Presbyterian Church Holds First Service

The new Parkway Presbyterian Church for this area will hold its first service this coming Sunday morning, September 15, at 10:00 a.m. The temporary meeting place will be the Parkland Masonic Temple, located on 134th Street, just west of Pacific Avenue.

A four acre site has been purchased by the Presbyterian Synod of Washington and is located on 138th Street, near the Mayfair entrance. This piece of property will eventually be used for the church building and will also provide ample parking.

Survey Conducted.
The start of this new church follows a long period of study and preparation. The National Board of Missions within the United Presbyterian Church seeks to provide help in those areas where it seems advantageous to have a new church. A careful study was made of the Parkland - Spanaway district and a survey was conducted during the summer of 1962.

The results indicated splendid opportunity for the start of a new Presbyterian Church.

The closest Presbyterian Church to the east is Puyallup; to the north, one is located on 54th Street; Lakewood and South Tacoma are to the west and southwest and there is no Presbyterian Church to the south. The name for the new church comes from the two areas—"Park" from Parkland and "Way" from Spanaway.

Coffee Hour

A coffee hour will follow the first service in order for everyone to get better acquainted. A Steering Committee will be set up to work with the organizing minister, the Rev. Wesley J. Drummond, in selecting the time of service for future Sundays and will act to get the Sunday School in operation. A brief sermon will be brought to the children on the first Sunday and parents are cordially invited to come as family units. Interested friends are cordially invited to attend the first service. Further information may be had by calling the organizing minister at LE 1-4234.

MRS. JAMES W. HUGHES shows guest book which became famous for its famous signers while the Hughes operated the restaurant at Barneys Corner which they are now leasing to the Bergs. The Hughes will operate their new 10 unit apartment-motel at that location which opens this weekend.

Book Continues

MRS. Hughes Have Open House For Public

An Open House for the public will celebrate the opening this weekend of a brand new apartment-motel owned and operated by the James W. Hughes. The new type residence is a pioneering project in the Eatonville area. It consists of ten units, each unit having a bedroom, living room, kitchen and full bath with vanity. The units have wall-to-wall carpeting and luxury furnishings.

The Hughes have long been residents of the Parkland area where they have operated the Fern Realty since 1957. Prior to the leasing of their restaurant at Barneey's Corner to the Fred Bergs, they made the eating place a famous stop-over for Mt. Rainier-bound tourists.

It was in their restaurant that the new famous Barneey-burger was born. Here, too, a guest book of diners representing all but one of the states and seventeen foreign countries was completed. Many of the signers of the book added their compliments to the chef to their signature. Among the guests was Cecil Cooke, British Commissioner General; Dorothy King, a great ballerina; and many noted mountain climbers from all parts of the world.

Survey To Determine Religious Preferences Of Spanaway And Surrounding Area Families

Plans have now been completed by the Bethel Ministerial Fellowship for a complete religious census of Spanaway and its surrounding area later this month. Pastor Ernest Friend, president of the minister's group, explained that the five churches participating in the house-to-house survey are the Spanaway Baptist Church, the Spanaway Methodist Church, the Spanaway Lutheran Church, the Spanaway Assembly of God, and the Elk Plain Community Church.

Members of these congregations will begin their survey work on Sunday afternoon, September 22nd. Throughout the following week they will call back on those people who were not at home when first visited. The survey will be completed on the following Sunday afternoon, September 29th. Over one hundred people are expected to participate in the survey work.

Church Responsibility
Pastor Friend has said, "Our purpose is not to bother people, but to find those people for whom our churches have a spiritual responsibility."

"Many new families have moved to our area," Pastor Qualley of the Methodist Church stated, "and we want to reach them with an invitation to take part in the religious activities of our community." Pastor Qualley pointed out that after the religious census is completed each church will have the responsibility to visit families showing their particular religious preference.

Survey Results
Results of the survey will be shared with each church, including those churches not actively participating in the census work. "We serve one great cause," Pastor Qualley said, "and our cooperation in this project is a demonstration of the Christian fellowship we share."

Madsen Circle Meets Thursday

The Louise Madsen Missionary Circle of Mt. View Baptist Church will meet Thursday, Sept. 12 at 12:30 p.m.

The special guest speaker will be Rev. Don DeBoer of the Edgewood Community Church.

Come hear Rev. DeBoer and learn how you can best serve in the work for the missionaries, then join us for refreshments.

When the initial survey call is made only this general information will be requested, and the callers will not engage in any religious discussions. The callers will not be identified as to the church they represent, but each caller will wear a name tag clearly marked "Community Religious Census."

No Discussion
The results of the religious census will be kept in a permanent master file by the Ministerial Fellowship.

Selects Area
Pastor George Hill of the Baptist Church is in charge of selecting the areas in which churches will conduct the survey. Later, after the area around Spanaway is completely surveyed for religious preferences, the Ministerial Fellowship hopes to complete a religious census of the entire Bethel School District. The area to be covered by the census on September 22nd will extend from Muck-Kapowsin Road on the south, to 138th Street (including Mayfair) on the north and from the military reservation on the west to Canyon Road on the east.

Over 4,000 Cards
Pastor Dan Cooper of the Elk Plain Community Church is in charge of the committee selecting the census cards to be used in gathering the information. Over 4,000 religious census cards are expected to be used.

Clergy Trained
Pastor John Briehl of the Lutheran Church is in charge of training the survey callers. When asked what information will be requested by the callers, he explained that a prepared census card will be used. The card asks for the family name, mailing address, and street address. The given names of the adult and the children in the family will be requested, and the name of the church, if any, that each of the family members attends or would prefer to attend.

a - Wondering and a - Wandering

With JACK BROWN
Everyone's view of summer is different depending on his responsibilities, opportunities, and role in life. Many mothers very probably feel it has been long, noisy, busy and hot. But a good many million children and dogs probably find it hard to believe that three months could have sped so quickly and that school doors are open once again.
The sounds and smells and experiences of summer vacation are still an important part of growing up. But there have been changes—the old swimming hole may have become a concrete-lined chlorinated pool. The automobile and airplane have vastly extended the scope of things that can be seen on a vacation trip. School has changed too, as the frontiers of man's knowledge have been pushed back so rapidly in recent years. This amount of knowledge that must be packed into the heads of children in grade school and high school has vastly increased.
With the ringing of school bells again, let's salute our young people and those who guide them through ever more complicated fields of learning. In the great affairs of nations, in science, and in the complicated business of leading a good and worthwhile life, our need has never been greater for concerned, intelligent, educated men and women.

And in the event you're wondering wherein the inspiration for the above, let me say that opening day was none-the-less hectic in my home than in yours, but perhaps the span in my children's ages gave me pause to think just a little about it all more. At six a.m. I got my number one son off to take his physical for enlistment in the navy. At six thirty I pried my number two son out of his nest to catch a bus for his first day as a freshman and at eleven thirty I stood dutifully by the road with my number three son to see that he got on the bus for the biggest moment of his life . . . his first day in kindergarten. Busy morning? you can say that again.

The other day in Idaho I saw this sign on the window of a service station: "We collect taxes—federal, state and local. We also sell gasoline as a sideline."
The sign, not only clever, exemplifies the fact that suddenly America is taking a good look at herself, analyzing her faults and beginning to squawk a little for corrections.

I had a little time to kill in Goldendale, Colorado last week and took my number two son along to browse thru an antique store. He was yelling, "Dad, look at this and look at that," with all the interest a 14 year old mind could generate when he came across an item that was completely foreign to him. After carefully examining it he gave up and asked me the name and purpose of said gadget. He had found an old curling iron that women used to heat over a coal oil lamp to louse up their hair.

Later, while traveling, I had time to think about this discovery of an unknown object by my son, and it made me realize how the years manage to creep by.

I started to reminisce and remembered when: You had to empty the drip pan under the ice box . . . Car windshields opened to let in breeze . . . Men wore BVD's instead of shorts and undershirts . . . You carried home 24 or 12½ pounds of ice on the running board of your car . . . The grocer sacked up beans, sugar and rice out of a bin . . . Men's shoe strings laced half way up through eyes and the rest of the way through hooks . . . You put white gasoline in your car, at 12 cents a gallon . . . Radios came in two pieces—the speaker being separate . . . It was a marvel that you could drive 35 miles "without getting off a hard surface road" . . . My grandmother shocked everyone by getting her hair "bobbed" . . . Bing Crosby had hair and Fred Astaire danced with his sister . . . Tom Mix and Hoot Gibson were king of the cowboys . . . You bought the Literary Digest from kids at the door . . . Women who wore trousers were eccentric . . . You could mail a letter with a two-cent stamp . . . Men wore garters . . . You took a can to the grocery store, the grocer filled it with kerosene from a barrel and stuck a potato over a spigot . . . Bloomers came down to the knees . . . Babies were breast fed . . . Milk came out of a cow instead of a bottle . . . To young women falsies meant fibs . . . People were engaged for six months before marriage instead of six hours . . . A guy who flew was called an aeronaut and considered a daredevil . . . Grandma used to pop deer in the rump with a broom to keep them out of the flower beds . . . A marriage license was about the only thing needed . . . In the winter you warmed first one side and then the other by the heat of an old iron monster . . . And you took a heated brick to bed to warm your feet . . . and on and on ramble my thoughts, bringing me abruptly to the conclusion that if this old world progresses as fast in the next 44 years as it has in the same span that I've been around to eyeball things, it's really going to be quite a place to live in. Hope I'm still around to make the scene.

It's The Law

In every trial the law puts the "burden of proof" on one side or the other. For example, until the prosecuting attorney offers evidence that an accused person committed a crime, the accused need not prove his innocence.

The state has the "burden of proof." For the trial to move forward, the prosecuting attorney must first make out a case.

Where the burden of proof lies depends on who must prove his case, and what presumptions of the law help him. For example, an accused person is presumed innocent until proven guilty beyond a reasonable doubt.

Yet a person who is found guilty may take over the burden of proving that he was insane at the time of the offense. He tries to show he didn't have the legal capacity to commit the crime. Since the law presumes all people are sane, unless proved otherwise, the accused has the burden of proof if he pleads insanity.

This burden differs: In a criminal case the state has to show the accused guilty "beyond a reasonable doubt." But in a civil case, say for damages, the test is, "did the plaintiff make out his case with the preponderance of evidence?" This is not as hard a test to meet as that of "beyond a reasonable doubt."

Some presumptions are "conclusive" and cannot be disputed in court. For example, it is an ancient maxim that all are conclusively presumed to know the laws. A man cannot say in his defense that he didn't know the law he is charged with violating.

Sometimes two presumptions may conflict in the same case. A second marriage was being attacked as invalid because of a claimed prior marriage. The law presumed a prior marriage continues. It also presumes that a person is innocent of a crime (bigamy). In these cases the presumption of innocence of the crime usually gets preference.

(This column is written to inform, not advise. Facts may change the application of the law.)

One that desires to excel should endeavor it in those things that are in themselves most excellent. —Epictetus

The human capacities are enlarged and perfected in proportion as humanity gains the true conception of man and God.

County Agent Klemperer Says Pine Cone Crop Near Failure

The squirrels will have to hustle this year to complete their annual fall food harvest, says County Agent, Dave Klemperer. The reason, based on information received from Joe Buhaly, WSU Extension Forester, is a near cone crop failure in Western Washington. Buhaly advised of the gloomy cone outlook after reviewing some 307 field examinations made earlier by public and private foresters.

Two areas in eastern Skagit County showed up better than other Western Washington counties. A light to medium cone crop of Douglas fir, Western hemlock, and Western red cedar was reported in two areas in Skagit County at the 1,000 to 1,500 foot elevation.

County Agent Klemperer advises that cone picking normally begins during the latter part of August at low elevations and extends into mid-October at high elevations.

Douglas fir is by far the most important cone crop in the Northwest, but other species such as lowland white fir and noble are also in demand.

Prices for the cones vary with quality. This is determined by the cutting test. Slashing the cones lengthwise and counting the visible seeds determines cone quality. The seed count may vary from four to ten visible seeds. An eight to ten count is very good.

The price paid last year in some areas for Douglas fir cones, having a five seed count and over, was $2.50 per bushel. A gunny sack, generally holding two bushels, thus brought $5.00.

The four principal methods of cone procurement are picking from standing trees, picking from felled trees, gathering squirrel cut cones beneath trees, and gathering from squirrel hoards.

Most persons collecting on a small scale will pick from standing trees or make use of squirrel cuttings. In picking from standing trees, the collector can get more cones from the young trees with full crowns. Some cones may be reached from the ground by pulling branches into reach with a hook on the end of a pole. The main harvest is made by a picker climbing the trees, fastening himself to the trees with a safety belt, pulling branches to him with a hook, and picking the cones into an apple picking bag or dropping them to the ground for later recovery. For safety reasons, at least two persons should pick in the same area. Climbing should not be attempted by people who are not agile and experienced.

As demand for tree seed increases, greater cone collecting pressure will occur in suitable areas. Cone collectors can help matters a great deal by showing a regard for the rights of landowners. In some cases damage to forest stands have been inflicted by cone pickers. They should have permission from the landowner and they should not remove limbs or fall trees without

War Declared On Starlings In Washington

U. S. Fish and Wildlife officials recently agreed with Senator Warren G. Magnuson, D., Wash., that research toward the control of starlings in Washington State must step ahead of the bird's depredations. Damage done by the bird in cattle feedlots, fruit orchards, vineyards, and holly plantations has "become particularly severe," Daniel H. Janzen, Director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife agreed in his reply to Magnuson. As a result the chemical screening studies at the Denver Wildlife Research Center for the discovery and development of repellants and selective lethal agents will be expanded. Also, the field testing of promising materials and techniques at problem locations in the Pacific Northwest and California will be enlarged, Janzen said. Janzen further explained: "The situation is a result of the great increase in populations of the introduced European starling throughout the Midwest and West during recent years. Flocks of these birds mingle with native blackbirds in large roosts that number in the millions. Effective means of dispersing or reducing these large populations are not now available. Although encouraging progress is being made in research on the nuisance bird problem, much remains to be done to insure the development of safe and effective control measures."

FP Graduate To Council For College

James M. VanBeek, a 1960 graduate of Pacific Lutheran University, has been appointed to the staff of PLU as an admission counselor according to an announcement by PLU president Dr. Robert Mortvedt.

VanBeek's primary duties will be in the area of student recruitment. He will represent the university at high school-college conferences throughout the Pacific Northwest.

A 1955 graduate of Franklin-Pierce High School, VanBeek returned to the Franklin-Pierce School District upon his graduation from PLU, teaching mathematics and science at the Morris E. Ford Junior High School for the last three years.

VanBeek received National Science Foundation grants the past two summers for study at St. Martins College and Portland State College.

While attending PLU, VanBeek won distinction, along with Chuck Curtis and Roger Iverson, as PLU's famed basketball "Big Three". In his senior year, the Knights made it to the finals of the NAAIA tournament.

A four-letter winner in basketball, VanBeek scored 1,207 in his final three seasons, an average of 11.07 points per game.

The VanBeeks, who reside at 5206 E. 138th St., have two children, Linda, 3 and Lynette, 2.

Coach Calls Line Heavy

A recent interview with head coach, Eldon Kylo, of the Franklin Pierce cardinals revealed the following facts: There is more weight on the line than ever before but at present the end position looks weak; the backfield is made up of "hard-nosed" backs who can hit hard but lack speed. Coach Kylo feels they have the experience needed for a successful season but he wonders if some of the lettermen have the caliber needed at some positions.

In the coach's opinion the schools posing the biggest threat to his team are Puyallup in the Southern Division and Renton and Highline in the Northern.

Good Books In Brief

By James J. King

In Service With A Smile, Wodehouse takes to jolly old England, in fact, to the very outskirts of London, Blandings Castle. He invites us to spend an enjoyable period, among a group of perhaps the most unique type characters imaginable. In addition to this, a bizarre situation at the Castle that is both humorous and exciting is created by a different type of plot.

We are introduced to a Lady and two Lords; A Duke and his nephew; an American millionaire and his daughter; and a Curate without a penny. Supporting these characters, are a butler, a cold heartless Secretary to the Lord of the Castle, a Plover, and one grandson.

In a very short time, we learn of a new kind of napping, Pignapping. The Empress of Blandings, a pig of many medals and the most precious possession of Lord Emsworth, is a target of the pignappers. Two different forces working at the same time to pignap the Empress provides plenty of lively and entertaining action.

On the romantic side, we have the millionaire's daughter in love with the poor Curate, but is forced to become engaged to the Duke's nephew. The Duke's nephew is in love with someone else. The millionaire from America is in love with Lady Constance.

Lord Ickenham goes about giving "Service with a smile," as he helps the helpless with timely advice to the worthy characters of the story. You can't help but admire Lord Ickenham in his sly methods of solution to the many complex problems at Blandings Castle.

Note: These books may be found in the Tacoma Public Library.

Equity Meted In Law

Our courts work with two sets of principles in meting out justice — those of "law" and those of "equity."

Under "law" a court declares the parties' rights and duties and sets money damages for harm already done, as when someone goes back on his contract with you, or injures you in an automobile crash.

But under principles of "honesty, equity, and conscience, for example, a court seeing harm on the way, may forestall it and enforce its orders by fines or jail terms.

England used to have two kinds of courts to hear cases under law and equity. But today both England and America use the same judge to hear both kinds of cases.

Long ago the English King called upon the "chancellor" — then largely made up of churchmen (the keeper "of the King's conscience"), to give "relief" where the older Common Law Courts, grown rigid, might fail.

Unable to use the Common Law, the chancellors applied certain rules and maxims, sometimes borrowed from ancient Greece and Rome — "He who comes into equity must come with clean hands." Sometimes this is stated: "No one can take advantage in a court of equity of his own wrongdoing."

This maxim denied a suitor "relief" if he himself had done wrong in the transaction at issue.

A scale maker had advertised that his scales would count fractions of a cent against the customer and in favor of the storekeeper.

He had asked a court in equity to stop a competitor from revealing that his scale was cheating customers. But the court threw the case out: Not having "clean hands," the scale maker had no standing in equity. He could not seek fair treatment when he himself was dishonest in the particular situation at issue.

Superintendent Gives Data On Park Facilities

Superintendent John A. Rutter of Mount Rainier National Park announces the following services that will continue to be available to the public after Labor Day in the Park.

Paradise Inn will continue its full scope of services through lunch September 9 when it will be closed for the season. Overnight accommodations, meals, service, fountain service and souvenir sales will be available.

Paradise Lodge and Sunrise Lodge were closed at noon Labor Day.

National Park Inn at Longmire will continue to provide overnight accommodations, meal service and souvenir sales through October 13.

The Rainier National Park Company will continue its daily transportation services to the Park originating in Tacoma and Seattle through September 15.

Although Labor Day terminated the regularly scheduled interpretive services for the season such as illustrated talks and guided trips, the Visitor Center at Sunrise will remain open until severe fall weather comes. The Visitor Center at Park Headquarters remains open all year.

Rutter advises that the Park's campgrounds and picnic areas remain open until cold weather makes their closure necessary to protect the facilities. If weather remains favorable, September is a favorite month for campers. The Park may be enjoyed without the congestion experienced in July and August and the fall color always brings visitors to the Park who especially enjoy this season.

Gun Shots To Kill At Least 200 Hunters

Many millions of Americans will take to the fields and forests this fall to hunt everything from cottontail rabbits to Canadian moose. At least 200 of these hunters will be brought back dead. They'll be killed in accidents involving guns.

And back of almost every hunting accident is one cause, carelessness. Today's Health, the magazine of the American Medical Association, offers some basic pointers that will help you both to return unharmed from your hunting trip and to avoid bagging a fellow hunter.

Know what you're firing at before you pull the trigger. Be certain that the rustle in the brush actually is a deer and not another hunter.

Never climb through or over a fence with a loaded gun. Unload the gun, then reload after you've crossed.

Don't shoot at a flat, hard surface. Ricocheting bullets can kill or wound at long distances.

Never look down the barrel of a gun to see whether it's loaded. You can't tell by looking down the barrel anyway, and there's always the chance of an accident.

Always carry a gun so that you control the direction of the muzzle even if you stumble. Keep the safety on until you're ready to shoot.

Keep guns away from children. Never leave a weapon unattended without first unloading it. Store guns and ammunition safely out of the reach of children.

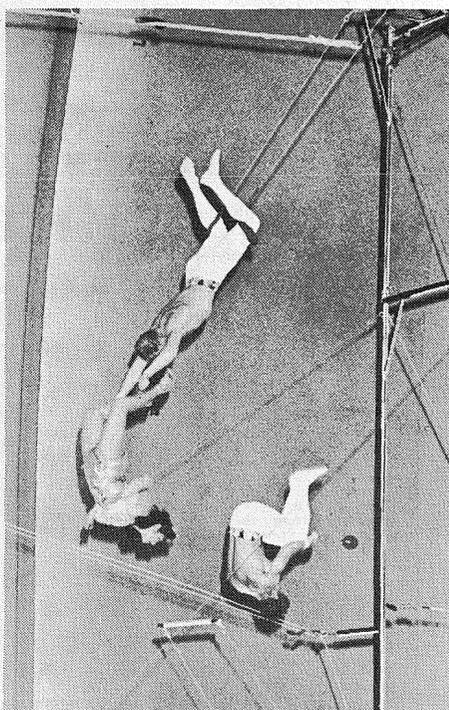

Unload guns carried into camp or home. Keep guns cased until reaching the hunting area. Always be sure the barrel is clear of obstructions, such as mud or snow.

Alcohol and guns definitely don't mix. Avoid drinking while you're carrying a loaded gun.

Above all, treat a gun with respect. Never point it at a human. It might go off.

Ag Projects Get Awards
High Cascade Deer Season Open In Sept.

Annual awards to top-ranking 4-H Club members completing an agricultural project will again be provided by International Harvester Company, the National 4-H Service Committee has announced.

The agricultural program is open to both boys and girls. It is designed to introduce better farming methods and practices affecting production, management, community improvement and personal development.

Each state will name its top member for the year who will attend the 42nd National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago as guest of International Harvester. Up to four members in the county can qualify for a gold-filled medal of honor.

The agricultural award winners' records will be entered in competition with all other state agricultural records for one of six $500 college scholarships.

All winners are judged by the Cooperative Extension Service which also supervises and directs the 4-H programs, assisted by local volunteer 4-H leaders. Nearly 865,000 of the 2.3 million 4-H'ers were enrolled in the agricultural program last year.

Scholarships for 1963 were increased $100 each. The six national champions will be announced during the 4-H Congress.

Ridicule may be the evidence of wit or bitterness and may gratify a little mind, or an ungenerous temper, but it is no test of reason or truth.

September 7 marked the opening date of hunting season for some game, the Washington State Game Commission announced. Although the main sportsmen's season won't commence for another month, the High Cascade buck deer season runs through September 7 to 22, both dates inclusive.

Ruffed Grouse, Spruce (Franklin) Grouse, Blue Grouse hunting season runs from September 7 through November 17. Early Chukar and Hungarian Partridge season last just until September 30.

Bow and arrow seasons open September 7, have limited hunting areas and should be checked through the Game Commission Office. Both deer and bear are included in this category.

In certain areas of the state bear are classed as predators and are unprotected. Other areas in Eastern Washington have a season which opened on September 7. Mountain Goat season will run from the 7th of September through the 22nd only.

All education should contribute to moral and physical strength and freedom.

Flower Defies Law Of Nature, Bloom Is Brown

Delphiniums, as the book by Webster says, are generally blue. However, somebody forgot to read the book to Mrs. Nettie Mason's flower. She has raised a brown delphinium in her garden at So. 163rd Street in Spanaway.

This is a rare species indeed, in fact so rare that Mrs. Inez Shank had to see it to believe it. She saw, believed, and brought the bloom to the Times Journal office to prove it. So there, on the counter, the renegade brown posy reposes in a blue cup. Visitors are invited to view until the brown bloom withers, fades, and possibly turns blue.

They were also most heartily greeted by their two sisters, Mrs. Leroy (Sally) Fairbanks and Mrs. Pat Wilkerson. We are also happy to report Mrs. Long is getting along nicely after a long illness.

Getting Better

Best wishes go to Mrs. Edna Smith who has been quite ill and to her husband, Ben, who also has been under the weather.

Wedding Bells

Alice Brewer and David Gallmeyer were married August 24 at the Spanaway Baptist Church in a ceremony performed by the Reverend George Hill. The young couple are making their first home on Benbow Road in the Kapowsin area.

Explorer Scouts

Last Thursday evening, Bill Scott, associate advisor of the Explorer Scouts, and George Lind accompanied the President of Post 92, Richard Harrod of 829 1/2 East 47th Street, to an Eagle Board of Review. He passed the tests and is now an Eagle Scout. Since Richard resides out of the district he has been handicapped in accomplishing his goal and the members of the post are very proud of him. A Court of Honor will be held for him in the near future.

Visits Colorado

Mrs. Harry L. Carlson of 1709 East Central Avenue is visiting in Grand Junction, Colorado. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Randall, are celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary there. She will also be visiting her husband's mother, relatives and friends in Denver. She will return in about two weeks.

Teen Club

The Summit Teen Club met recently in the Summit Youth Center with about 40 members in attendance. The following members were elected to the nominating committee: Don Robinson, chairman, Laurie Adams, John Cooper, Pat Robinson, and Sue Johnson. Suggestions for officers should be turned in to one of these members as soon as possible.

Due to the tight schedule of the Youth Center, the date of the next dance is not definite. Be sure to watch the paper for further information.

The young people will be selling community calendars soon. Marsha Ewing is chairman of this project. For the price of these calendars, each family may have their anniversary and birthday dates recorded on the proper day. Be sure to order yours this week.

After the business meeting, the group made favors for the children at the Rainier School at Buckley. Seventy-five were finished and will be delivered in the near future when a group from the club will be visiting there.

Annual P-TA School Held Tonight At 8

September 12 at 8 p.m. at the James Sales School, the Annual Fall "School of Instruction" will be presented by officers and chairmen of the Franklin Pierce Council of P-TA for new officers and chairmen in the Franklin Pierce School District. This includes the Parent-Teacher groups in Midland, Central Ave., Harvard, Christianson, James Sales, Brookdale, Parkland and Collins areas.

The purpose of this school is to assist the new officers and chairmen to understand their jobs by information, instruction and suggestions.

"Food for Thought", a tape by Dr. Ludvig Eskeldsen, State Chairman on Parent and Family Life Education, concerning Why P-TA exists, what value it has, if it merits current criticism, will be the keynote speech. Refreshments will be served during this presentation.

Students need good lighting and study conditions. Be sure study desk or table is the proper height. Twenty-eight or twenty-nine inches from the floor is the recommended height.

There is no excellence without labor; and the time to work, is now.
