Dr. Wiegman Visits PLU Campus

DR. EUGENE WIEGMAN

Committment. . .relevance. . .
like-mindedness. . .academic standards. . .
student participation. . .

These and many other ideals and goals were stressed by Dr. Eugene W. Wiegman during a four-day visit at PLU which ended Monday.

Dr. Wiegman will succeed Dr. Robert Mortvedt as president of the university in August.

A committment to a way of life, the Christian way of life, is one of the intangebles a church related institution like PLU can offer that other liberal arts or state schools can't, he emphasized. This, he admitted, was one of the things he missed at Federal City College in Washington, D. C., where he is presently a dean.

He does, however, see PLU as broadening its old image as a homogeneously Lutheran, Norwegian institution in order to serve a wider community.

Dr. Wiegman spoke of relevance in terms of understanding the historic and culutral development of the past in order to more properly and practically relate to what is relevant in the present.

Physics Department Receives Two Grants

Pacific Lutheran University is the recipient of two grants this spring which will help in developing and continuing undergraduate education program in physics.

The National Science Foundation is providing $4,200 to sponsor undergraduate participation in research for 10 weeks during the summer. The projects include theoretical study of low energy interaction and quadruple resonance and surface physics.

A $2,500 grant has been received from the General Electric Foundation which will help support the overall physics program and make possible research and laboratory equipment additions.

Seven members of the PLU forensics team have qualified for the National Pi Kappa Delta Debate Tournament at Tempe, Ariz., March 31-April 5.

The tournament is held in conjunction with the annual conference of the national forensics honorary. Theodore O. H. Karl, chairman of the PLU speech department, is completing his second year as president of the national organization.

PLU students competing are Cathy Collins, interpretive speaking and oratory; Jim Collins, extemporaneous speaking; Barbara Thompson, extemporaneous speaking; Pattie Cowell, debate; Harry Wicks, oratory and championship division debate; Lynn Moody, debate and extemporaneous speaking; and William Boerger, discussion.

The national honorary presently has 264 chapters and more than 42,000 members. Seven Lutheran schools, including PLU, have chapters.

Dr. Weigman On Campus....

Like-mindedness, he explained, does not mean that we all agree on specific methods and goals. But the common thrust of Christian endeavor gives this type of institution a focus that is not possible at other types of schools.

Commenting on PLU's involvement in the education of the disadvantaged, Dr. Wiegman asserted that academic standards need not be lowered. "The disadvantaged student would resent a university compromising its standards to accomodate him. It would be a new form of the old paternalism, he said.

Instead, he saw special tutoring, summer programs, financial help and innovative teaching methods as ways of dealing with the problem.

He also saw the students as participants in the life of the university, stressing that they should provide more input into university affairs.

Avenues of communication should be kept open, he said. "In many cases, schools have not been able to respond quickly to student concerns so they become demands.

With the help of advisors in all areas, Dr. Wieg an will seek to effectively "wear three or four hats" during his administration. He viewed the presidency as a position requiring the talents of an academician, fund-raiser, administrator and public relations man.

DR. ARBAUGH

RECEIVES.

SUMMER

GRANT

Dr. George E. Arbaugh, chairman of the philosophy department at Pacific Lutheran University, has been given a $1,080 grant by the Council for Philosophical Studies to attend a six-week summer conference in political and legal philosophy at the University of California at Irvine.

Purpose of the conference, which will run from June 23 to August 1, is to benefit scholarship and teaching in philosophy by enabling dedicated and able teachers to come in close contact with leading scholars in their field.

The conference staff will include Bertrand de Jouvenal, U. of Paris; Joel Feinberg, Rockefeller U.; Herbert Morris, UCLA; Joseph Tussman, U. of California, Berkeley; Richard Wollheim, U. of London; and Richard Wassterstrom, UCLA.

Kollar, Miller Honored At Winter Sports Banquet

Kollar, Coach Lundgaard and Miller

Al Kollar, Pacific Lutheran University's All-Northwest Conference forward, was named Most Valuable Player at the PLU winter sports banquet last Tuesday evening.

Winner of the Inspirational Trophy for the second consecutive year was Kevin Miller, the Knights' 5-10 floor general.

Miller and Kollar were also selected by their teammates to co-captain the 1969-70 basketball squad.

Kollar, a 6-6 junior, led the Knights in field goal percentage, rebounding and per game scoring average this past season. His 969 career points place him llth on the all-time PLU list with one year to play.

Miller, a second team All-NWC choice along with junior forward Leroy Sinnes and freshman center Ake Palm, averaged six points a game for the Lutes.

Sinnes was the team scoring leader with 340 points.

Thirty-five athletes in three sports were presented letters. There were 11 basketball letters awarded, 10 wrestling and 14 swimming.

Randy Senn Earns All-America Honors

Steve Senn, Coach Alseth and Randy

SENN BROTHERS PLACE AT NAIA NATIONALS

PLU' Randy Senn held a national small college swim mark for a few hours Saturday, but lost the mark and the race in the NAIA finals at George Williams College near Chicago.

Randy led the 100-yard butterfly qualifyers in 53.7 seconds and swam even faster in the finals (53.3), but finished second to David Tempkin of Claremont, Mudd, Calif., in the finals.

He also led the 50-yard freestyle qualifyers in 21.9, but slipped to third in the finals.

He finished sixth in the 100-yard freestyle after easing up to save himself for the butterfly final.

Steve Senn, a freshman, qualified 12th in the 50-yard butterfly and finished 12th in the 200-yard individual medley.

Randy Senn became PLU's first NAIA All-American swimmer with his performances at the national meet last week, according to coach Rich Alseth.

The Lute junior qualified for the honor in two events, the 100-yard butterfly and the 50-yard freestyle, based on his qualifying time.

The first three places in each event at nationals achieve All-American status, according to Alseth.

Randy, the first PLU swimmer to earn All-American status, became the 10th first team All-American athlete in the school's history.

PERMIT NO. 416
TACOMA, WASHINGTON

DR + MRS P HAUGE 717 SO 120TH ST TACOMA WA 98444 An Invitation to Join the Lutheran Academy for Scholarship.

The Lutheran Academy for Scholarship was organized in 1942 to help spell out the Lutheran ethic in various walks of life. The Academy exists as a means whereby professionally trained persons belonging to the Lutheran Church may jointly confront and discuss the major problems of church and society, as an instrument providing an opportunity for the individual member to contribute at his level of accomplishment to the thought and life of the Lutheran Church, as an instrument helping to preserve and develop the distinctive accents of Lutheranism within our pluralistic society, and as a means of creating opportunities to discuss and to formulate the specific ethical concerns of the Lutheran Church in various academic disciplines and in particular professions.

The Lutheran Academy for Scholarship organizes and conducts symposia and conferences designed to explore the significance and meaning of the advance of knowledge in the twentieth century to the Christian faith.

It concerns itself especially with ethical implications and problems of the various disciplines and professions.

It recognizes outstanding achievement in various fields of learning, research, and production.

The Lutheran Academy for Scholarship invites applications for membership from those who share its interests and concerns and who hold an academic degree beyond the bachelor's degree.

The Lutheran Academy for Scholarship is a non-profit organization incorporated under the laws of the State of Missouri and recognized as a tax exempt organization by the Internal Revenue Service.

Lutherans on the faculty are eligible.
The Academy is worthwhile and could use the support of more of us. Brochures and applications are available in my office.
