

Constitutional Amendments To Change Various Aspects Of Student Government

Constitutional amendments being voted upon today, if passed by the student body, will change or clarify some aspects of student government.

Possibly the most significant change would occur if the executive officers were limited to non-voting status in the Legislature, except that the first vice-president would be given the tie breaking vote. To equalize the balance of power, the president would be given a veto power which would be overridden by a two-thirds vote of the Legislature.

The amendment would also require the president to sign a bill within a week; to let it become law without his signature; or, if he should veto it, to present the Legislature with a written explanation. This amendment was put on the ballot by a petition containing the signatures of more than ten per cent of the student body.

Another proposed change would eliminate the provisions dealing with the May Festival. Last fall, the Legislature voted to give the entire May Festival to Mrs. Rhoda Young and the physical education department. Under these circumstances, passage would seem logical.

According to the present constitutional provisions, the Saga business manager is elected at the regular ASPLU elections. An amendment specifies that the post shall become appointive instead. If the amendment passes, the Saga business manager will be selected by the editor of the Saga.

Other proposals would: 1) require that the qualifications for treasurer include one year of accounting or its equivalent and 2) clarify wording in the articles of the constitution.

With the exception of the amendments changing the status of the executive officers in the Legislature, all were recommended by the Legislature for passage.

Hospital Official To Interview For Social Work

Graduating seniors who wish to consider careers in social welfare or recreation with the armed forces should sign up for interviews with Miss Ruth E. Armstrong, Madigan Hospital Field Director, who will be visiting the campus. Appointments may be made from 10:30 to 3:00 on April 18. Casework positions are open to both men and women; recreation positions are open to women only.

Again this year the American Red Cross is offering summer employment to a limited number of students who have completed their sophomore or junior year and plan to return to college in the fall. Miss Armstrong will be available to discuss any of these opportunities with interested students.

ED BRANNFORS, a contender for the student body presidency, practices a campaign speech.

Legislature Allots $400 To Cyclists

Things were hot in Legislature last Monday as two groups battled over financial backing of the PLU-CLC bicycle race. After an hour and fifteen minutes of debate, the Legislature allotted $400 for PLU's team. There were three dissenting votes.

Ron Heyer, author of a Mooring Mast article lambasting the contest, headed the opposition to the financing. He felt the money could be better spent in other ways. Bicycle Racing Commissioner "Hern" Flack was the leading supporter of the race. At one point in the proceedings, he referred to Heyer's newspaper article as "an abortive journalistic farce."

The allotted money will help provide food and lodging for the cyclists. It will also cover the gasoline and oil expenses of a car to accompany the racers on the southward trip and to return them to the campus.

Other business included a report on Muzak, a system of piped-in taped music. In accordance with a previous legislative enactment, Muzak will be installed on a free trial basis for five weeks in the CUB.

Bell Seeks Workers

Pacific Northwest Bell is now taking applications for full time work. Seniors interested in any sort of career with the telephone company should write to W. W. Metz, general employment manager, Pacific Northwest Bell, 1200 Third Ave., Seattle 1, Wash.

DENTON KEES, ASPLU presidential candidate, puts up one of his posters.

College Day Set For 28th

The Rev. Milton Nesvig, PLU's director of public relations, has been named coordinator of National Christian College Day for the Western States Region. The event, to be observed on Sunday, April 28, annually emphasizes the importance of Christian higher education.

A new approach is planned for the on-campus observance. There will be a full program of activities to which parishes are invited to send members of their church councils and boards of parish education.

As planned, the day will begin with worship at 11 a.m. in Eastvold Chapel, with President Robert Mortvedt bringing the message. The Choir of the West is being asked to provide special music. At noon a smorgasbord dinner will be served, after which student-guided tours of the campus will be available.

A forum discussion will be held in Eastvold Chapel. The Reverend A. G. Fjellman, president of the Pacific Northwest Synod of the Lutheran Church in America, has been invited to speak on the topic, "The Place of the Synod in Christian Higher Education." The Rev. Roy Olson, PLU's church relations officer, will present the place of the parish, and Karl Gronberg, student body president, will speak on "A Student Looks at Christian Higher Education." The university chorus has been asked to present a half-hour concert to end the day.

In addition to the on-campus program, off-campus rallies will be held in the afternoon, with one member of the staff or faculty and one student acting as leaders.

ROD ROSENBLADT (left), chairman of the Daffodil Parade float committee, supervises Randy Stime's work on the float while Wendell Peterson watches. Tonight students will decorate the float. Work will begin at 6 p.m. and continue until the job is finished. Refreshments will be provided, and women will be granted late leaves in order to participate. Pointing out that all students are welcome to take part in the decoration, Chairman Rosenblatt urges everyone to show up tonight at the decoration area on the east side of the CUB. Tomorrow, the ASPLU float, entitled, "My Confirmation Day," will be seen in Tacoma's Daffodil Parade by thousands of on-lookers.

Bicycle Racers Leave Tomorrow Morning

All of the obstacles to the success of the PLU-California Lutheran College bicycle marathon have now been overcome, except for the 1,187 miles that separate the cyclists from the finish line.

Leaving PLU tomorrow morning at 5:30 will be the team of William Flack, John Ellickson and Lynn Berg, who replaces original cyclist Phil Randoy. Skip Anderson, Ed Holsten and Mike Cerda comprise the CLC squad, which starts at the same time from the campus in Thousand Oaks, Calif.

The starting ceremonies for the race took place in front of the CUB this morning for the benefit of news cameramen. The Tacoma Chamber of Commerce and PLU student leaders were involved in the start.

The three cyclists yesterday morning visited Governor Albert Rosellini in Olympia where the governor presented them with a package to deliver to Governor Edmund G. Brown of California. Governor Brown has done the same with the CLC group.

The Arnold, Schwinn Bicycle Co. is providing three 15-speed Schwinn Superior racing bikes through its local wholesaler, the J. E. Bunker Co.

The Perkins Cycle Shop in Tacoma assembled the bicycles and instructed the PLU men in their care. Spare tires, parts and tools were also provided.

The PLU bookstore has outfitted the trio with sweatshirts, shorts and jackets. The school health service gave them physical examinations and arranged for insurance coverage.

PLU President Dr. Robert Mortvedt offered his best wishes to the group, but at the same time cautioned that the race was not an officially sponsored function of the university.

"Since there is nothing approbrious about it, the race is not particularly bad," commented Dr. Mortvedt. "It is far preferable to swallowing gold fish or trundling a bed over a hundred miles of highway."

"On the other hand, it is important that everyone knows that the university as such has not sponsored it," Dr. Mortvedt added. "It is also important that everyone knows we cannot be held responsible for any untoward circumstances which may possibly arise. We certainly hope there will be no accidents and no great discomfort."

Student Body Votes Today

PLU history is being made today as students cast their decisive votes in the student body primary elections. The results of today's elections will determine who runs in the final competition on Monday, April 8.

There have been a few significant changes in the candidate line-up. Ed Davis is withdrawing from the first vice-president race and is putting his support with a write-in candidate for that office—Gary Sund. (Write-in candidates have no constitutional recognition, states Chief Justice Merle Overland of the Judicial Board. However, if elected, they may serve as legitimate, constitutional officers.)

This change leaves the slate of candidates as follows: running for president are Ed Brannfors, Mike McIntyre, and Denton Kees; George Nace and Alexia Henderson are vying for first vice-president, with predicted competition from write-in candidate Gary Sund; competing for second vice-president are Shawn O'Neil and Al Ostenson. In the race for secretary are Ruth Danielson and Linda Zimmer. The three candidates for treasurer are Lynn Berg, Jim Cypert and Karl Kroll.

Posture Contest To Be Held

Scholarships are being awarded as prizes in the Good Posture Contest sponsored by the Washington Chiropractors Association, announced Dr. James A. Leone, chairman of the contest committee. A $500 scholarship will be given to the "young lady who most exemplifies perfect posture, poise, charm and personality." The girl placing second in the statewide contest will receive a $200 scholarship; and the third contestant, a $100 one.

Official entry forms may be obtained from the office of the assistant dean of students. The contest is open to all women between the ages of 17 and 22. Applications must be submitted by April 17.

MIKE McINTYRE shakes hands with voters and asks them to support him for president of the ASPLU.

Forensics Team Wins Honors

For the first time in its history, the local PLU Washington Epsilon Chapter of Pi Kappa Delta (forensics honorary) won sweepstakes awards in both divisions of the national convention-tournament held at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, March 19-23.

Superior certificates were captured in both men's and women's divisions and this was equalled by only four other participating schools. There were 160 schools represented by approximately 800 students.

The men's debate team of Merle Overland and John Stewart won a superior rating; Ron Swift, a superior in oratory and good in discussion; and Merle Overland, excellent in extemporaneous speaking.

Women Also Win

The women's team of Joan Maier and Marilyn Nordlund also rated superior; Marshal Selden received excellent in oratory and Sandy Ellingson, good in extemporaneous.

In addition to the honors brought home by the squad, Professor T. O. H. Karl, advisor to the chapter, was re-elected to the National Council for a two-year term. Also at the convention, Pi Kappa's fiftieth, a bid was made by the local chapter to host the next national convention in 1965.

Federal Aid Arouses Fear

McGeorge Bundy, who is President Kennedy's special assistant for national security affairs, recently informed Princeton alumni that over half of that university's current budget of $44 million for undergraduate and post-graduate education is supplied by federal government contracts. Although Bundy's article in the Princeton Alumni Weekly was entitled "The Blessing That Is Federal Aid," the reaction of the Princeton grads indicated that they consider the massive governmental payments more as a curse than a blessing.

Princeton is only one of a large number of colleges and universities that accept money from the U. S. government.

Private schools like Princeton have traditionally relied on their financial independence as a means to secure their academic independence. A Princeton alumnus summed up the fear of many when he wrote, "Given time . . . financial control of an educational institution by the Federal Government is apt to bring . . . a control of enrollment, control of teachers, control of what is taught and how it is taught."

Isn't it absurd to allow an institution independence from government control when it is dependent on the government for a substantial amount of support? Someday, generous Uncle Sam will ask this question.

Dear Editor:

As students of a Christian university we have a unique and important vocation to become theologically aware. We will be called upon to be valuable contributing members in the Church. Do Heilsgeschichte, existentialism or ecumenism mean anything to us? These terms are very much a part of contemporary theological conversation.

We hear negativism expressed about our limited perspectives on this campus; yet we are called to a conversation with the world. The church extends into all parts of this world.

We have fine opportunities here on this campus for becoming aware. We can be thankful for all the religion courses which are offered. More of us should be making use of upper division credits in this area. Lutheran Students Association is another opportunity for gaining awareness. Our bookstore gives another opportunity: take a look at the religion section.

It is not paradoxical that we seek to be wise and yet reject manifold chances to become so in relation to the most radical idea that influences our world today . . . the Gospel?

What Is The Area Of Student Concern?

by Marilyn Lundblad and Janice Benson

We have on occasion received the impression that certain areas of university life and procedure are deemed to be matters outside the sphere of the student's concern. Sometimes this has been stated rather directly; at other times it has been faintly implied. It has, at any rate, been maintained somewhat frequently.

Student body elections are in the center of campus life now, with each of the presidential candidates proclaiming the importance of the individual student in student government. May we now quote them?

Ed Brannfors: "Student rights by their very nature must be developed, clarified and emphasized if there is to be any semblance of efficient and representative government."

Denton Kees: ". . . that this (student government) truly be one of student participation, participation not by one or a handful of students but by participation by all interested students."

Mike McIntyre: "Student government has the right to help determine policy governing both academic and social life."

Before the role of a student in any form of campus life politics can be defined, it would seem that the role of student government itself in the total university picture should be clarified; that is, the sphere of our direct concern.

It would be impossible to effect a relevant student government without taking an interest in academic and administrative policies. While it is not our function to actively participate in the formation and administration of such policies, we would deem it necessary for this relevant student government to understand and communicate such policies to the individual student.

In order to effect this communication, a student government should have defined to it, by those in direct control of all phases of our university life, the sphere of direct student concern. And we ask this, not as a rigorous definition, but as an answer to the central problem that faces the present and future student governments on this campus.

(Janice Benson is a senior from Seattle who is majoring in biology. Marilyn Lundblad, also a senior, is a chemistry major from Sacramento, Calif. Both represent Harstad Hall in the Legislature.)

The Leveled Lance

by Louis W. Truschel

The foreign aid policy of the United States is currently receiving considerable national contemplation due to the report of a Kennedy-appointed examining committee under Lucius Clay. Aid may be slowed to such left-leaning "neutrals" as Nkrumah's Ghana and Sukarno's Indonesia.

Previous to the Clay report, however, a significant new trend in our foreign aid policy was made manifest in Ceylon, an island nation of eight million which received $79,700,000 in American foreign aid from July 1, 1945, to June 30, 1962. Ceylon is currently led by Prime Minister Sirimavo, the widow and successor of Prime Minister Bandaranaike, who was assassinated by a Buddhist monk in 1959. With Communist and Trotskyite support, the Prime Minister and her Sri Lanka Freedom Party have pushed their neutral nation to the left and have managed to erase the economic and social gains registered by the capitalistically-orientated United National Party, which pushed Ceylon's per capita income up to double India's.

Ceylon Confiscates American Businesses

The current Ceylonese government decided to nationalize American-owned business on the island as a step toward the local version of socialism. A few months ago American gas stations were accordingly confiscated and the companies were refused payment.

In contrast to the lack of effective action taken by Washington four years ago when Cuba's Maximum Leader seized substantially more American property without compensation, the reaction of the Kennedy Administration was both a swift and a clear lesson to other "neutrals" who may contemplate similar nationalization. American economic aid to Ceylon which strengthens the position of the present government there has been cut off. Ceylon may have been forced upon its way to the realization that empty leftist promises do not measure up to capitalistic deliveries.

MOORING MISSED!

by Bob Anderson

We are now in the throes of that uniquely important state in the life of student government known as election day. Here is the test of the support of the students, weighed in mathematically defined terms.

Possibly, and I may suggest it is actually, an inauguration is, at the same time, taking place. The recipient of this installation is the new senior class to be. The office which they assume is one of responsibility more than of honor and glory. As such, it has many times been cast aside.

To those who fit here, the following is dedicated:

Consider the senior
At Pacific Lutheran—
He's ridden the crest of the wave,
Fallen heir to its best and no slave
To books, bells or candles;
Yet, see how he handles
The college life, carefree and gay!

Consider his position
At Pacific Lutheran—
Looked up to with honor and awe,
No wishbone still sticks in his craw
For he does as he wishes.
Ala mode are his dishes
And filled with life, carefree and gay!

Consider his dilemma
At Pacific Lutheran—
He's up there; the top of the four
And we look there, for he is the door
To responsible living.
The example he's giving
Is nil, save life carefree and gay!

Consider his indictment
At Pacific Lutheran—
A great school, but seniorship lacking.
The senior, what school is he backing?
But the school of himself,
And the school of himself,
And the school that is carefree and gay!

If a "responsible citizenry" exists as more than myth, it would be so awfully nice to see a little more of it among those to whom yearly succession indicates as the natural leaders of campus life.

Athletic Eligibility Headed By Karl

by Bob Giesler

One of the most influential participants in PLU's world of sports and yet relatively unknown for his important role is Mr. T. O. H. Karl.

Mr. Karl is head of the Department of Speech at PLU. This in itself is very time consuming. It is extremely interesting to explore Mr. Karl's association with sports and find out how much he has actually done besides teaching and coaching his excellent forensics squad.

Mr. Karl came to PLU in 1940 and left in 1942. During this time he did numerous sports broadcasts. He broadcasted the PLU-Gonzaga game in 1941; this was the year of PLU's wonder team. On the day before the bombing of Pearl Harbor, he broadcasted a special game here in Tacoma between Texas A. & M. and Washington State. He also coached tennis and track for a year. He went to Gustavus Adolphus College on a three year scholarship to coach swimming. He also played football there.

Mr. Karl returned to PLU in 1948 and started broadcasting games again. In 1950 he was made Faculty Representative to the Evergreen Conference. This is a position filled by an appointment from the President of the University. Mr. Karl still holds this position. The Evergreen

PROFESSOR KARL

Conference is represented by one faculty representative and the athletic directors of each of the schools in the Conference. Mr. Karl has served as President of the Evergreen Conference two different times, once in the mid-1950's and once again in 1959. During his first term of office, he was instrumental in setting up a system of academic and eligibility standards for the Conference. Our Conference is now one of the top Conferences in the nation in this respect. It is considered one of the very best in the NAIA. The maximum standards necessary in the NAIA are basically the minimum in the Evergreen Conference as concerns rules of eligibility and academic.

Mr. Karl has been faculty representative for District I of the NAIA for five years. He has been back to Kansas City four times at the same time that our Lutes were there.

Mr. Karl, though constitutionally unable to serve as an officer on the national council of NAIA, was asked to serve as an advisory member. He has served in an advisory capacity to a group of college presidents organized as an interest group of the NAIA.

Mr. Karl has been chairman of the National Committee on Conference Liaison for the NAIA and also the Academic Standards and Eligibility standards for the NAIA.

PLU Students Enjoy Scuba Diving

by Gary Sund

Throughout the fall, winter, and spring athletic seasons at PLU, there continues a small group of our students who are athletes in a very different sense. These are the scuba divers, representatives of one of the fastest growing outdoor recreations in the country.

Though by no means a simple activity, it can be enjoyed with a small amount of original investment. The beginning scuba diver, after he has passed the snorkle stage, will generally purchase a wet suit, a single lung, a regulator, a weight belt, and a spear gun, all for the cost of about $150. From this point, there is no limit to the amount of enjoyment, the degree of expansion, and the cost of further equipment.

The state of Washington is perhaps the most outstanding scuba diving area in that its facilities are unlimited. Hood Canal, Brown's Point, Point Defiance, the Straits of Juan de Fuca, and the many ocean ports are among the favorites of our campus scuba divers.

These facilities are utilized nearly every weekend by PLU divers. Con Houge, a senior from Canby, Ore., is perhaps our most ardent fan. He has among his accomplishments caught one of the world's largest ling cod, won several diving tournaments, and wrestled innumerable cetipi to the surface. He, along with Dick McGinnis, John Stevens, Mike Allen, Bill Peterson and others, will participate in the third annual scuba diving treasure hunt to be held at Point Defiance this Sunday. This event is sponsored by the local club and provides many worthwhile and valuable prizes. Last year, Houge captured the "treasure chest" grand prize which included $25.

Regardless of their success this year, you can be assured that this group will continue their weekend novel sport and add many more divers to their already growing organization. Hogue has often maintained that the satisfaction of the accomplishments and the skill involved are incomparable.

Golf Team Loses To Seattle Univ.

The Seattle University golf team made things a little unpleasant for the Knights as they scored a 14½ to 3½ point victory in the season's opening match.

The strong Seattle U. team had two men under par for the 18 holes. Doug Johnson, the Chiefs' number six man, was medalist for the day with a four under par 66. The PLU points were earned by Dave Evans, Gordy Severson and John Dirlam. Evans scored two points, Severson one, and Dirlam one-half.

Thinclads Face L.C. Saturday; Baseball Team Meets Vikings

After a week's lay off the Pacific Lutheran track team will take on the Lewis and Clark Pioneers in what could be the Knights' toughest test of the season. The dual meet with the visiting Oregon team is scheduled to get under way at 1:30 on the PLU oval.

Without doubt the Knights are the underdogs of the meet but several individuals stand a strong chance of capturing first place and points. Chuck Snekvik, the flying redhead from Walnut Creek, Calif., will be a strong contender in the 880 yard run. In his first outing Snekvik turned in a 2:02 time. Other individuals to watch will be PLU's one-two punch in the quarter mile, Bob Sanders and Norris Satter; Curt Gammell in the high jump, and Craig Knutzen in the field events.

After a strong but losing effort against the Central Washington Wildcats the baseball team will travel to Western Washington to meet last year's conference champions. In last Tuesday's doubleheader at Central the Knights lost both games, 5-0 and 2-0, yet looked strong enough to convince some fans that they might be a threat before this season ends. Jerry Curtis took up where he left off last year, banging out three hits and stealing four bases.

The young and inexperienced tennis team will also be traveling to Bellingham to meet the Viking netters. The PLU team will be in search of its first win in two years.

Library Announces Theme For National Library Week

"Advice and Counsel for the Librarian" is the theme to be used at PLU during National Library Week, April 22-27. In keeping with its efforts to be responsive to the students and faculty, the library will provide opportunities through the week for library users to express their opinions.

A question box will be placed in the lobby of the library, and a space for students to express their views will be provided on the back of the chapel bulletin. The library desires comments on practices it should continue, ones it should stop or new practices it should institute. The comments will be reviewed by a committee consisting of Dr. George Arbaugh of the faculty library committee, Librarian Frank Haley, Dolly Moody of the Mooring Mast and a member to be chosen from the student library committee. Communication is essential to efficient operation of the library at all times. Five years ago a full inventory was taken, and the library reported to the student body the number of missing volumes and the need for the checking out of all materials.

The partial inventory of this year showed that, while circulation almost doubled in the last five years, losses were cut in half. This cut in losses

Off-Campus Students Merge

As a major blow to segregation, the off-campus men and women have formed a common organization. Officially titled Associated Off-Campus Students of Pacific Lutheran University, the new federation now awaits only the ratification of its constitution by the administration and Legislature to become an official student organization.

Early in the year the newly-formed organization of off-campus men, mysteriously named OFF (Order of Faraway Fellows), found that it did its best work in cooperation with Delta Rho Gamma, the corresponding women's group. After working jointly on homecoming (Administration Building) and Christmas (CUB) decorations and some social events, the groups decided to merge and have been working on a constitution since the beginning of the semester. Currently the new group is producing a home-address directory, which will go on sale soon after vacation.

indicates to the library that the students are willing to cooperate.

Again the need for communication was shown in the reaction to the library's cancellation of the subscriptions to the weekly news magazines. As a result of this reaction, the student library committee was formed.

National Library Week, April 22-27, is a time when students and faculty members are specifically encouraged to express their opinions on the library.

Choir Takes Second Tour

Palm Sunday weekend finds the Choir of the West on its second tour for the 1962-63 season. This time they are heading south. The first concert of the tour is tonight in Eugene, Ore. After a picnic lunch at Silver Springs State Park tomorrow, they will sing at Immanuel Lutheran in Silverton.

Two concerts are scheduled for Sunday, the first at Trinity Lutheran of Vancouver at 4:00 p.m., and the second at Central Lutheran in Portland. The concert in Portland on Palm Sunday evening is an annual event for the choir, following a tradition that began ten or fifteen years ago.

Besides the regular concert, the choir is in the process of adding several new Scandinavian numbers to its present program. These new selections include a traditional Norwegian hymn, "I Jesu Navn"; a traditional Swedish hymn, "Trygare Kan Ingen Vara"; a contemporary Danish number, the third of "3 Motetter" (Three Motets) by Bernhard Lewkovitch (which will be sung in Norwegian); and finally, the last composition ever written by Edvard Grieg, "Hvad Est Du Dog Skjon," the fourth in a series of four hymns. The choir plans to sing these numbers for the "Norskies" and "Swedes" of the four cities mentioned above before they sing before the natives next June.

Luther League Sponsors Teams

The North Pacific District Luther League is sponsoring two deputation teams to travel in Washington and Oregon for a month this summer. The groups, consisting of five members each, will begin their service on June 7. Half of the ten team members will be selected from applicants at PLU; the other half will come from the Lutheran Bible Institute in Seattle.

All expenses plus "pin money" will be provided. Students interested in participating in this deputation should pick up applications in the office of Pastor Roy Olson, the director of church relations. The completed forms must be returned to Pastor Olson by April 8.

Randy Stime, president of the College Affiliated Laymen's League, urges "joyous, glowing, giving Christians blessed with musical and communicating abilities" to apply.
