a short business meeting. He will also give an illustrated talk using the University's electrified model of the campus which shows building locations and general plans for years to come.

"This unusual tour," Harris said, "is only the first of a series of programs being planned by the Parkland Development Association. All programs, he added, are being planned to get and give full information on all aspects of the area growth for the benefit of individuals and business organizations.

With the sale of a large portion of Spanaway Park land (see story elsewhere), an influx of new businesses and residents to the area is completely predictable, according to the Association. "It is imperative," Harris noted, "that Parkland area people plan ahead in order to be in a position to take advantage of expanded economic conditions when the chance arrives."

Harris urged all interested individuals and firms to attend this and the following monthly meetings of the Development Association in order to join forces with others who are working for a better area for business and living.

a - Wondering and a - Wandering . . .

With JACK BROWN

Now I know how a locomotive round house works. The iron work-horses just come in long enough to get cleaned up, turned around and off they go again. So it is with me. After spending two weeks banging around the country I now find myself hurrying to write this column, pack up and head east again. This time to the Indianapolis Auto Races and then to an aircraft plant in Indiana.

My last jaunt gave me some food for thought that I'd like to pass along to you. It pertains particularly to our friends in the golden years of their life, an inevitable position we shall all be in some day.

It would seem that industry wants only the younger men and women and, for the senior citizen with a little get up and go, it often becomes a chore to settle down to retirement. Many just can't sit around and start looking for some means of releasing their pent up energies and usually their thoughts drift to some sort of business enterprise.

Usually the restless woman, not content to sit and knit, thinks along the line of opening a baby shop or dress shop, for isn't this the very thing she is most familiar with? With this thought quite often a fatal step is taken that may well eat away all savings, for on a national basis the top businesses entering bankruptcy are baby shops, predominately being run by elderly women. Dress shops run a close second.

Let's see what the restless man is up to. Thoughts of going into business for himself or in partnership with his wife fill his mind. Usually gas stations, restaurants and the like enter his mind. Again a decision is about to be made that may not only wipe out the family savings but, as well, wipe out the zest for life this man once felt.

Again, statistics show that these businesses are the next runners up in bankrupting retired individuals.

Now, for the record, I can think of nothing more admirable than to see a man or woman, regardless of age, enter the business world, but on the other hand, is there anything worse than looking in on the great disillusion that more often than not follows the big step?

On this last trip, my first by land for quite some time, I encountered this deterioration of spirit en masse, for it would seem that the world must surely be full of retired people who have sunk their life's savings into some small business and now must grind away around the clock lest they lose all.

In Klamath Falls, my first stop, I entered a nice looking restaurant for dinner. No music. No talk. No laughter. The waitress seemed to be somewhere in her 70s or beyond. The dishwasher perhaps a few years younger. The cook, a young man with a bored look on his kisser.

The waitress handed me the menu and stood there, pencil in hand, without so much as a word. I asked her for a cup of coffee while I made up my mind and she lumbered off, looking every bit like the completely tired out old lady she was. Instinctively I felt sorry for her but couldn't help thinking that if she could just turn the corners of her mouth up instead of down it would improve her looks 100%.

I watched while she gave another customer the same silent treatment, saw her take back a load of dishes without so much as a word to the dishwasher and turn in a written order to the cook. I finally thought she might be dumb, but when I paid my bill she mumbled a "Thanks". This and nothing more.

Normally I wouldn't go back to that den of doom for all the tea in China, but the next morning, bright and early, curiosity got the best of me and I returned for breakfast. The scene hadn't changed, with one exception. Still the same tired waitress only with a clean uniform. The same tired dishwasher, but a new and equally bored cook.

The answer was obvious. Here, undoubtedly, was a man and wife who, instead of retiring had had the urge to keep going, bought a restaurant and were now working practically around the clock trying to make ends meet. Truly a sad sight to see. Surely the best thing they could do for their business would be to turn it over to someone else and not go near the place, for their tired, overworked, downhearted attitude must surely affect all others who entered, as it had me.

In Blythe, California, I ran into another situation. My air conditioner wasn't working so I raised the hood to have a look-see and found the belt was stretched until it needed replacing. I pulled into a garage and was met by a tired old gent, obviously disgusted with his very existence. I inquired as to the cost of replacing the belt and he said $3.50 so I told him to slip one on. He proceeded to remove the old one, answer the phone, pump some gas and putter around for about an hour doing a five minute belt change. When I went to pay him he had his pencil out and as he wet the tip with his tongue he mentioned labor. First he wrote down belt . . . $3.50 and then below put down labor and started to write $1.00. But on second thought he wrote over the $1.00 and made it $2.00. You could almost hear the wheels turning in his head. Here, he knew he had a sucker who would probably never pass his way again, yet perhaps not too long ago this man would have been glad to help out a traveler having trouble. Now, with a demanding landlord and a dwindling savings, it would seem that he must stoop to near robbery in order to survive. As he licked and re-licked the pencil before making the one over into a two I couldn't help but feel sorry for him. A decision not to rest in his twilight years was forcing him to do something obviously against his wishes.

Since I was obviously being taken, I just couldn't let it pass, but rather than object to a charge which would amount to $24.00 per hour according to the actual time involved, I decided to leave the old man to wrestle with his greed and his conscience instead of putting up a beef. I said, "My gosh, only $2.00 for labor. Boy, that's cheap. Out where I live that would have cost me at least $3.50." And so I drove off, leaving him with the thought that he probably could have taken me for more, and yet inwardly knowing that he did nothing to even earn any labor charge.

Later, in New Mexico, I stopped to rent a motel unit for the night and was met by an elderly lady who was so happy, it would seem, to have someone stop at her rather rundown motel, that she got quite excited about it. I asked her what her rates were and she said they started at $4.50 so I told her a $4.50 room was fine. I layed out a ten spot and she put out 50 cents in change and then said that she didn't have any one dollar bills. I could see a five spot in her till and mentioned that she didn't need any ones since she owed me $5.50 change. "No," she said, "I only owe you $4.50". I tried patiently to explain what my fourth grader would know, that $4.50 subtracted from $10.00 left $5.50 change that she owed me. The more I talked the more rattled she got and once again business inexperience and the great need to conserve every dollar reared its ugly head. At this point I was fast losing patience and was about ready to just take the $4.50 change and forget my dollar loss, when some character who could have been a son or even grandson poked his head out of the curtained front room and wanted to know what was going on and if I was some kind of con artist. I picked up my ten spot, told the old lady if she'd just plug her ears for a minute I'd explain to this joker where he could put the room and be on my way. I left feeling sorry for the old lady even though I felt I had been insulted. Instead of running a motel and getting ulcers she should have been in a position to enjoy life.

The following day I was out in Texas, hot and dry and running late, so instead of stopping to eat I felt that a bottle of beer and some salami or pepperoni would make a good snack while driving along. I pulled off the highway and stopped in front of a small grocery store. As I walked into the dingy, dark, hot and humid store I was met by another tired old lady. I asked her politely if she had a cold bottle of beer and some pepperoni. "Git," she fairly spat in my face, while pointing to the door. I must admit

To The Editor:

I wish to take this opportunity to thank you for your effort in alerting the people to the school redistricting plan as is being formulated by the Pierce County Committee on School District Organization. I have recently attended two meetings held by this committee and I find that it is the same old story as when I was a member of the original committee in 1941. A man from the state office first expounds the virtues of larger districts, then the county superintendent adds his bit along the same line, but always evading the fact that Mr. and Mrs. John Public will lose complete control of their schools for which they not only furnish the students, but ALL of the money as well. The men from the state office always want to make it sound as though they are giving you the money with which to build and operate your schools, but does the money not come out of our pockets in the first place, with their office having the allocation of same?

NOTICE

Daffodil Grandmothers Club will sponsor a rummage sale at the Graham Grange hall June 11, 12 and 13.

I never was so flabbergasted and at a loss for words in my life. I quickly pulled off my sunglasses, thinking she had mistaken me for someone else, but again she yelled, "Git! We don't cater to no drunks in this store." Well, I got, and a drunk I ain't, so I got mad. I stuck my head back in the door and said, "Lady, don't get mad at me. The man down the street said you sold beer here and also that you had some real cute dance girls in the back room." I heard some sort of screech from the old gal, as I slammed the door, that could have been as she fainted or else choked on her uppers. I climbed into the car, once again feeling sorry for a person of her type. Obviously she had somehow become entangled in trying to run a business with obvious good convictions about many things including the use of liquor, but had been unable to refrain from letting these same convictions hinder the progress of her business. It was too bad, because by the appearance of her store, she wasn't long for the business world.

In Cheyenne, after I had got back into the air, I met up with a tired old man, once retired, but now a cab driver. His, too, was a pitiful existence. From observation it would just seem that the world is full of tired old people in business who should have found some way to stay active and enjoy their remaining years without daily drudgery.

On the other side of the fence I met two perfectly marvelous people who had managed to retire and yet stay active thru pursuing their favorite hobbies. One man, aged 75, was a versatile comic, looked like he was fifty and obviously was enjoying every waking minute of life. He and his wife were just romping around the U.S. in a little old "cheapie" plane and having a ball.

Another oldtimer I met was pursuing his favorite hobby as well. At the young age of 84 he had just taken his wedding vows for the fourth time and was honeymooning with his 63 year old bride. All I can say is that if you are up in years and yet full of ambition, find some way to let off steam that won't completely wreck your health, and most important of all, your outlook on life. If you're still down the ladder in years you have a long time to decide on the proper course of action to take when the time comes to step out to pasture.

Well, now that I have been accused of being a con artist and a drunk, I shall take off again and see what happens. Who knows? This time I may even get thrown in the bucket. Then I can hold the title of jailbird as well. Such is life, but I sure wouldn't want to do without it. Like they say, "Growing old isn't so bad when you consider the alternative."

At the meeting held in the Franklin Pierce School I noted some mis-information being given the public. First, the Senate Resolution was termed "a mandate by the Senate", and all of us should realize that a resolution is not a mandate. Secondly, it was declared that after a non-high school district had failed twice to favorably vote financing with a high school district they would automatically be annexed. This again is mis-leading. The law states that "the committee shall give consideration to annexation". To me, it looks like an attempt to deceive the public.

I have known the chairman of the committee for many years and I know that he is honest and is concerned about our "one-world trend", yet I feel he is guilty for not correcting any false or misleading statements by the secretary or any member of the committee. He has been a member of this committee since 1947 and should certainly know the law. I do feel, however, that we, the public, should demand of the committee that its chairman publicize all meetings so that we can keep informed.

If we but look at the record of this committee, I think that you will agree that they have done a very good job on redistricting when you consider that the county had 69 school districts in 1941, and that now they are down to 19 at the present time. I can see the benefits of getting all districts into a high school district, but I feel that that is going far enough. Beyond that point, we not only lose control, but too many students lose the opportunity of participating in athletics, drama and other activities, which are beneficial in the making of well rounded citizens.

May I suggest that we call our legislators concerning this redistricting, as they are the ones who hold the key to this whole issue. You can be sure that none of them will want to lose votes by going against the people's wishes.

It is to be remembered that this committee has a most difficult task to perform, with its members having to drive many miles and putting in long hours to meet with little thanks, but lots of criticism, and once having been in their position I can sympathize with them. However, they should not lose sight of the fact that they are serving the public and are not just a rubber stamp for the state office.

May I suggest that you publicize the meeting of June 8th when final action is to be taken, and again, my thanks to you for informing us, the public.

A Second Look At . . . THE BUSINESS CLIME

by LARRY ROE

The idea of a state lottery, to reduce current property taxes and also create additional funds to meet ever increasing budget demands, is being met with mixed feelings throughout the state . . . and the nation. The suggestion was one of many presented to the newly-formed Job Corps recently, and comes at a time when increased budgets—both state and national—appear to have the taxpayer near the breaking point.

The method of obtaining funds through state-owned and controlled lotteries is as old as time itself, and is still widely used in some European countries, Mexico and South America . . . however, it is illegal in most of the United States and its territories.

In 1937-38, a small but influential group met defeat in their quest to legislate legalized state lotteries . . . using the attempt of the state of Massachusetts to raise money for old-age pensions via this means as their springboard.

The fact remains that by puritanical standards a lottery constitutes gambling, and since we are a nation dedicated to impeccable moral standards, we tend to outlaw any trend toward immorality . . . choosing to ignore the billions of dollars yearly that are poured into the "numbers rackets," "Irish Sweepstakes," and many others . . . billions of dollars that could help meet expanding budgets and help meet the increasing need for more and better educational facilities among other things.

Were there less than a trace of immorality in each of us I'd say our puritanical standards were justified . . . as it stands, I'm appalled at the millions we pour into lotteries of foreign nations . . . and at the billions we pour into the fat pockets of syndicated crime!

Human nature being what it is — I think it's time we give some serious thought to the obvious facts — and lest we forget, moral bigotry is about on the same level as immorality!

The national drive to greater spending as a means of bolstering the current economy isn't gaining near the momentum anticipated . . . and in some places has slowed to a walk.

Many things have popped up to create the current trend, but in effect, it appears the entire program may have been poorly timed . . . it's difficult to preach economic cutbacks out of one side of the mouth — and accelerated spending out of the other side . . . and besides that, it's just plain "damned confusing" to John Q. Public.

agricultural ALMANAC

Watering troughs for hard-working honey bees may soon be standard equipment for beekeepers, orchardists, and legume seed producers.

Jack Parsons, county Extension agent, said today that research agricultural engineers have come up with a design for such a facility. It will enable the honey makers and fruit and alfalfa pollinators to slake their thirst on a dry hot day without wasting work time to hunt for water.

Honey bees must have water to cool their colonies and to dilute their own honey food supply, he explained.

The watering trough will have another important function. It will reduce the hazard of bee stings or bad fright for small fry or farm livestock. Bees forced to search for a source of water sometimes buzz around the children's wading pool, the lawn sprinkler, or the livestock tank.

The bee waterer consists of a 2-inch thick sponge floating in a shallow galvanized steel pan, 3 to 4 inches deep.

A float device connected to the water system controls the water level in the pan. The float is the same type used in livestock watering tanks.

A canopy made of wood and plastic shades the sponge so it won't get dry and hard. The canopy also keeps out the rain in case of a hard spring or summer shower.

The sponge covers the pan surface and prevents the bees from drowning. It is similar to the regular household article.

Researchers have found that bees prefer sponges with large pores on warm days and with small pores on cool days.

The scientists offer this possible explanation for the bees' performances: Bees prefer larger pores on warm days because faster evaporation from these pores produces a cooler sponge surface. On cool days, the bees choose smaller pores because slower evaporation gives the sponge a warmer surface.

The researchers are now trying to determine the best location for the waterer in relation to the bee colony.

The studies are being carried on by Agricultural Research Service engineers at the Wisconsin and Arizona Agricultural Experiment stations.

Control of Lilac Leaf Miner

The blistered and rolled leaves that occur on lilac are caused by a small larva that feeds just under the surface of the leaf.

This insect is very destructive to lilac leaf and also ruins the appearance of the shrub. County Agent Jack Parsons reports that the lilac leaf miner is easy to control. A spray of DDT or Diazinon applied just as lilac blossoms

GOOD LANDSCAPE GROOMING

By Howard & Elaine Motteler

Easier Ways Of Caring For Flower Beds

Flower beds sometimes require more work than the gardener originally planned. Bare (unmulched) flower beds are difficult to maintain, require cultivating every ten to fourteen days to keep them clear of weeds. This is about the length of time it takes a new batch of weeds to germinate. The unmulched garden requires periodic raking of rocks, which work to the surface and are washed clean by watering. These rocks need to be raked out every three or four weeks. An advantage of the unmulched garden, however, is that the soil can be tilled during the dormant season to work in fertilizers and compost material.

We have found one of the easiest ways of providing cut flowers with a minimum of maintenance is to use annuals as borders in the vegetable garden. For the permanent flowers around the house and for landscaping affects we use evergreens and perennials. The shrubs present a green leafy appearance throughout the year. This type of bed is prepared the same as a bare ground garden bed and then mulched with fir sawdust about two to three inches deep. The mulch will require additional sawdust in a thin layer every year, or a heavier layer every other year to maintain it. If the mulch is maintained it will eliminate most of the weeding. Any grasses or weeds which do happen to grow shake out of sawdust much easier than out of dirt.

Where the gardener desires color accents such as geraniums, or nasturtiums, etc., in the mulched planting area, an opening may be made by raking aside the mulch and planting the desired seeds or small plants.

A little extra general purpose fertilizer will take care of any nitrogen withdrawal caused by the decomposing sawdust. This fertilizer can be sprinkled directly over the sawdust mulch.

through the animal's throat and mouth. A trocar and canula are instruments for providing direct discharge of gas from the rumen. Sticking with a knife is recommended only as a last resort in extreme emergencies.

Consult your local veterinarian about these possibilities and how to proceed before an emergency arises. When you need to take action, it is too late to ask for information.

GROUND BREAKING CEREMONIES on the site at East 138th Street near the entrance to Mayfair, according to the pastor, The Reverend Wesley J. Drummond.

Parkway Presbyterian plans ground breaking

Ground Breaking Ceremonies for the new Parkway Presbyterian Church will take place Sunday, June 7, at Noon on the site, which is located on East 138th Street, near the entrance to Mayfair. The service will be held immediately following the morning worship hour. The temporary meeting place of the congregation is the Parkland Masonic Temple. The new building will be erected on a four acre site and will include facilities for worship and Sunday School. The building was so designed that it can be enlarged when this is necessary.

The Ground Breaking Service will begin with an Invocation by the pastor, The Reverend Wesley J. Drummond. This will be followed by a Litany by the congregation. Ellwood Johnson, Chairman of the Building Committee, will bring a brief message on the subject:—"Why We Are Here." The actual ground breaking will follow with the Building Committee turning over the first shovels of dirt, to be followed by the Session, the children of the Sunday School, the young people and finally all the adults. The congregation will gather around the outline of the new building for the service. Congregational participation is encouraged in the breaking ceremony and it will give a more personal feeling to the entire service. It is expected the service will be concluded by 12:30 p.m. The congregation meets every Sunday in the Parkland Masonic Temple, which is located on East 134th St., just west of Pacific Avenue. Sunday School is at 9:30 a.m. with the worship hour at 10:45 a.m. Regular services will continue while the building is being erected.

Midland Bulletin Board

A visit to the Point Defiance Zoo, followed by a picnic and wiener roast, marked the last days of school activities for the children and mothers of the Midland Cooperative Playschool last week. A train trip to Centralia earlier this month will be remembered by the children as the outstanding field trip of the school year.

The Midland Cooperative Playschool also visited the Midland kindergarten twice, and participated in a regular Kindergarten class.

A limited number of openings are available for the coming school year. For further information or enrollment call Mrs. George Sheppard, LE 7-0507, or Mrs. Robert Hillstead, LE 7-4272.

The Midland Cooperative Playschool is a cooperative effort by responsible parents for the individual need of their children. The children attend 2-hour classes each Tuesday and Thursday at the Midland Scout Hall, under the supervision of the teacher and four participating mothers. Three car pools are operating in the Midland-Harvard area.

Adults will have teams for tourney

Plans are moving forward briskly for staging of the 36th year of play for adults in the Volley Baseball League under the sponsorship of the Pierce County Park Department.

Features of the 1964 season will see the tournament competition slated in August for the league champion.

All games will be scheduled so that each team has an equal number of home games.

Interested ball players are urged to contact the following managers: Darold Billings' Electric, JU 4-4344; Chuck Hobbs, Puyallup, TH 5-8512; Rex Bell, Spanaway, VI 7-7143; Scott Waddell, Orting; Special Services Office at McCord and Ft. Lewis.

Ten thousand to seek jobs as school ends

The State Employment Security Department is getting set to cope with thousands of young people who will be seeking jobs after the school year ends in June, John F. Gordon, Commissioner, said in Olympia.

Some 10,000 youngsters are expected to move into the labor market in June in this State. The state will register and interview the youthful applicants and contact agricultural and non-agricultural employers to find jobs for which the young people are suited. A great many of the applicants will be referred to farm jobs.

The Department has a six-point youth-employment program, including a cooperative effort with schools, a service for school dropouts, a Youth Employment Service set up in certain offices, a farm program to fully utilize youth. The Governor's Youth Employment Committee activities and service to selective service rejectees.

community will attend. The Club will furnish strawberry shortcake and there will be entertainment after supper.

4-H members to 'go to school' at WSU meeting

Some 800 older Washington 4-H members will become "students" at Washington State University during the second week of June, Frank Stowe, County Extension agent, reports.

The 4-Hers will be attending the annual State 4-H Conference from June 8 through 13. At the conference they will learn new leadership and program ideas to share with other 4-Hers in their club, community, and county.

The emphasis of the week will be on leadership and personal development. Delegates will have an opportunity to deepen their skills and understanding through classes offered in each of two interest groups.

The first interest group emphasizes leadership, citizenship, and careers. In this group delegates may choose to concentrate on Camp Counseling, Community Service, Know Your Government or 4-H Club program Planning. Or they may find a class on Careers, Economics and Business, Around the World, Building Confidence, or Our Favorite Food Martians more to their liking.

Our Favorite Food Martians class is designed to interest the delegates in food habits, food preferences, the importance of food, and how to plan a good diet.

The second interest area stresses personal development and recreation activities. It includes Band, Chorus and Song Leading, Recreation Leadership, Speaking to Groups, Personal Development, Tours, and County Representatives.

But not all time is devoted to classes. Fun comes in the afternoon with an opportunity to play volley ball, ping pong, tennis or bowling.

All of the delegates will be able to take tours of camp departments and research facilities.

Evenings are devoted to assemblies with lot of group singing and 4-H talent. The annual candle-lighting ceremony will highlight Friday night, the last night of conference.

Officers of new P-TA installed

The newly formed Franklin Pierce Junior - Senior High P-TA named Mrs. Kenneth Lampitt, president; Mrs. Les Doyle, vice president; Mrs. James Hartley Jr., secretary; Mrs. C. L. Stahl, treasurer. Mrs. Sidney Wood, president-elect of Franklin Pierce Council, installed the officers.

Mrs. James Samson, high school service chairman for the State P-TA, and Mrs. Donald Reed, president of the P-TA Council, assisted in the formation of the group. Plans are being made for new officers to attend the Leadership conference at U.P.S. June 17-18-19. The executive committee will meet June 10 to discuss preliminary plans for the group.

The guidelines published this May by the State P-TA for use of PTAs serving upper level grades will be used by the group. The guidelines call for a fall and spring business meeting only with other meetings devoted entirely to programming of interest to parents. Encouragement of student ideas and participation is also planned. The emphasis of the group is on programming for the instruction, information and inspiration of the parents and the community.

The Franklin Pierce P-TA Council gave a "birthday" gift to the group. Mrs. Algen Hampton assisted with presentation of the gift. Local elementary P-TA groups are also presenting token gifts of money to give the new group a starting fund. Those interested in active participation may call Mrs. Lampitt LE 1-0574 or LE 7-4215 after 4:30 p.m.

The Waller Road Word

Mrs. Vern Fogle

A special program of interest to all Grange families will be held June 5th at the Waller Road Grange. Carl Schuler, in charge of the literary hour, has arranged for Joe Herbert, a caller and teacher for the sub-teen square dance group, to present the group in a demonstration of their activities. Also included on the program will be a teen age club, "Tacoma Keen Teens," with their dances.

Mr. Herbert will take a group of young folks from the audience and instruct them in the first stages of square dancing to prove it's fun and easy. The program will begin at 9:15 p.m.

Garden Club
Waller Road Garden Club will be headed again this year by Mrs. George Oeh, as president, with Mrs. Rudolph Geise, vice president. Mrs. Sverre Indrehs is the secretary and Mrs. Woodrow Farrington, treasurer. This is a second term for all of these officers.

Under Mrs. Oeh's leadership, the club has grown to a membership of 41. Various projects have been undertaken by the club the past year including the plantings at the Waller Road school and additional plantings at the grange hall.

Luncheon
The Waller Road Grange auditorium was decorated with shades of lilac for the luncheon served by the grange ladies for last week's Maytime tour. The sun shone beautifully for the occasion and impressed the city folks with life on the farm or in the country.

Harold Olson and Ernest Hopp of the Rural-Suburban Council and Pierce County Pomona Grange were in charge of the program that followed the luncheon. The Matlock Farm buses were used in transporting the folks on the tour.

Emancipate Meet
Larry Geise and David Quell, Waller Road 4-H Boys Club members, participated in the Emancipate Spring Dairy Show recently. The boys showed registered Jerseys and came home with many awards. Larry won two red ribbons, David won one blue and one red. Also attending from this area were Mr. and Mrs. David Quell, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Geise, Mrs. Charles Bothwell, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McCown, Nicky and Andy McCown and Mrs. LaPierre.

Bad News
Mr. Woodrow Farrington has been confined to the hospital because of illness. Mr. Harvey Weeks, Sr., suffered an attack at his home and was transferred to the hospital last Sunday. He has been ill for the past year.

Mr. and Mrs. Earle Thompson, former Waller Road residents, are in California to attend funeral services for the brother-in-law of Mrs. Thompson.

Shrinks Hemorrhoids Without Surgery
Stops Itch - Relieves Pain
For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain -

Employers reminded of work permit necessity

With several thousand high school and college youth due soon to be seeking employment during the summer months, employers were reminded today by the State Department of Labor and Industries that Minor Work Permits will be required for a large number of these individuals.

Mrs. Evelyn Hylton, supervisor of the Division of Women and Minors in Industry, pointed out that work permits are required by law for boys and girls from 14 years of age through 17 in most work situations and in all jobs covered by state industrial insurance.

It is up to the employer, Mrs. Hylton said, to determine if minor work permits are required and to secure them. Permit applications may be obtained directly from the Department of Labor and Industries' Olympia offices or at any one of 16 offices maintained in Seattle, Everett, Mount Vernon, Bellingham, Tacoma, Spokane, Bremerton, Port Angeles, Olympia, Aberdeen, Longview, Vancouver, Wenatchee, Ephrata, Yakima and Kennewick. Permits can also be secured at a sub-office in Walla Walla.

Employers hiring youngsters are also reminded that they are to comply with the minimum wage law of $1.25 per hour as set forth by authority of the Industrial Welfare Orders covering employment of women and minors in industry. In some industries there is provision for special certificates to employ minors under certain circumstances at no less than $1.00 per hour for the first 480 hours in that particular industry. Applications for such certificates should be submitted with applications for minor work permits.

It is also suggested that employers be watchful to be sure the applications for minor work permits are properly completed and mailed to the Division, Mrs. Hylton said. Sometimes a boy or girl takes the application home for signature and forgets to see that it is mailed either via the employer or directly by the minor. The result is, since no permit can be issued, the employer is inadvertently in error for not having the proper work permit.

"Minor work permits are designed to benefit and protect both the employer and the employee," Mrs. Hylton said, "and we hope employers of the many minors employed this year, and the minors, too, will lend every effort to make available for themselves the full protection afforded them by the minor work permit system."

Council commends parents

The Franklin Pierce P.T.A. Council, at last week's meeting, adopted the following resolution commending foster parents in the Times Journal area:

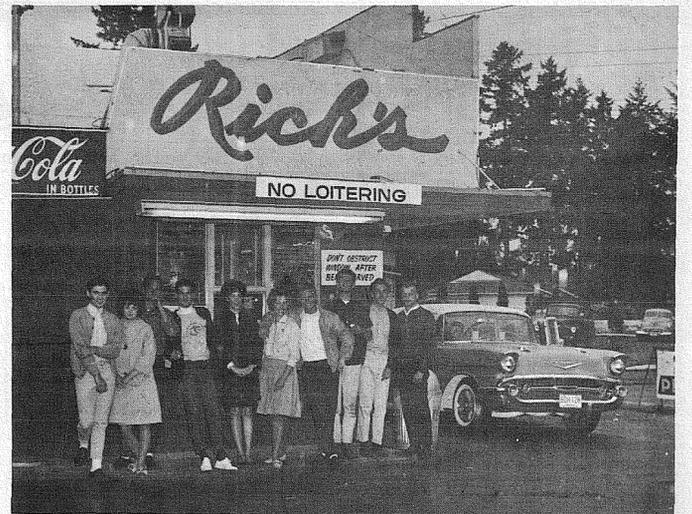

Proclamation: Know Ye all members of the community that many of our members and other community members render a valuable and essential service by opening their homes and hearts by being licensed foster parents.

In recognition and appreciation of the devotion these foster parents render to children and youth who are in need of temporary homes, we, of the Franklin Pierce School District Council of Parents and Teachers, commend these persons and encourage them to continue this useful and heartfelt service.

Cooperation of the Times Journal and local banks is being enlisted to draw this to the attention of the foster parents and the general public.

Gay gathering place

HIGH SCHOOL YOUNGSTERS are not the only ones who crowd the windows of Rich's Drive In for hot pizza, hamburgers, hot dogs, and dozens of other specialties. However, the youngsters' continual clowning keeps the atmosphere gay for Lula Wolfe and Guy Miller who own and operate the 112th and Park Avenue establishment and enjoy every minute of it!
