Hats In The Ring

The following statement was issued by Delbert M. Bresemann on behalf of his candidacy for election to the position of Justice of the Peace, Position 3 in the Tacoma District: I have been a practicing Justice of the Peace in the Spanaway-Parkland area for the past 24 years. I have made a career of service in the JP field, and am both humble and proud that the voters of my community have elected and re-elected me six times to serve as their Justice of the Peace.

Now that the JP system has been reorganized by legislative action, I would deeply appreciate the opportunity to continue my work as a Justice of the Peace in position 3 of the Tacoma District. I was the youngest man ever elected to serve as a JP in the State of Washington, and have never had a decision reversed on appeals to the higher courts during my entire 24-years of service. I believe that lawyers and their clients are entitled to a decision without long periods of waiting, and have made it a policy to expedite the settlement of cases. The records of JP court operations confirm my activity in processing cases to come before me. I have always made myself available to attorneys, plaintiffs and defendants alike, welcoming consultations and listening to possible extenuating circumstances that might develop a better understanding of the problems than the impersonal evidence of the courtroom. I was the first Justice of the Peace in Pierce County to institute night court sessions. I do not believe that a working man should be forced to lose a day's pay in order to appear in court on some minor charge. I am 48 years of age, was born and raised in Tacoma and am a graduate of both Pacific Lutheran University and the University of Puget Sound. My grandfather settled here in 1873, and the family established Bresemann Park in 1910, a recreational area which was recently acquired by the county. If elected to office, I pledge a continuation of the policies that have so long been approved by members of the legal profession and the voters of my community.

Temper gets you into trouble. Pride keeps you there. Anonymous

Again last week the left turn situation rose up on Pacific Avenue with at least two accidents directly attributable to the problem. I came very close to being involved in one of the crashes, in fact, some flecks of paint were left on the bumper of my car. The other accident involved six vehicles, two of them large trucks. In talking to State Patrol officers about the problem, their consensus is that ALL left turns off a highway such as Pacific Avenue should be abolished. This of course will not happen as long as there are drivers wishing to get from one place to another. It would seem that all of us need the common sense and courtesy that we use in everyday living when we get behind the wheel of that vehicle we are herding down the road. And many of us "herd" a car instead of driving it. This question has been asked before, but needs to be asked again. "Why in the world would any nor-

September Election Asks 3.5 Park Mills

Twin goals of land for new County Parks plus improvements on parks already in existence have been set by Pierce County's Commissioners in a special millage election September 11. Because of the thousands who flock to the parks in the County and because this demand for recreation is increasing daily, the Commissioners are asking for one million dollars in the special election.

The levy, if approved, will be approximately 3.5 mills and would be for one year only. The total cost for most home owners at this rate would run somewhere between $8 and $12. The Commissioners stressed that this is a one-year levy and not a bond issue. All money would go for capital improvements. Approximately half would be used to buy land for new parks. The Commissioners feel this part of the plan is an emergency because everyday, more land goes under private control and is lost to the public forever. This past year alone, the Commissioners were approached at least six times with suggestions and proposals to buy specific pieces of land for public use. Each time they had to pass up the opportunity because of lack of funds. Each year of delay in a new park program such as this is costly, for the price of land is constantly going up. If the delay is too long, the land ceases to be available at any price. The other half of the money will go for such things as beach improvement, athletic fields, bathhouses, picnic and camping areas, water systems, toilet facilities and roads. Anyone who has visited some of the ancient rest rooms at some parks will agree these improvements are necessary. The Commissioners want the present parks to be clean, fresh places for recreation. The complete plans call for this work spread throughout the County so that all areas benefit. This is true both in the buying of lands for new parks and in the fixing up of existing facilities. This need has also been recognized on a national level. The Outdoor Resources Recreation Review Commission, which was started under President Eisenhower and concluded under President Kennedy, tells of this emergency in detail. Secretary of the Interior Stewart Udall told delegates at the recent World Conference on Parks in Seattle, "In an era of noise and pollution and jostle and blight, it is not hard to predict that our children will place as high a value on the right of solitude in the out-of-doors and the right of access to places of natural beauty as they now accord to the right of free speech and the right of trial by one's peers. Pierce County's Commissioners feel this emergency is on us now, but that we in the Pacific Northwest are still in a position to preserve some of these areas for ourselves and our children.

mally polite human being away. No thought is given step behind the wheel of a 2-ton lethal instrument and immediately shed all his courtesy, common sense and even his sense of justice? What makes monsters of us when we are aiming this huge bullet down a narrow lane of traffic when the ultimate loss of control, both physical and emotional, can only lead to injury and death? Granted there is a sense of power there---but as rational human beings we should be aware of that. The problem is not one power and take control of it and not let it control us. In many cases along our highways, the person making the left turn is completely legal, but it is the fellow two or three cars behind who has his brain disengaged and locked who causes the trouble by a simple lack of perception of an appalling lack of awareness of what is going on around him. The ability to plan ahead, trying to get where we're going without killing ourselves or other people.

New Books

The Midland branch of the Pierce County Library received a shipment of new books from County Library Headquarters on July 30. A number of new and interesting titles were included in this group. Portrait in Brownstone by Louis Auchincloss is the history of a large New York family and the internal maneuverings for power by its members. This is definitely the way a certain society talks and moves, takes its pleasures and defeats. Aldous Huxley's The Island tells the story of a distant paradise invaded by the greed and corruption of modern-day man. The famous Greek writer, Nikos Kazantzakes, has conjured a compelling and beautiful figure in his novel, St. Francis. In a rush of glittering cleverness, Iris Murdoch tells about love -- its cousins and second cousins -- in her new book, An Unofficial Rose. For those who like a bright funny literary romp, Una Troy's Esmond is it. These are just a few of the many new fiction titles. There is also a large group of new adult non-fiction as well as many childrens in the Midland Branch at Taylor and Blackwell.

Miss Betty Vick Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Johnson of Tacoma, and Wayne Lawrence Cooley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cooley of Spanaway, were united in marriage August 10th in lovely candlelight services at Mountain View Baptist Church. Reverend Donald Leach officiated at the double-ring ceremony performed before the white gladiolabanked altar. The bride, escorted down the white carpeted bridal aisle by her father, wore a floor length gown designed with a fitted bodice, full skirt and tiered brush train. Tiny applied seed pearls accented the sweetheart neckline and trimmed the points of the long tapering sleeves. Her illusion veil was held in place by a crown of seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of snow white orchids and lilies of the valley with the seed pearl motif carried out in the bouquet's netting. Miss Shirley Wilson, the maid of honor, was gowned in orchid satin brocade fashioned with fitted bodice, elbow length sleeves and a bellshaped skirt. Her shoes, of matching brocade fabric, her head dress of satin with a veiling streamer and a bouquet of orchids completed her ensemble. The four bridesmaids, Miss Sharon Fell, Miss Sandra Uhrich, Miss Linda Andrews and Miss Norine Ladwig were similarly attired. Little Candy Ladwig was the flower girl. She wore crisp pink organdy and carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations. Bruce Swenland served as best man. Ushers were Gary Cooley, brother of the groom, Rob Reynolds, John Ladwig and Jerry McDaniels. For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Johnson chose a marine blue lace gown with matching hat, and beige accessories. The groom's mother was attired in a royal blue dress with matching accessories. A reception at the church parlors followed the services. Presiding at the beautifully appointed tables were Mesdames N. C. Rasmussen, Norman Swenland, Lester Swick, Bruce Swenland and Douglas Swenland. Other assisting were Roy Nagel, George Nagle, and Alfred Reichl. The young ladies who helped were Diane Obenhofer, Sue Johnson, Melody Reichl, Sue Anderson, Ann Little, Patty Nagle, Kathy Nagel, Susan Landis and Julia Anderson. For her going away trip to Oregon the bride chose a white wool suit with brown accessories. A deep purple orchid corsage accented her costume. The new home will be in the Summit area.

Bob Albaugh Learns In Combat Tactics

Should your bank account be joint?

Of the many types of joint bank accounts, the one which is most used is the joint account with right of survivorship. Such an account can be opened by any two or more persons, for example, by husband and wife, or by friends, or business partners.

Either person can deposit money and withdraw it without the other's consent or signature. If one of them dies, then the other owns the entire balance. Depositors in joint accounts usually sign a specific agreement with the bank which spells out in detail their relationship with the bank and their rights to draw on the account.

There are several advantages to the joint account with the right of survivorship. It is convenient. Either party can transact business on the account. If one person becomes sick, the other can make deposits or withdrawals. If it is a checking account, either party can write checks.

When one deposits money, the other immediately acquires certain rights in the account, and can withdraw the money in full, even before the death of the party who deposited it. Even though such accounts are a popular device for transferring money at death, they are not a means of avoiding inheritance or estate taxes. Both the federal government and the state of Washington provide for the taxing of money transferred in this manner. In fact, though there never can be any tax savings from the use of a joint bank account, there can be tax losses, in some circumstances, because of peculiarities of tax law with respect to joint tenancy bank accounts.

If the amount of money in such a joint account is substantial, it usually is wise to check to find out what the tax consequences will be if one of the owners of the joint account dies. (This column is written to inform, not advise. Facts may change the application of the law.)

Fair warning to the tomato grower when he sees the first flowers on his plants is: don't count your crop until it sets. Frequently the first flowers wither and finally drop off leaving bare stubs on the first cluster or two.

County agent Jack Parsons says this condition is especially common on early plantings of tomatoes but usually with time most plants will set enough flowers to produce a good crop. Here in the coastal area of the Northwest, fruit set is usually consistently poor. What are the causes of poor fruit set? Not all the answers are known yet. It is fairly certain that temperatures, particularly at night, and food reserves are two of the important factors. Favorable night temperatures are necessary for viable pollen production and fertilization, while adequate leaf area, good plant nutrition and sufficient light are important in providing the food or carbohydrate reserve. When night temperatures are within the range of about 60 to 70°F, fruit setting is fairly certain, however as night temperatures go below or above this range then setting usually becomes progressively poorer. Cloudy weather reduces fruit set, by reducing photosynthesis which results in low food production. Many times people will say the reason for having little fruit is too much vine growth. Sometimes this is true, but generally larger vine growth is the result of poor fruit set.

Since the tomato grower has no control over weather in the field, is he then powerless to exert any influence on fruit setting? County agent Parsons says, not entirely. Variety and site selection, planting dates, use of plant protectors and cultural practices are factors under his control. In the Northwest when low night temperatures habitually reduce fruit set the use of hormones offers a possible solution. Maintaining a good level of moisture in the soil is also important. An example of varieties that set fruit under somewhat adverse conditions are Fireball and Pearson. Progress has been made in improving this complicated process but there still is much to be discovered. Fruit setting still remains the important uncontrolled factor in growing tomatoes.

It seems to me that place names are a profound part of a nation's past. They vitalize its history. Named for the most part by pioneers they provide color, drama and life to all of the countries varied regions.

Our particular part of the Country is fortunate in having an abounding number of places named by Pioneers to the west and so far the do gooders have seen fit to leave them alone but let's not let complacency get the best of us and lower our guard. All around us historic name signs are coming down and some little dogooder is hanging up a new sign that is a gutless expression of today.

Here's a couple of examples I ran across. Down in Oregon there was a road named Wolf Creek, probably for the obvious reason that wolves once abounded in the nearby woods along the creek banks. Today it has been renamed "Sunset Highway," a name which is duplicated just about everywhere and has all the character of a jelly fish.

Last weekend I was in Canada again and came upon a similar situation. Foul Bay Road is a street in Victoria. It's a striking name, redolent of another era, yet a group of Canadians are out to rename it something they think is prettier.

To sum it up the first time some joker here in our state wants to start prettying up our road names and changing Goat Hill Road, Wild Cat Lane or Bear Gap Road to Riverview Drive, let him or them know we like the names our pioneer forebearers gave to the place. Let the prettying up groups name all the new roads they like, but keep their crummy paws off existing signs.

I'd much rather stand on Bourbon Street and visualize Capt. Kidd and his rogues sauntering up the sidewalk than stand on the same street named Lavender Lane and have to picture a bunch of little Lord Faunteroys cavorting around in their bloomers.

As I see it the only question is . . . How did I get on this subject in the first place?

Traveling around I have the opportunity to pick up a lot of different papers and scan the editorials for the trend in editor thinking. Once in a while I run across an editorial provocative of thought. Here's one such clipped from the Arco Idaho Advertiser: "For 30 years each administration has managed somehow to outspend its predecessor without giving a thought to a day of reckoning. Now the debt limit has been raised to $300 billion, giving Congress the privilege of going into debt another two billion. The debt ceilings, we are promised, will be lifted . . . to $308 billion by July 1."

"At this point we might ponder the significance of a historic statement by Solon . . . when he said: 'I did not give the Athenians the best government I could devise, but the best they would receive.' By declining to receive the best in government the Athenian people eventually lost their identity and their nation. . ."

"Senator Byrd of Virginia, the watchdog of the treasury, is concerned about a little matter of $3 million proposed to recondition a seaplane tender for the Imperial Ethiopian Navy under the military assistance program of our government. Senator Byrd is asking why it is always necessary for the United States to bail out the United Nations and now purchase one half of a $400 million bond issue. He wants to know why we need to be so inconsistent as to have tied up in farm surpluses the sum of $14,112,690,000 while at the same time offering such high price supports that encourage more surpluses each year. But the Senator's concern gets exactly nowhere. Why? The answer could be that the people do not demand better government or accept it when, and if, it is offered."

I've been running around so much lately that I haven't really taken time to look and see what is going on in my own back yard. I had a day or two recently to kind of nose around a little and one thing that I suddenly became aware of is that on the local political scene I have some personal friends that have decided to throw their hats in the ring. Now the fact that they are friends of mine in no way means that I ask or expect you to throw away your right of choice and blindly vote for them. What it means to me is that I'm glad to see some one I know heading the call for a little action. In these columns I keep trying to needle each and every one of you into speaking out or taking a part in defending our rights as free American citizens. Frankly I feel there is a tremendous need in America today for the Doctors, lawyers, housewives, truckdrivers and people from all walks of life to enter the scene advocates what they think and believe to be the best advantage to all and crowd out some of the professional politicians who agree with everyone and do damned little for anyone.

 I see that Doc Kalkus has thrown his hat in the ring for State Representative from the 25th district. Hugh is the character that every two years sticks his finger in my overly proportioned midriff and says quote, "We gotta get rid of that," Pipe the "We" bit. He means I have to, or no 3rd class medical to fly, and to me that would be a fate worse than death. Each time we get to chinning we usually get into conditions in general and likely as not end up gabbling about aviation, but these talks lead me to believe that Hugh is one fellow with a keen interest in his fellow man and a deeper rooted interest in our country as a whole. As far as politics goes he probably doesn't know any more about it than I do but he certainly does know what is good for the district and the Country as well.
 Another long time friend running for office is Jenny Grodvig. She's running for State representative from the 28th district. Jenny is the type of person we need one heck of a lot more of. I've known her for years and her greatest quality is the fact that she is capable of speaking out for the things she believes in and unselfishly takes the time to battle for them. Over the years we have either been in

Waller Road Grange Picnic Planned For August 19

House guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Kutcher for the past two weeks have been Mrs. Sadie Lawler, formerly of Waller Road, now residing in Torrance, California, and Mrs. Louis Werber of Hollywood.

Visitors from Wisconsin were in attendance at the last Waller Road Grange meeting. They were Mr. and Mrs. Paige and are visiting relatives in Puyallup. They are an aunt and uncle of Carl Schuler of Vickery Road. They are members of a Grange in Wisconsin.

Mrs. Nora Severson, a member of Benston Grange also visited.

The annual picnic of the Waller Road Grange will be held at Spanaway Park Sunday, August 19th at 1 p.m. It will be pot luck. Coffee--kool aid and ice cream will be furnished. Fun for all the family, games for young and old.

Mrs. Daphne Yoder has been elected Home Economics chairman for the Grange, following the resignation of Mrs. Ora Nelson, due to doctor's orders.

The Nelson family enjoyed a two-weeks stay at their summer cabin on Ohop Lake.

Mrs. Samuel Ball of Glyde, Oregon and her daughter Mrs. Stanley Baldwin of Las Vegas, Nevada, enjoyed a short visit with relatives, Mr. and Mrs. John Sierman. A trip to the World's Fair will be enjoyed by the visitors before returning.

Residents of Waller Road are urged to participate in the coming Grange community Fair. Enter one or all competitions. The small exhibitors are appreciated also. August 26th is the date.

Also, keep in mind the Biggest Chicken Barbecue ever to be held in the Waller Road area, same day!

Mr. James Fergus, who formerly lived on East 64th St. near Vickery Road is confined to the Veterans Hospital in Seattle, following surgery.
