The 1966 Lutes had a record of 2 wins, 5 losses and 2 ties (1-3-2 in Northwest Conference play), and had a total offense mark of 256.6 yards per game to 289.0 for their opponents. They set a new school pass interception record by snatching 22 aerials from opposing quarterbacks.

Quarterback Lister led in total offense amassing 750 yards in the air and 290 on the ground for an average of 130 yards per game in the eight games in which he played. Ken Harding, junior halfback, led in rushing with 303 yards, and freshman Lee Davidson was next with 286. Lloyd Eggan, junior halfback who broke a leg in the early going of the seventh game of the season against Pacific, gained 254 yards from scrimmage.

Eaton, the yearling end who didn't make the starting eleven until the last - 3 four games of the season, led the pass receivers with 39 for 405 yards. He set a new school record last Saturday (Nov. 12) (continued in next column)

VISITS CAMPUS ond vice president of Mortar Board was on the PLU campus last week as a visitor for her organization.

Her report of the visit will be presented to the national committee in June of 1967. Miss Margaret Wickstrom, Dean of Women, said the committee will decide whether or not to establish a Mortar Board chapter on the PLU campus.

Miss Wickstrom said she was en-* couraged by the visit, as the Tassels * have been trying for years to become a local society of Mortar Board.

* She said this is the first time * the national organization has sent a representative to campus.

* If the national committee approves a Mortar Board chapter for PLU, Miss Wickstrom said it would probably * by one or two years before it was actually established.

Several other colleges in the area, including University of Puget Sound, Washington State, Whitman and Willamette have Mortar Board chapters.

against Willamette when he caught 12 passes for 120 yards. Eaton's 12 grabs tied the Northwest Conference record set by R. C. Owens at the College of Idaho in 1953.

Harding figured in the longest gainer of the season when he hauled in a Lister pass for an 81-yard touchdown play in the final seconds of the Willamette game. Davidson's 74 yard romp for a touchdown against Whitman was the longest run from scrimmage for the season.

In the defensive department Nelson. led the Knight stop department by being in on over 13 tackles per game. The burly -linebacker, who transferred from Columbia Basin last year, made 89 unassisted tackles and was in on 30 others.

Three contemporary one-act plays ONE-ACT featuring experimental drama will be presented tonight. PLAYS SET Saturday and Monday evenings at 8:00 in the PLU Classroom Building auditorium. They are "The Fall of the City," "The Leader," and "A Slight Ache."

"The Fall of the City," written for radio by Archibald MacLeish, will demonstrate visual and auditory effects of the theater-in-the-round. Paul Hartman will be the announcer in the play, and Patricia Zeller the dancer.

The second play will be "The Leader," written by Eugene Ionesco. Timothy Sherry has the lead role in this bizarre one-act.

The final play of the evening will be "A Slight Ache," written by Harold Pinter. He is recognized as one of the most arresting and original talents at work in the British theatre. Christine McMurdo, David Vold and Michael Doolittle share the spotlight in this play.

Kathy Vold, a PLU senior, is directing the Alpha Psi Omega sponsored plays.

The plays are open to the public. Tickets are 50 cents for students and 75 cents for adults, and they can be bought at the PLU information desk.

FACULTY INFORMATION SUPPLEMENT

GROUP TO STUDY

The Association for Higher Education announced the selection of a blueribbon task force to conduct a comprehensive study of faculty salaries and working conditions in the nation's colleges and universities.

"The task force will attempt to identify and deal with issues raised by the growing interest of faculty members in finding more effective ways to improve faculty salaries, promotions and other related matters," said G. Kerry Smith, AHE executive secretary.

AHE is a department of the National Education Association with a membership of 22,300 faculty members and administrators in more than 1,600 institutions of higher education.

Arnold Weber, professor of economics, Graduate School of Business at the University of Chicago, is chairman of the task force on academic negotiations.

The task force, the first project of AHE's new campus governance and communications program, made possible this fall by a $375,000 grant from the Charles F. Kettering Foundation, will examine possible alternatives to collective bargaining.

The governance program is a study and action project designed to aid colleges and universities in the improvement of their internal administration and communications, and to better relations among college students, faculty, and administrators.

As part of the study, the American Association of University Professors and other higher education organizations will send consultants to a series of four meetings to be held over the next four months.

"Fact-finding studies of academic negotiations procedures currently in use at public and private junior-community colleges, four-year colleges, and universities will be conducted by the task force," Smith said.

Discussions in depth, involving faculty members, deans, college presidents, and trustees, will also be held.

Other task force members are: Henry H. Bagish, associate professor of social science, Santa Barbara City College; C. Addison Hickman, professor of economics, Southern Illinois University; John C. Livingston, professor of government, Sacramento State College and chairman, State Academic Senate, California State Colleges; Walter E. Oberer, professor of law, Cornell University; and Charles Rehmus, professor of economics and codirector, Institute of Industrial Relations, University of Michigan.

* LIBRARY Starting on Monday following Thanksgiving * a new charge-out time for books and period-* icals from the library will go into effect.
