Dean Charles Anderson Resigns; Plans Sabbatical

Dr. Charles A. Anderson, member of the Pacific Lutheran University faculty since 1959 and dean of the College of Arts and Sciences since 1965, has submitted his resignation as dean effective August 31, 1970.

In making the announcement Eugene W. Wiegman, PLU president, stated that Dr. Anderson will remain at PLU as a member of the teaching faculty. Dr. Anderson was chairman of the department of chemistry prior to his promotion to the deanship.

In his letter of resignation, Dr. Anderson stated, "When I accepted the appointment as Dean. . .it was with the plan that I would not wish to continue in that position for more than four years because as it has been constituted here it has not been permitted me a sufficient degree of involvement in my discipline of chemistry to satisfy my long term interests. . .I would have resigned from my position as Dean effective last summer but decided that I had the responsibility of continuing for one year beyond Dr. Mortvedt's retirement (Dr. Robert Mortvedt retired August 1, 1969).

Volunteers Urged To Host Series Of 'Community Issues For Action' Discussions

A series of small group discussions dealing with pollution, human relations, conflict in city government and renewal of the city will be held throughout Tacoma beginning next week, according to Robert Menzel, director of Center for Human Organization in Changing Environments (CHOICE) at PLU.

Involved in the project are several PLU faculty and staff members, in conjunction with KPEC-TV (Clover Park) and the Urban Coalition. Along with Menzel, they are Dr. Lowell Culver, director of the PLU urban affairs program; Marshall Enderby (economics) and Judd Doughty (broadcast services).

Associated Ministries of Tacoma, formerly the Tacoma Council of Churches, is also taking part.

Between 50 and 100 groups will meet in homes, churches and community centers to view televised programs dealing with the subject under discussion over KPEC-TV, (UHF channel 56). Following the program, discussions will be led by resource people assigned to the discussion groups.

DEAN ANDERSON

Dr. Anderson has requested a year's sabbatical leave starting Sept. 1, 1970. If this is granted, he states that he would be primarily interested in teaching and research in the department of chemistry.

In accepting the resignation with reluctance, President Wiegman expressed thanks for Dr. Anderson's wise administration as dean, promised that he would recommend the sabbatical year requested, and said he was happy that Dr. Anderson plans to return for the 1971-72 year to teach and pursue research. "With your help, I am confident our academic and research programs in the science departments will be truly outstanding," he said. "I look forward to our professional personal associations in the years ahead."

Each program will be held three times a week, Monday and Wednesday at 8 p.m. and Thursday at 7:30 p.m., and will continue for four weeks with a different subject each week. Hosts may choose which day during the week is most convenient.

The name of the entire project is Community Issues for Action (CIFA). Menzel urges faculty and staff members to host discussion groups and invite their friends and neighbors to attend. Groups of about 15 people are preferred.

Further information is available by contacting Menzel at the CHOICE center, ext. 397.

The class will meet one night a week for 14 weeks, beginning in mid-October. Participants will receive four hours of college credit.

The course deals with income tax consequences of various real estate transactions and with the tax advantages of different forms of ownership. It is directed principally to real estate brokers and salesmen, developers and investors.

PRESIDENT WIEGMAN LAUDS
LOCAL BANKS FOR LOAN APPROVALS

Approval of student educational loans by two of Tacoma's banking institutions was praised Friday by President Wiegman.

The National Bank of Washington and Puget Sound National Bank continued their policy of approving many student loans, especially upperclassmen and returning students, while many other institutions have been refusing such loan applications.

With today's high interest rates, many banking institutions have found faster ways of using their funds, rather than in long-term, low interest loans made to students.

Legislation determining student loan interest rates was passed in Congress this past week, though the legislation came too late for many students registering early this month.

Noting the efforts of the two local banks, Dr. Wiegman said, "Their decision was really monumental in that they stuck their neck out before Congressional action was taken.

"They are to be complimented for their great trust in the youth of our country," he added.

Student loans are not money-making loans as they are granted at a lower interest rate and for a longer period of time than most loans, he pointed out.
