Scenic Wallpaper Adds Depth to Small Room

BY EDNA MILES

These days, inspiration for home decoration comes from many sources. One of the newest can be found in the big ocean liners that travel to far countries.

The new luxury ship, the SS Brasil, has a floor - to - ceiling mural of colonial Brazil in its library, done in black and white. It's a theme that can be copied in your home through use of one of the many mural or scenic wallpapers now on the market.

Some of these depict a diminishing vista, such as a South American coastline or a countryside showing mountains in the distance. Either of these will lend the illusion of space to a small room, making it look much larger.

Other tricks to be borrowed from the Brasil are sliding glass doors that bring the outdoors in, the use of blue and green as a color scheme suggesting water and sky and beige-white glass curtains on tracks to give a room coziness.

The subject of pensions for our war veterans is an the employment of Bill Rushton, extremely delicate one. If anyone suggests that we have diser, to head-up the new expanded gone too far in providing these benefits, even in the case Lumber department of that firm, up to the rear of the Federal Re- Or take Cleveland, close to Baltiof illnesses and disablements which did not arise from military service, he is in danger of being accused of heartlessness, and of putting the dollar above the flag.

Editor Francis Horrigan of the Park Rapids, Minnesota, Enterprise—a veteran of 46 months service with the Army Signal Corps, part of it on bloody Guadalcanalhas taken that risk. And what he writes is well worth reading and remembering:

"For the widows and orphans of the servicemen who didn't make it back home-let's do for them. And let's do, too, for the men who made it back, but not as whole men. Spend money for veterans' hospital services; pay compensation to those who were hurt—and pay, too, for lumber dealers in the Tacoma area needed rehabilitation programs.

"As for the remainder of the boys who donned a uni-wood Lbr., the necessary "knowform when the Nation was attacked, one can only ask how" to enlarge the service of this new division. The new yard, togeththose seeking pensions:

"'How do you figure you got a pension coming from greatly facilitate service to cust-Uncle Sam?'

"'Because I went to the defense of our Nation in time ware Co. are charter members of of War!' they might reply.

"To that there is but one answer:

"What you did, Mister, was go to the defense of your own neck, first of all-and those of your loved ones-and those of the rest of the Nation, in that order.

"The choice was made easy for you by Japan and to Canada from England 10 years

"You—and every other G.I.—could have sat it out. here again, saying: "Old friends But you'd soon have been on a diet of rice-with no pen-in England had dispersed, taxes sion, most likely, from either Hirohito or Hitler.

"Or you could—as you did—join with those selected to serve with you in defense of our Nation—and thus, with the help of God, save your own neck-and those of your hospital bed - operated by pushloved ones.

"And that's the way it was, Mister—just as simple as olic Hospital Association. that."

We Americans take the competitive, free enterprise electric pushbuttons. system for granted. It would be a good thing if we could button and the huge wheels reall spend a little time in a country where government owns volve until the bed asumes a veror runs everything, where competition is non-existent, and walk away. Push other buttons and the consumer can like it or lump it. the bed assumes other positions.

In an article appearing in Ethyl News, Thomas L. Riley, a widely-traveled writer and photographer tells of Western Hemisphere is in St. service stations without service. The scene is Moscow. Ann's, Nova Scotia. It's a huge city, in the 8 million population bracket. But there are only a handful of service stations—and they operate strictly on a do-it-yourself principle. The buildings are mostly dilapidated. The pumps are antiques, by U.S. standards. And the customers do their own pumping —the attendants are just there to take the rubles.

The gas is of low quality, and it costs about $1 a gallon. Motor oil isn't sold where the gas is sold—you have to go to special stations to buy that, and for lubrication, and other services.

So, as Mr. Riley puts it: "... while millions of American motorists are enjoying the advantages of clean, fullyequipped service stations, manned by cheerful, welltrained attendants, the Russian has no choice but to put up with inferior products, high prices and no service." That is inevitable—in the case of gasoline or anything else—when the government is the boss and competition is outlawed.
