City Fathers Parkland Tax Sisters To Annex Says Mayor

A highly controversial City Ordinance now appears particularly embarrassing to those who wish the image of the City to include concern for the unfortunate.

St. Ann's Home, now in the process of organizing a Fund Drive must pay a license fee of $1,000.00 for permission, according to Leo Gallagher, a leader of the effort. "What this amounts to is", he said, "adding abuse to, and jeopardizing the chances in life for children already unfortunate, many emotionally disturbed, others abandoned or neglected by parents. The Sisters of St. Francis have cared for such children without financial regard or profit for many years. Their tender, loving care has contributed immeasurably to the shaping of many good citizens here. Their operation has merited approval and support of the United Good Neighbors of Pierce County."

"Ironically enough the very effort now being handicapped by the Ordinance was necessitated by requirements imposed by officials, back in 1951. Fire safety regulations demand that the facilities be replaced by October 23, 1970 or that operations be discontinued. Furthermore, collection of this fee is unprecedented in Tacoma. Although it is considered exorbitant and unreasonable, payment has been made, Mr. Gallagher said. "This is being done, however, under the strongest protest, and refund will be expected should the Council adopt a more enlightened and progressive attitude", as he hopes. In the meantime, the urgent need for immediate mobilization to save the home makes submission unavoidable, the announcement concluded.

When you give to the Lions Sight Conservation fund during White Cane days April 4th and 5th you will receive a miniature white cane to wear with pride and to remind another they too can help. Look for the Lion in your community with the White Canes. Then give generously to help establish the sorely needed Eye Bank at the University of Washington Hospital. The suburban areas of Lakewood and Parkland will be annexed by the City of Tacoma, with action being taken by Tacoma as early as July, Mayor A. L. Rasmussen was quoted as saying by a Lakewood man Monday.

Lakewood Unlimited board of directors were told that Rasmussen made such a prediction Monday night by Boyd Lundstrom, president of the group. He said the Tacoma mayor made the statement on a radio program last week.

Rasmussen later confirmed his prediction in a talk with Lundstrom, and told him the city definitely would take action in July. Mayor Rasmussen could not be reached when Times Journal reporters attempted to secure verification of the Lakewood Unlimited report.

The City Manager's Office states there is no provision in state law which would permit a city to annex an area without its permission.

Tax Exemption For Senior Citizens

After adopting two amendments offered by Senator Joe Stortini (D-Tacoma), the Senate today passed legislation raising to $100 the exemption granted senior citizens from taxes on real property.

Senator Stortini had the bill amended so that persons 62 years of age would qualify for the tax exemption, and those renting small apartments would also be included in the act.

The senior citizen would have to have occupied the home for five years preceding the tax year for which the exemption is claimed, and be the owner. If the person claiming the exemption is a male, he must be 62 years or older on February 15 of the year the exemption is claimed. He also must be totally disabled or retired under a public or private pension plan, and have earnings of $3,000 per year or less. If the person is married the combined income of the couple also cannot exceed $3,000.

As enacted in 1967, the exemption was limited to the first $50 of the real property tax. The 1969 act is sponsored by Senator Martin J. Durkan (D-Issaquah) and is Senate Bill No. 1 of this session.

THIS 1959 OLDSMOBILE HARDTOP rests totaled against a tree at the intersection of 22nd Avenue East and 208th Streets Saturday. The vehicle, driven by Johnnie L. Pierce, 19, of 515 So. 34th, left the road and smashed into the large fir near the right-of-way.

PASSENGERS IN THIS 1969 Mustang narrowly escaped serious injury when the vehicle ran into the path of a fully loaded dump truck at 168th and East "B" Sunday afternoon. The skids in the foreground were left as the driver of the truck, Robert Sulkosky of Puyallup, locked his brakes in an effort to avoid the Mustang driven by William Felter Jr., 22, of Tacoma. Evidence at the scene indicated that the difference between a severe accident and this minor traffic incident was measured in split seconds. If the impact had occurred a fraction of a second sooner the huge truck would have driven over the passenger vehicle.

HERE THE 1951 Dodge sedan of Linda Orth, 17, of Tacoma rests in the ditch after it collided with a 1957 Dodge van driven by Henry T. Peters, 46, also of Tacoma early Monday evening at 120th and Waller Road.

5th Grader Gives Legislative Impressions

By Karolyn Krell

Monday, February 17th, the fifth grade class of the Chester Thompson Elementary School visited the Washington State capital. First they went out and walked around the beautiful building. They passed the governor's house and saw the guards walking around it.

Then we went into the rotunda. We were amazed to see the ceiling of 145 feet high. The chandelier weighed six and one-half tons. Looking down, you could see the Washington State seal - in bronze - put into the floor.

Then we went to the reception room. There we saw one of the largest seamless rugs in the world. The chairs were called "Martha Washington" chairs, because they were decorated with her print.

We went to the House of Representatives. There are 99 Representatives from which there are two from our district.

I thought the most interesting thing there was the "tote board". The board would put each of the Representative's votes on it; green "for" and red "against". Then we had the opportunity to have Representatives Bottiger and Gallagher talk to us.

Next on our tour was the Senate. There are 49 members of the Senate. Most of us by this time were getting quite hungry but paid as good attention as possible.

Finally we went to eat lunch on the capital steps. We ate and ate until we could eat no more, and then went on to the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court was very interesting. There were five Justices sitting behind a long table. They were arguing a case at the time. Each of our groups had only about five minutes in the courtroom because we were so short on time.

After this we boarded the bus and headed toward home.

Parkland Moose Plan Dance Benefit

Parkland Moose Lodge 1814, in honor of Mooseheart renovation, is holding a benefit Dance commencing at 9:30 p.m. March 29th Saturday Night at the Clover Creek Grange Hall located 4 1/2 miles East on 159th to Knoble Road.

Colonel Ward, the entertainment Chairman has announced that the evening will be highlighted by one of the finest Western Bands in this area and requests all those attending to dress in a Western Fashion.

A benevolent gesture can be made by those planning to attend by their mere appearance to honor such a fine home in Mooseheart, Illinois.

It's the LAW

PRESENTED AS A PUBLIC SERVICE BY THE WASHINGTON STATE BAR ASSOCIATION

When parents divorce, the courts "award" children to the parent who the judge believes can take the best care of them. In deciding, the judge considers the child's age, the parent's ability, the child's preference, and other things. If one parent is "unfit," the court will not award him or her the child. In rare instances, the court may award a child to someone besides a parent, perhaps another relative or to an institution.

The parent who does not have custody can visit his child as a matter of law. A court may detail his rights, but they should be "reasonable."

In unusual cases the judge

may take back these rights. For example, in one case a court denied a father the right to visit his son because a court had convicted him of non-support. Besides, he had threatened to take the child out of the state.

But just because the parents live far apart does not bar a child from visiting his parent. In one case, a court allowed a father living in South Africa a visit of his daughters for six weeks each summer. The father had made satisfactory guarantees to return the children.

To interfere with visitation rights is punishable as contempt of court. For example, a father could visit his children twenty-six weekends and four weeks of summer, plus the right to telephone them every day. But after a while, their mother secretly moved the children to another state to keep the father from visiting them. The court held her in contempt of court.

The court grants visitation rights only to the parents, and these rights do not go to other relatives.

Even when a parent is denied visitation rights by the other parent, or has them limited by the court, he still has the legal duty to continue to support the child.

In a recent case the court awarded custody of a child to his father. The child was ill, and incurred many medical bills. The court ordered the mother, who was wealthy, to make support payment for the child. Her failure to pay violated the court's order. The courts expect that the parents, although divorced, will make every effort to avoid conflicts that will effect the children.

Bethel Uses Tacoma Facilities In Move to Expand Services

GEORGE FOSSEN, BETHEL DIRECTOR of Pupil Personnel Services, and Les Nelson, right, principal of Tacoma's Seward Elementary School, discuss the future of Bethel's cooperation in the Tacoma Handicapped Program. Basically a State Supported Program, the Bethel share of $21,000 is used to educate Bethel students at the larger and more complete Tacoma facilities. Bethel Photo

Vikings First State Pioneers?

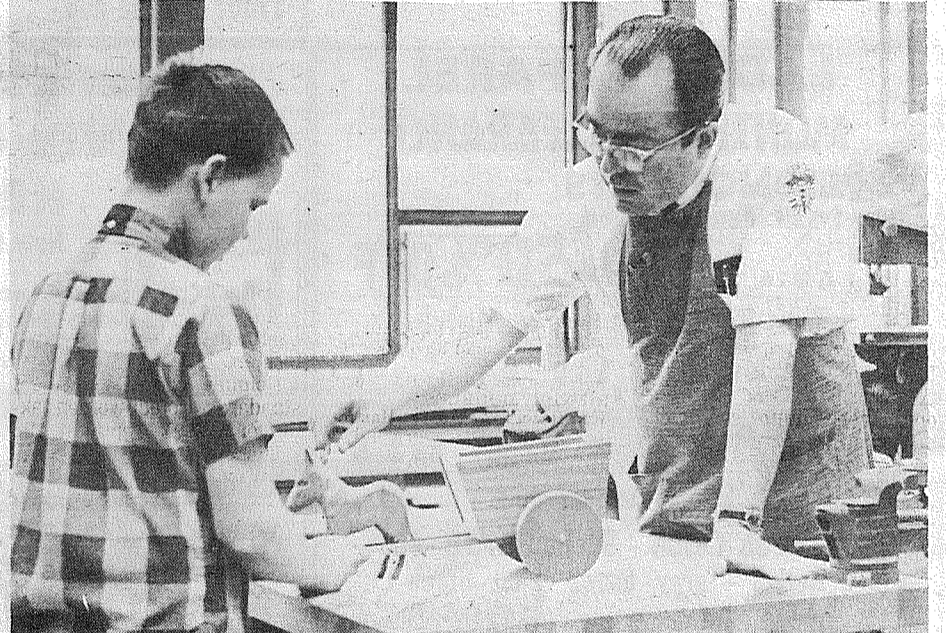

Is there a valid case for the contention that Norsemen explored in the Pacific Northwest as early as 1010 A.D.?

According to runic inscriptions found on boulders near Spokane and others in Grant County, there were Vikings in the Northwest at that time.

Add this fact to the explorations in eastern North America by Eric the Red and his son Leif, and you have the reason why some historians contend that this country should be called the United States of Erica.

All these facts are revealed in the "History of Washington and the Pacific Northwest," a newly-revised course offered by the University of Washington Division of Correspondence Study.

Herman J. Deutsch, Professor Emeritus, Washington State University, wrote the study guide for the course which satisfies the Washington state teacher certification requirement for a course in Washington history. Prof. Deutsch, a leading regional historian, recently completed an article on Northwest history for the Encyclopedia Britannica. Ronald Ard of the UW will serve as instructor for the course.

For complete information about this course, or a bulletin listing more than 200 other courses, write to: Correspondence Study, 203 Lewis Hall, University of Washington, Seattle, Washington 98105.

Chief Reiser Grand Marshal

Tacoma Fire Chief James Reiser will be grand marshal of the Junior Daffodil Parade April 5.

TV personalities Miss Margaret and Brakeman Bill will also appear, and a band from Fort Lewis will provide musical support.

Parade Chairman Mrs. Larry Saxon said that more than 800 entries have been received to date. "Deadline for entries is March 17," she said, "and we hope children will pick up their entry forms at Daffodil Headquarters in the Winthrop Hotel before then."

Entries may be made in three non-competitive divisions: pets, costumes and vehicles.

A FORUM ABOUT MATURE WOMEN

Rattling Around

Dear Miss Brookfield:
I woke up the other day to realize that we've been tied to a house that's much too big for just my husband and me. Our children have grown up and moved away to raise families of their own. The more I think about it, the more sensible it seems to move into a smaller place. I've even considered moving to an apartment. Although the idea appeals to me, I'm so tired all the time that I find the thought depressing and overwhelming. I don't know if, once I make a move, I'll be happy with it. Have you any suggestions?
S.L., Danbury, Conn.
Dear S.L.:

The woman whose children have moved away from home finds herself facing many changes. Sometimes the symptoms of the menopause increase these difficulties. Medical authorities say it's especially important for the woman in her second forty to have regular medical check-ups. (Your doctor may prescribe hormone therapy to alleviate the most difficult menopausal symptoms.) Once you're feeling better physically, you'll probably find it a lot easier to face making a move.

We also asked interior decorator Betty Cavallon, of the American Institute of Designers, for advice for older couples moving into smaller quarters. She said it's important to analyze your furniture carefully. Remember, you'll need fewer and smaller pieces of furniture. She also said that people who make such a move tend to live and entertain less formally than in the past. So you'll probably find that you don't need quite so much household equipment in this next phase of your life.

Although any change from the known to the unknown can be frightening, most women who make this move find it very gratifying. They have more time and energy to devote to their new interests. Good luck and much happiness in your new home.

Red-faced

Dear Margaret:
I used to be proud of my complexion and now I find myself at age 43 with a skin problem I never thought I'd have. My skin has become increasingly sensitive. Lately my face gets red and irritated when my husband kisses me — if he hasn't had a shave a short time before. And it stays red and blotchy for a long time afterward. Now I ask him to shave before he comes to bed — you can imagine how that pleases him! But I figure it's a choice between which gets irritated — my face or his temper. What's happening to my skin? Is this usual for women my age? Please answer soon so my husband will know I'm not just a kook.
M.R., Idaho
Dear M.R.:

Authorities in the beauty field state that as a woman gets older, her skin tends to get thinner and does become irritated more easily. Daily use of a soothing enollent may help ease the irritation. If the problem persists, a skin specialist would be the proper person to help you.

Health Penny Payne To Marry

CHILD SPACING PART OF CHILD BEARING

Detroit, Mich. (WMNS) — Child spacing is an essential part of healthy child-bearing, according to Dr. Helen M. Wallace, chairman of the division of maternal and child health at the University of California School of Public Health, Berkeley.

"Child spacing is an important factor in the outcome of pregnancy," she told a meeting of the American Public Health Association. It affects prematurity, maternal and infant mortality, child care, and the quality of family life.

Family planning services, she said, should be integrated with hospitals' after-birth care, adolescent and college health programs, premarital health examinations, and health programs for working women.

Pointing out that medical standards protect women taking oral contraceptives, Dr. Wallace suggested that similar standards should be drawn up for all other contraceptive methods.

Among the prenuptial parties being held locally and in Seattle for Miss Judith Lynn (Penny) Payne, was a festive bridal luncheon held on Sunday, March 16th, in the home of Mrs. Leo Gaume.

Assisted by Miss Lynette Gaume, old friends and former neighbors of the bride-elect, were entertained at a buffet table gayly decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and matching tapers. Miscellaneous shower gifts were presented to the bride-to-be to wish her well in her forthcoming marriage to Mr. Everett Roysse of Seattle.

Present were the honored guests, Miss Penny Payne, and her mother, Mrs. Barton Payne, two aunts of the bride, Mrs. Mary Tomich and Mrs. James Payne; Miss Dixie Payne, cousin of the bride, also Mesdames Howard Hagen, Kenneth Pate, Walter Ebinger, George Stephenson, Carol Colton, Mel Pedersen and daughter, Mrs. Lee Covell, and hostesses Mrs. Leo Gaume and the Misses Dixie Payne and Lynette Gaume.

WOMEN'S WORLD

What Women Are Asking

By ELIZABETH STEWART
Women's Medical News Service

New York (WMNS) — Doctors who have been investigating what the commercials call "stomach upset" pooled their knowledge at a recent New York Academy of Sciences conference on what they called gastrointestinal gas and flatulency.

Contrary to popular belief, bloating is not due primarily to "acid indigestion." Swallowing air accounts for 70 percent of gastrointestinal gas. Only 30 percent comes from bacterial fermentation and the degeneration of food residues.

But it is quite true that indigestion may be connected to hurried dining or dinner table arguments. Dr. J. Edward Berk of the University of California at Irvine said people usually swallow excess air when they are eating too quickly or when they are emotionally disturbed.

The average abdominal gas content for a young man of average weight is more than one quart but the amount varies from person to person, and according to what you eat. A diet high in pork and beans, one study showed, increased the carbon dioxide content of the gas by 50 percent. Navy, lima, and soy beans can be gas-producing.

A VIEW FROM THE EAST

New York (WMNS) — Although an older generation of East German doctors still clings to the view that birth control is harmful and immoral, family planning is now available to all women, Dr. K. H. Mehlman of the University of Rostock told a recent interviewer from "Medical Tribune."

The physician, who is also chief administrative officer of East Germany's family planning clinics, estimated that, in his country, eight percent of all fertile women use oral contraceptives and one percent use intrauterine devices. Every woman is free to choose her preferred method of birth control barring medical complications. Dr. Mehlman praised the principle that every woman should have the freedom to decide whether she should or should not have a child at a particular time.

Opponents of family planning, he said, have inherited views from "the period 1932 to 1945."

THERAPEUTIC WOMAN-TALK

New York (WMNS) — An unknown woman-visitor, chic and charming, can make the difference between despair and hope to a woman who has just had a breast surgically removed.

Sent by the patient's doctor a few days after the operation, the visitor brings along several pamphlets designed to counter the shock of the disfigurement. What the visitor really offers, however, is her own example. She, too, has suffered the loss of a breast.

The visiting program is sponsored by Reach to Recovery, a voluntary non-profit organization dedicated to helping women who have had breast surgery.

"I've personally known about 250 patients who have been helped by these visits," says Dr. Eugene Friedman, associate professor at the Mount Sinai School of Medicine of the City University of New York, who has worked with the organization since 1953. "The great charm of the volunteers is that they confine themselves to woman talk."

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice and help write to Margaret Brookfield, Information Center on the Mature Woman, 3 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

We have an up coming Quarter Horse show scheduled for the 19th and 20th of May. Marie Hayes will be the horse show secretary. It will be held at the Tacoma Arena.

I attended the Sterling Stables Jackpot in Woodinville Sunday. Wynette Russell won the average in Barrel Racing while Terry Bussy of Port Orchard was second. Calf Roping and Team Roping were also included. They had a chicken Scramble after the events which was enjoyed by the children.

I was just informed that Spokean will hold its Diamond Spur Rodeo on the 12th and 13th of April. So if any local barrel racers plan to attend, they must have their entry fee in by the 10th.

Family Horse Festival Night, that was held Saturday night March 22nd, found nearly eighty horses and riders present at the first session sponsored by the Tacoma Unit No. 1 sports arena on 176th street in Spanaway.

It was a night of fun for the entire family. With the mothers and fathers cooperation the children were able to eat a variety of foods available during the events.

Contestants of all sizes took part in the ten events. With the judges advising and coaching, many newcomers were able to feel at ease and informal.

Four remaining sessions will take place on March 29th, April 5th, April 26th, and May 10th. 5 p.m. is now the designated time for open riding with the events starting at 6 p.m.

To date the high point Junior is Jack Wulfekuhle and the high point Senior is Debbie Bauderer.

Cubed Alfalfa Saves Money

Less waste, more weight gain, lower handling costs. These added up to a $6.09 per ton saving in costs in a recent California experiment comparing baled and cubed alfalfa hay as feed for sheep, Frank C. Jackson county Extension agent, said today.

Results of the experiment indicate substantial savings from the cube feeding, Dr. William E. McReynolds, Washington State University Extension livestock specialist, reports.

The study involved twenty pairs of ewes and lambs over a 46-day period. The lambs were one day old at the start. Ten of the ewe-and-lamb pairs were fed on one-and-a-quarter inch cubes; the other half on baled alfalfa. The cubes and bales were taken from alternate windrows to insure uniform quality of the hay.

Both groups were fed daily in feed bunks exposed to the weather. As waste feed built up, it was removed to another feed bunk out of the weather, but where the ewes still had access to it.

At the end of the 46 days, the ewes which were fed the baled alfalfa had lost one half pound per head, while the ewes fed cubes had gained 4.4 pounds on the average. This, in spite of the fact that it took the cube-fed ewes about five days to get used to the cubes and to eat the same amount offered as the bale-fed group. The lambs in the cube-fed group gained 23.2 pounds during the 46-day period, while those fed baled hay gained 21.7 pounds.

The bale-fed group refused 16.4 per cent of the feed, as compared to 5.9 per cent for the cube-fed pairs. The difference in waste alone, with a price of $29 per ton for 90 per cent dry hay, accounted for $3.05 per ton, Dr. McReynolds noted. The other $3.04 per ton savings resulted from lower costs in handling, hauling and storing.

The savings can be figured another way, the livestock specialist pointed out. If lambs are worth 25 cents a pound and ewes 6 cents a pound, one ton of cubes produced $3.56 more meat value than the one ton of baled alfalfa. The study was a limited one, Dr. McReynolds cautioned, and cost studies of various other ranch situations, are needed for further evaluation of the economic benefits of cubed alfalfa over baled.

Spring Cleanup Promotes Animal Health

Spring cleaning around the farm is important to the health of livestock, Eddie Thomason, county Extension agent, reminds farmers.

While the lady of the house is turning out cupboards, scrubbing, painting, waxing, polishing, and generally getting her domain in spic and span order, it's time for a general clean up of farm buildings and lots.

Removing the winter's accumulation of trash, manure, and general litter will go far toward getting rid of conditions where disease germs multiply and spread, advises Dr. Roy Hostetter, Washington State University Extension Veterinarian.

"Germs live and reproduce in wet, dirty barns and lots," he noted. "Sunlight and drying are the natural enemies of bacteria which carry many livestock diseases." Many diseases are spread by carrier animals which harbor an infection although they do not appear sick, he added. Good sanitation and cleanliness can prevent a build-up of these germs, which might cause an outbreak of the disease.

Disease among farm animals the veterinarian warned, can easily turn a profitable venture into financial disaster. Time spent in cleaning buildings, hauling trash, and draining barn lots can be translated into profit.

Cattlemen Meet

An important date in coming up for the members of the Pierce County and King County Cattlemen's Association March 28, 7:00 p.m. at Ivan's Restaurant on the River Road for an evening of fun and good fellowship, reminds Frank C. Jackson, Pierce County Extension agent. Your Pierce County Cattlemen's Association is sponsoring this no-host event, for members and their wives.

Ray William of Enumclaw is just back from his International Farm Youth tour of Ceylon and will show his slides and tell of his experiences this past year.

Mickey Stewart, W. C. A. executive Secretary, will tell a little about how cattlemen work together to solve problems and improve income.

Call Kenneth J. Scholz, President of Pierce County Cattlemen's Association, for reservations at TH 5-2561.

Eatherton DHIA Leader

For the second consecutive month the dairy herd of Harold Eatherton, Buckley, is the leader in the Pierce County DHIA summary for the month of February, announces County Agent Eddie Thomason. Eatherton's herd of 24 Holsteins averaged 47.6 pounds of milk and 1.89 pounds of butterfat per cow per day.

Honor roll leaders for cows completing lactations in February are: 2 year old — No. 38, a grade Holstein, owned by Robert Wallin with 20,042 pounds of milk and 672 pounds of butterfat; 3 year old — No. 176, a grade Holstein owned by Pete DeVries, Orting, with 18,226 pounds of milk and 660 pounds of butterfat; 4 year old — No. 85, a grade Holstein owned by Robert Wallin, Orting with 22,402 pounds of milk and 873 pounds of butterfat

PLU Soph To Represent LCA

A Pacific Lutheran University sophomore is one of two from the United States selected to represent the Lutheran Church of America at the Fifth Lutheran World Federation Assembly next year.

Steven M. Larson, 19, from Hopkins, Minn., will attend the assembly in Porto Alegre, Brazil July 14-24, 1970.

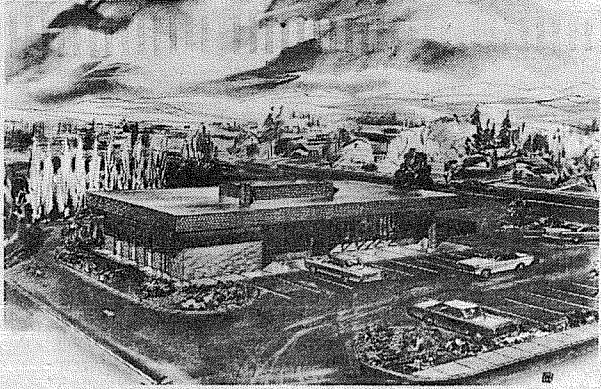

The assembly last held in 1963, will convene at the Federal University of Rio Grande de Sul under the banner theme, "The Challenge of a Hungry World."

"A conference prior to the general assembly will be concerned exclusively with world hunger and a solution to the problem," Larson said. "I hope to take part in the formulation of some strategy to combat the problem of world hunger and through the meeting with other students, to gain a better understanding of the global relevance of the problem."
