Unless Solons Act Rough Road Ahead For Property Owners

Property owners who have been looking to the legislature for long overdue tax relief are beginning to feel they are riding a treadmill of disappointments.

Threatened by a Supreme Court ruling that ordered assessors in King and Snohomish Counties to raise property taxes assessed valuations to 50 per cent of market value as stipulated in the present State Constitution, real property owners are beginning to feel uneasy as they see three Constitutional 25 per cent Amendment bills dying in committees.

Property taxes have been computed using a 25 per cent or lower ratio. Fifty percent, as ordered by the court, could more than double assessed valuations. This means drastic increases in property taxes will follow the move to a 50 per cent assessment.

Statutory freeze laws are subject to change or elimination by a simple majority vote in the legislature. House passage of HB 518 during the regular session is strong evidence of the temporary nature of such laws. HB 518 would "thaw" the present "freeze" and according to the Washington State Research Council would bring about an automatic 25 per cent increase in property taxes statewide.

The only real solution that will ease the tax pressure being put on property owners would be for the legislature to pass one of the three 25 per cent Amendment bills (SJR 1, HJR 3, or HJR 25) and place it on the ballot for a final decision by the voters. With the protection of the State Constitution, property owners could rest a little easier each February.

It is also interesting to note that a measure to make all tools, machinery, or equipment held for the improvement, repair or maintenance of a residence and the real property adjacent thereto, an exemption to the personal property taxes, is buried in Senator Martin Durkan's Ways and Means Committee. The same bill (SB 8) would include personal property used in recreation as an exemption.

Although the assessor's office in Pierce County has never enforced the requirement that individuals submit a list of personal property items, it does not necessarily mean that it could not happen in the future. Personal property taxes became a very real thing to Vancouver, Washington residents last year.

Some of the items that subject their owners to an annual personal property tax are lawn mowers, garden tractors, lawn tools, paint sprayers, and most tools that can be used to beautify a home or the surrounding grounds. Or for those who are outdoor minded, you could be taxed annually on your guns, fishing equipment, camping gear, tennis racquets, or most anything in the recreational line that you own.

They say the only sure things in life are taxes and death. But the way things are shaping up, it seems taxes might be the eventual death of property owners.

EMERSON N. MATSON, Times Journal editor, prepares to sign a copy of his book, Longhouse Legends, for the Pierce County Library. Mrs. Margaret Bixby, Coordinator of Children's Services, holds a supply of unsigned copies for the author to autograph. First copies of Longhouse Legends arrived at the Pierce County Library last week and will be available to the branches for National Library Week, April 20-26.

TJ Editor To Visit Libraries

Emerson Matson, author of the book "Longhouse Legends", will speak on the early history of Puget Sound at Tenzler Memorial Library on Friday, April 25 at 4:30 p.m., and on Thursday, April 24 will appear at Parkland Community Library at 4:00 p.m., and at Roy Community Library at 7:30 p.m.

While researching Indian legends for his book, Mr. Matson encountered a quantity of material he did not incorporate into the finished work. Some of this historical information will furnish the contents for his scheduled talks.

A resident of Parkland, where he edits The Times Journal, Mr. Matson has long been interested in Indian lore of this region. Recognizing the lack of local material available to children, he endeavored to supply authentic studies of Indian life. Thirteen myths, each preceded by an explanation of their significance in relation to the beliefs, customs, and ceremonies of the Puget Sound Indians, make up the book. Drawings by Lorence Bjorklund and colored photographs add to the attraction of the book for young readers. Since its publication 1968, numerous requests have been received at Pierce County Library for the book.

Adults and children are invited to hear Mr. Matson. The events are scheduled at these times to coincide with observance of National Library Week, April 20 to 26.

Fighting the War on Poverty over a 1,535 square mile front poses a massive logistical problem, but the O.D.I. Agency charged with the responsibility of serving the rural poor of Pierce County thinks it has come up with some valid answers this year.

The answers, officials of Rural Economic Opportunity believe, lie in increased mobility and a greater participation by citizens of the rural Pierce County communities served by the unit.

A good start in both directions has already been made, according to Mrs. Audrey Kirk, Director of R.E.O., the non-profit private corporation which acts as a delegate agency of the O.E.O.-funded Opportunity and Development, Inc.

To penetrate the "Pockets of poverty" that exist throughout the county, R.E.O. will put its first mobile unit on the road next month. The R.E.O. travelling office will be staffed by experts armed with updated information on jobs, job training, health, legal services, and housing.

Information for the mobile unit will be funnelled through O.D.I.'s centralized "Job Bank" and other units engaged in the development of resource material, Mrs. Kirk said.

Paul A. Olson, President of the Board of Directors of R.E.O., believes a second great "Lift" will come from "greatly increased community support."

Last year, it was pointed out, rural contributions fell eight percent short of the average "in-kind" funds developed by O.D.I. urban areas. Officials reported a total of $600,000 in community support for 1968, representing approximately thirty percent of the Federal O.D.I. budget of two million dollars.

Dear Sir:

A NEW BIRTH OF FREEDOM

A recent seven-paragraph, one-page article that was written, mimeographed and distributed by the undersigned has come under criticism and has apparently stirred up a hornets' nest of opposition among critics of our government of the people, by the people and for the people.

Perhaps quoting the latter portion of Lincoln's Gettysburg Address beginning with "THIS NATION, UNDER GOD" is offensive to most offensive persons. To me "THIS NATION, UNDER ATHEISM" would be the most offensive thing that could, and possibly may, happen. The price of freedom is constant vigilance.

Perhaps the paragraph: "MAY WE RULE OUR CITY, OUR COUNTY, OUR STATE AND OUR NATION BY OUR INDIVIDUAL RIGHT AND DUTY TO VOTE, TO ORGANIZE AND TO EXPOSE THE EVIL IN THOSE WHO OPPOSE OUR GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE AND FOR THE PEOPLE" is also offensive.

If they are fed up with us little people constantly repeating the phrase: "OUR GOVERNMENT OF THE PEOPLE, BY THE PEOPLE, AND FOR THE PEOPLE", I hope we LITTLE PEOPLE will repeat it a thousand times as much in the future as we have in the past, that they will be offended the rest of their lives and that the phrase will ring in their ears forevermore.

The formation of new neighborhood councils from Eatonville to Gig Harbor will reverse this statistic, Mrs. Kirk feels.

"Buckley's hard-working council is a case in point," she said. "Under the Reverend Ted Newton, acting Chairman, they have been working like beavers."

The list of community services developed by council and staff for low-income families, covers several single-spaced typewritten pages in the log book of Mrs. Kay Cook, Buckley Manager.

They included free prescription glasses for needy children by Tom Burdick and Chuck Williams of the Buckley Eagles; free notary service to low-income clients by Mrs. Lois Gage and free haircuts to youngsters by Tom Harding and Art Marshall.

In addition, the Buckley Junior Chamber is supporting a drive for re-stocking the "Clothes Closet" and a local cleaner is donating his service so that clothing distributed by Mrs. June Henkel to the elementary schools is spot-free.

Other community services provided by the Buckley community are the use of the Catholic Church Parish Hall for the Well Child Clinic under the direction of Mrs. Eunice Joselyn and Mrs. Judy Wickizer and the volunteer transportation corps headed by Mrs. Stella Story, Mrs. Sue Thompson and Mrs. Evelyn Little. Mrs. Ward Wallace coordinates activities of O.E.I.'s Senior Centers mobile van when it comes to the area.

Until the advent of the mobile service, R.E.O. maintained "a thin skirmish line" in its battle on poverty with limited staff to cover offices in Parkland, Gig Harbor, Buckley, Roy and Woodbrook. "Now we can fill in the gaps," Mrs. Kirk said.

R.E.O. is one of the twenty-six units of O.D.I. which has undergone a recent restructuring in order to meet objectives of the national Manpower Program as specified by O.E.O.

"For three years, we have made poverty a little easier to live with," Mrs. Kirk said. "This year we hope to relieve its basic cause by getting more people back to work."

O.D.I. officials point out that fifty-one percent of the program emphasis will fall in the fields of jobs, job development and job training.

Knoblauch's Bill Signed Into Law

Senator Reuben Knoblauch (D-Summer) said today his bill permitting Pierce County to finance courthouse parking facilities in the same fashion as cities has been signed into law by Governor Evans.

"This amendment to the laws relating to the powers of counties was needed so that Pierce County can participate in parking facilities at the county-city building," Senator Knoblauch said.

"Now, the county will be able to construct, maintain and operate the facilities in conjunction with the city. The parking revenues will be utilized to pay off the revenue bonds that will be issued for this purpose."

Senator Knoblauch said 578 parking spaces will be created at the county-city building. Co-Sponsors of the bill with the Summer Democrat were Senators Charles Newschwander (R-28th Dist.) and Larry Faulk (R-26th Dist.).

Money Masks Marriage Muddles

By FRIEDA KAYE
New York (MW) — An author who specializes in family problems took a new look at the old Broadway song, "Money Isn't Everything as Long as You've Got Dough," and declared it isn't always true in marriage — especially during the middle years.

In an exclusive interview, Norman M. Lobsenz, co-author of the recently published book, "How to Stay Married," said that some middle-aged couples may be well off financially but use money as a psychological weapon to hurt each other.

"Arguments about money are often, like sex, an area where basic conflicts can be displaced," Mr. Lobsenz said. "Money particularly, because this is a kind of safe, less threatening area to discuss. It is socially acceptable that people will argue about money. It is not socially accepted that people will argue about their basic psychological views of life. So money becomes an area in which you can either get rid of or encourage all the anxieties and conflicts that are within you all of your life," he added.

These problems become more noticeable in the middle years, the author pointed out, because in the early stages of a marriage couples are "getting used to each other, their spending habits, and so on." Their financial aims are alike: to set up a budget, pay the mortgage, and save for children's college education. Then, in the middle years, the essential money demands diminish, and the problem shifts to the question of what money represents. At this point, basic attitudes and conflicts of each partner may come into play, the author said.

Early, Middle or Mature Years — Money Attitudes the Same

According to Mr. Lobsenz, people's attitudes toward money are usually inherited from their parents. A man or woman who grew up in a hold which was concerned with finances and saving for that rainy day will continue to be concerned all through adult life, even when they have sufficient funds.

As an example, he told of the conflict between a couple who had been married more than 20 years. Their mortgage was paid off, their children had finished college, insurance bills were up to date, and all essential demands no longer pressed upon them. The husband wanted to take a trip around the world. Friction developed because the wife still felt compulsive about saving.

"It is difficult," Mr. Lobsenz concluded, "for some people to rethink their finances in relation to their mature years. Irritation or arguments that arise about money conceal inability to accept maturity." Male-Female Aging Differences

Money quarrels may mask slackening sexual interest between a husband and wife in the later years of a marriage, Mr. Lobsenz explained. But one of the most important things for a woman to remember, he warned, is that this does not imply a lessening of love.

A woman in her late forties faces her menopausal years, the author said, but there is no need for her to be "afflicted with doubts about her sexual potency." Psychologically, with more financial security, less household chores and child care responsibility, and freedom from the pregnancy phobia, she should have greater sexual enjoyment. Physically, medical science has supplied many aids for relief from menopausal symptoms, such as replacing the estrogen no longer manufactured by the female ovaries.

A man of the same age, however, may also be afflicted with doubts about his sexual potency when he approaches these mature years, and his seeming loss of interest in sex — and the possible resultant money squabbles — are defensive maneuvers, he indicated.

Mr. Lobsenz thinks that, ideally, a couple should be able to communicate about their problems openly and freely. If they can't, he advises that they seek the help of a marriage counselor who can give them guidelines for handling problems in their mature years. Often they will find that these problems are not about dollars and cents but about their basic attitudes toward money and its use as a cover-up for deeper emotional differences between the couple.

A FORUM ABOUT MATURE WOMEN

No Will, No Way

Dear Miss Brookfield:

We are a happily married couple in our late sixties. We are active and enjoy life and each other. We have a good relationship, except for one area of conflict. My husband seems to resent keeping me informed of our financial situation. He won't even discuss his will with me. It was a problem in our younger years, but I feel now we're getting on I really need to know about these matters. Can you give me any support?

J. A. W., Albuquerque, N.M.
Dear J.A.W.:

Authorities in the financial field agree with you that it is important for a wife to be aware of the family's finances. It is especially important for the mature wife to be educated in these matters. Since the will concerns you as well as your husband, it is essential that you know of its provisions now. A time of grief and bereavement is not the time to begin learning about executors and heirs.

Our experts also say that every wife should know the name of her husband's insurance agent, his broker, and his lawyer. In addition, she should know about the day-to-day family finances.

Perhaps you could enlist the aid of his lawyer to convince your husband to keep you informed. There's a small book by Donald Rogers, "Teach Your Wife to Be a Widow," that you and your husband might find helpful.

Bumpy Face

Dear Margaret:

I thought acne was a teenage condition. Heaven knows I'm not a teen-ager (I'm 52, to be exact), but recently my face has been breaking out. It's unsightly, and I find myself becoming self-conscious because of it. Isn't this an unusual a problem for a woman of my age?

W. W., Greensboro, N.C.

Dear W.W.:

It may be a small comfort to you to know that this is a problem that afflicts many women at the time of menopause. Experts believe that, just as acne during adolescence is related to hormonal changes, acne in the mature years is also related to hormonal changes. In regard to acne, the American Medical Association says: "Each physician has his own rules, methods, and medications, and the treatment will vary with the needs of the individual patient." Many physicians prescribe estrogen therapy for treatment of acne, as well as for the relief of other distressing menopausal symptoms. This is a problem that your physician can help you with.

Have you a problem as a mature woman, or with one? For advice and help write to Margaret Brookfield, Information Center on the Mature Woman, 3 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Parkland Nursery Receiving Applications

Parkland Cooperative Nursery School is now receiving applications for 1969-1970 classes. Children who are four by September 13, 1969 are eligible for one of the four-year-old classes, and children who are age three by September 13, 1969 are eligible for the three-year-old class. Classes open on October 1 of each year. Persons wishing more specific information or registration forms should contact Mrs. Leonard Sager, LE 1-5273.

The activities and emphasis of the curriculum cover a wide range of topics. Excursions are particularly significant of the nursery school emphasis.

The Parkland Cooperative Nursery School meets at the fieldhouse at Gonyea Park located at South 133rd and J Streets. Mrs. Walter Perkuhn has been the teacher during the 1968-69 school year and will continue for 1969-70. The daily schedule allows an hour of free time for the children during which time they are free to choose what they wish to do — painting, working in the carpentry area, playing in the housekeeping or block-building areas or playing out-of-doors. The second hour is directed to more organized group activity with story time, music and exercise activities, with snack time and specific craft activities.

Newly elected officers who will assume their offices at the end of May include Mrs. Phillip Nordquist, President; Mrs. Phillip Beal, First Vice President; Mrs. Frederick Miklosky, Second Vice president; Mrs. Robert Ames, Secretary; and Mrs. Robert Magdanz, Treasurer.

Methodist Dinner

The Women's Society of Parkland United Methodist Church is sponsoring a churchwide international dinner at the Church, 12138 South A, 5 to 8 p.m. Saturday April 19.

Entrees will be Oriental, Scandinavian, and Italian dinners. Prices are adults, 7 cents; and children 40 cents.

Booster Program Planned

Officers for the 1969-70 school year will be elected when the Franklin Pierce High School Booster Club meets 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 22 in the high school cafeteria.

An all-student program including portions of the Veteran's Day assembly of last November will be presented. Songs of inspiration and protest will be performed by Gerry Jackson and Harvey Roberts. Also on the program is Cheryl Hansler, who will deliver the oration which won her the "Voice of Democracy" contest at Franklin Pierce High.

Eduardo Buencamiino, foreign exchange student from Luzon, Philippines, will talk about his country and give his views of America.

Dairymen Want Hearing

The Puget Sound Dairymen's Class I Base Plan Committee, expressing confidence that its position will be upheld, has requested the United States Department of Agriculture to hold a hearing to extend the marketing plan's termination date to December 31, 1970.

Henry Polinder, Lynden, chairman of the committee, said the USDA was being requested to move swiftly on the point in question in order that Puget Sound dairymen can continue with an on-going program without doubt of the future.

Earlier the dairymen asked the USDA to suspend the December 31, 1969, termination date for one year. The USDA denied this move and said a hearing would be needed before such action could be Richland, Wash., plans to hold their N.R.A. Rodeo the 10th and 11th of May. Wednesday May 7th, is the dead line for entries.

Taking a day of their spring vacations members of the 4-H horse project worked at Frontier Park cleaning barns. Since this is the site of the Pierce County Fair these young people cheerfully put in a day of hard work in anticipation of the good times which they will have during the fair next August. The following 4-H clubs were presented: Silks and Saddles, Four Hoofs Each, Silver Spurs, Rough Riders, Weyerhauser, Kiso's, Ponies A go-go and Tiny Hoof's.

W.B.R.A. standings are as follows: Jan Stover, 1st, Mary Parsons 2nd, Terry Bussey 3rd, Elsa Jensen 4th, Wynette Russell 5th, Janie Curcio 6th, and Kay Brooks 7th.

Millie Peterson is now permanently training, breaking, boarding and in the near future renting horses at the "Munuka Valley Ranch" located in Graham Rt. 1 Box 185. Phone VI 7-2887.

The next step was up to the dairymen. They requested such a hearing and have been told by USDA officials they will get one soon.

Based on the hearing, the Secretary of Agriculture will make recommendations regarding continuation of the Plan and a favorable action will make a referendum possible. Approval by two-thirds of those voting will assure continuation of the Plan at least until the end of 1970.

The request by the dairymen's committee asked that the hearing being limited to the subject of Class I Base Plan extension only.

Later in the year, if Congress passes the Meads bill containing changes in the Base Plan law, another hearing to consider such changes will be requested by Puget Sound dairymen, Polinder said.

"Without a rapid solution to this situation," Polinder said, "dairymen of the area cannot know what the future holds for them and it disturbs the orderly progress of the business."

LOCAL 4-H Club members took time out from their barn cleaning project at the Pierce County Fair site to pose for this picture last week. The 4-H'ers volunteered their services to tidy up the many stalls in the Graham Fairground barns.

Longley, Standish Claim Stocker Wins

SPANAWAY - The weatherman almost stole the show at Spanaway Speedway last Sunday, with many of the early trophy dashes and heats being run on an "off" track, but the sun finally broke through to give both drivers and fans all the thrills and spills they could hope for.

Ken Longley again picked up a big win in the 50 lap "A" main, beating out Vaughn Cress and Dennis Scott in the run for the checkered flag.

Terry Standish, with his "8" car performing to perfection, captured the 50 lap double "A" feature, edging Ron Eaton and Clem Goddard on the rain spattered asphalt oval.

A spectacular flip by Shorty Harrison in the 22nd lap brought the large crown up on their feet. Harrison lost a wheel coming out of the west turn, flipped end for end, then skidded to a stop with the driver's side down. After a few anxious moments, Harrison climbed out of his damaged rig unscathed.

The A.R.I. Superstocks return next Sunday for another complete slate of races, including trophy dashes, heats and mains. Some of last year's favorites are expected to have their iron ready for competition, including Eddie Looney and Bob Rollins.

Jack Kuper, another crowd pleaser, came up with a sick mill and failed to get into any action. Don Hall also had his problems, being black flagged for failure to compete in later events after posting the top qualifying time.

AA main event - 1, Standish; 2, Ron Eaton, Tacoma; 3, Clem Goddard, Puyallup.
 First AA heat - 1, Cliff Massey, Puyallup; 2, Brad Hudson, Orting; 3, Shorty Harrison, Tacoma, 3:21.3.
 Second AA heat - 1, Tim Garner, Parland; 2, Willy Meadows, Tacoma; 3, Pete Burton, Sumner, 2:56.32.
 AA-B trophy dash - 1, Kent Brock, Sumner; 2, Steve Kiser, Renton; 3, Bob Bull, Auburn, 1:29.02.
