Voting Next Tuesday, Wednesday Will Determine ASPLC Officers

May 12 and 13 have been set as the dates for the election of ASPLU officers for 1960-61. Next Tuesday morning in student body chapel, presidential candidates will present their views and platforms for the coming year.

Statements of purpose from the presidential candidates and qualifications for all the candidates are presented below.

Norman Dahl—"In aspiring to the ASPLU presidency, my only desire is to get a job done. Too often student government tends to become entangled with itself. It shall be my effort to direct the student government as efficiently as possible. The proposed revision of the ASPLU Constitution is a step in the right direction toward more efficient government. It shall be my desire to carry out the function of student government without it becoming burdensome on those governed or those governing."

Qualifications: Inter-Club Council treasurer, secretary-treasurer and vice-president of Lettermen's Club, deacon of Student Congregation, member of Constitutional Change Committee.

Ted Johnstone—"The coming school year 1960-61 will be a year where we as a student body can assert a vital and lasting influence upon our school. It is important that student government involve itself in establishing the traditions and influence of our University in its first year.

"In order to assert our influence we must enact ideas and interests that would induce a University attitude. We must provide an even stronger working understanding with the administration and faculty, use the new Social Activities Board to promote more quality than quantity to our extra-curricular life, use the lecture series and academic clubs to increase the academic clubs to increase the academic and cultural atmosphere, and use student govern-

Daffodils to Adorn Floats Tomorrow

"Pearl of the Pacific" will be the theme of this year's daffodil float entry, saluting the new state of Hawaii.

Co-chairmen John Jacobson and Ralph Carskadden report that the 30 by 12 foot float has an all-new frame and motor, and that the Engineering Club will have it ready to be filled with flowers by tonight.

The structure will be covered with 33,000 daffodils and 11,000 daisies. It will feature a huge bird of paradise flower and a pearl drawn by two sea horses.

The entire student body is urged to stuff the float tonight, beginning at 6:30 p.m. The women will be allowed late leaves for the evening.

The parade will be held tomorrow morning.

ment to extend the University's influence within the community."

Johnstone has held leadership posts in Luther League and has been freshman class vice-president, chairman of the Student Congregation board of trustees, vice-president of Circle-K, Evergreen Court vice-president, junior class student council representative. He is also a member of Blue Key.

Warren Willis—"There is no other foundation than that which is laid on Jesus Christ. Unless my platform be Jesus Christ it would seem to me in vain. Unless we organize our student body around, on, in Jesus Christ it would seem that we organize in vain. When we are not wholly centered in Him, do not our personal lives become needlessly entangled? He gives wisdom and strength to those who lead in Him. To him whom God chooses to lead this student body, to him the Lord will give strength and wisdom to guide."

Willis has held many leadership positions at local, circuit and district levels in Luther League. He was vice-president and president of his high school student body. At PLC he was freshman class president and a student congregation trustee, and is now vice-president of AMS.

Ashram, Anyone?

by Bob LeBlanc

Our generation of students is asking many questions: What is the purpose of our education? How can we really know God? What is campus morality in 1960? How do the truths of research relate to the truths of doctrine? What is truth? The "Ashram" will provide the opportunity to search together for some of the answers.

In order to prepare students from all over the nation to live their lives in close association with God, the LSA each year holds a gathering known as the "Ashram." But wait; this isn't a convention. The Ashram is a "corporate spiritual quest" in which this year about 500 students will discuss the "Mission of the Church in Higher Education."

Main speakers for the week-long event will be Doctor Wolfgang Zucker and Doctor Alvin Rogness. Doctor Zucker, a native of Germany, is well-known for his many international contacts with the church, and he has become an expert on several phases of the life and mission of the church. His deep interest in student Christian work has brought him as speaker to many campuses and to many regional, national and international student conferences.

Doctor Rogness is at present president of Luther Theological Seminary in St. Paul, Minnesota. He has been a delegate at the two most recent Lutheran World Federation Assemblies, and he has written several books. He received his D.D. from PLC in 1949.

Extra-curricular opportunities to be offered include the Ashram choir, drama, an arts program presented in evening salon hours, organized recreation, a bookstore, a mixer, and a Western Chuck Wagon. Tentative plans for drama include a presentation of "Waiting for Godot," by Samuel Beckett, performed by the PLC cast.

The Ashram, this wonderful opportunity to have a week-long spiritual encounter with other Christians, is open to anyone. It is the hope of the LSA board that many PLC students will be able to be in Estes Park, Colorado, from August 29-September 4 for this meeting.

Contact Meg Evanson, Dave Gaenicke, or Bob LeBlanc now concerning attending the Ashram.

WHY HAVE VACATION?

Because "this Jesus, delivered up according to the definite plan and foreknowledge of God, you crucified and killed by the hands of lawless men. But God raised him up, having loosed the pangs of death, because it was not possible for him to be held by it. For David says concerning him, 'I saw the Lord always before me, for he is at my right hand that I may not be shaken.'"

Acts 2:23-25

Fidel Fiddles While Cuba . . .

by Gordon Sielthaug

Premier Fidel Castro's Cuba appears to be in a superimposed state of degradation. Finance and land reforms have become as muddy as Lake Spanaway to a Montanan and as deep as a Texas oil well to a Texan. Castro has cut off virtually all the 75 million U. S. dollars poured into Cuban industry each year by snatching most industrial holdings including the recently developed nickel mines. Plantations, too, have been "returned" by the landholders for proper distribution to the landless peasants and so collective farms have been organized, structurally similar to those in Red China.

Communist leaders, propaganda, and possibly money, have been flowing into Cuba to become used for high and noble purposes. The communist influences have been used to depict Uncle Sam as the ruthless and tyrannical inseminator of all the country's problems. Under "U. S. control" the buzzing of Havana by airplanes and thousands of other major offenses have been committed—from the under-production of foodstuffs to the production of babies.

Castro, in the effort to be a Christ incarnate, has thrown all guilt to the United States through the effort exerted by himself, his brother Raul, director of the army, and Ernesto Guevor, director of labor and industry. This triumvirate, working under a seemingly inarticulate pattern, may possibly be working toward a complete condition of chaos which may more fully breed a wholehearted communistic program. By all apparent evidence complete communism is the ultimate of Castro.

However, the one possible oasis in the Castro Desert is that of revolution—the very thing which brought Fidel to power. So strongly has revolution been inbred in our South American neighbors that it may well prove to upset the Cuban apple-cart and bruise the Red apples within.

At the present time Fidel's former brother-in-law, Dr. Diaz Balart, is leading a strong anti-Castro, pro-democracy revolt from New York. Typical of many small, disunited organizations, it operates from headquarters in the United States and is growing in numbers.

At the present time such organizations claim much of the army, landholders and disillusioned patriots; however, the illiterate mass of people and landless peasants still deify Castro and look to "the bearded one" for all needs.

The unpleasant picture just shown is one which comes as a result of a power-maimed person with Hitler-like tendencies interested not in the amount of bloodshed used for red pigment but interested in the end result—a state-owned masterpiece with a distinctly Red tint.

Room for Two at the Top

by Lyle Pearson

The Academy Awards have been handed out and now it's safe for anyone to state "I thought (fill in your favorite title) was the best film of the year." You have the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences on your side if you think that BEN-HUR deserved its award, and if you disagree and organize your reasons, you won't have people yelling "You're out of your mind, Charlie Brown. There wasn't another film in 1959 as good as BEN-HUR."

There were many good films released in the past year, and at least two strong candidates for Most Important Film of the year.

BEN-HUR probably was the best film of 1959. It certainly had the most universal message, greatest visual impact and the best rehearsed cast. I'm not suggesting that Charlton Heston was cast as Moses in THE TEN COMMANDMENTS just to warm him up for the role of Juda Ben-Hur, but the Hollywood religion tradition seems to have found a culmination in this 15 million dollar film. It is one more step, even though it is done with remarkable taste and power, in the Bible-on-the-screen series. All of its virtues could make any small screen, black and white production unimpressive.

And yet ROOM AT THE TOP, a small screen, black and white production that was also nominated for the Academy Award as best film of the year seems to express just as much Truth as does BEN-HUR, and uses the motion picture form just as artfully. Not the culmination of any tradition in films, it is a lonely work of art that bares a Truth so bitter that many people find it nihilistic. The core of the film is this argument: "There is always room at the top in the business world or in society. But is the price that an individual must pay to reach the 'Top' really worth the climb?"

The story used to expand this idea, dealing more with the lower-class background and personal life of the hero than a corrupt business world, is as sordid as the story behind BEN-HUR is optimistic.

The two films seem to complement each other, expressing entirely opposing views on the state of man, and are as difficult to choose between as Ringling Brothers and Rebalais. If you do see both films and choose the "Best Film of the Year" on any criteria besides spectacle and pomp, you probably will make your decision on your immediate mood or personal philosophy of life.

THE TRIO—Gerry Erickson, Eric Ottum and Norm Dahl.

How to Make a Trio

by Ruth Walker

A favorite entertainment group at PLC is the men's trio which is called just that—The Trio. Comprised of Norm Dahl, Eric Ottum and Gerry Erickson, the successful "triumvirate" is in great demand because of its versatility, humor and talent. From the controlled clowning of "Olly Anna" to the deep feeling of "Across the Wide Missouri," they have thrilled audiences at PLC recently.

The group got together rather haphazardly. Some of them were in a similar group last year, but really hadn't organized this year until one night they got together with Norm's guitar—and from then on they were The Trio. Their practice hours are also pretty haphazard; they usually wait till they've been asked to perform before they really work. Then they spend the late, late hours harmonizing in the lounge at Evergreen.

All three come from a musical background. Eric's father is a singing instructor, so he has grown up with music. Besides singing in the choir and other music groups, he also plays the clarinet. Norm is now singing in the Madrigals and has studied the violin for over ten years. Gerry also has a father who is a music instructor. He sings in the choir, Madrigals, and the Ambassador Quartet.

Concerning future plans, Gerry's graduation this spring will break up the group, but this really isn't a problem as they sing mainly for the fun of it; they have had a real good time.

Is Photography Art?

by Kitti Murphy

In an interview, Mr. Elwell, art instructor, gave some of his ideas on photography as an art.

Although photography might not be considered too creative, since the camera records just what is before it, developments have been made in the camera, making it possible to control it in various methods. Now it is possible to limit the field of vision. With a single lens-reflex camera one can see what effect the focus is having before the picture is taken. In this way he can photograph relationships of things much better than he could before the single lens-reflex camera.

Photography can be an art, for the photographer actually creates in his mind before he takes the picture. "He must have awareness of qualities of nature, then act on it by making a choice." Nature guides him but he does the seeking out. Individuality can be seen, for instance, in master photographers who have definite characteristics in their own work.

An example of a modern abstract photographer is Haas, who concentrates on relationships rather than on objects. You may have noticed some of his work in Life Magazine. Siskind, another example of a modern photographer, specializes in simple classic statements of basic form, resembling work of the sculptor, Arp.

Blomquist, Olson Help Whip CWC In Doubleheader

With two wins over Central (6-1, 6-1), the Gladiator baseball team is starting to live up to their high hopes for this season. The seven inning doubleheader gave the Wildcats only two runs on nine hits, while the Lutes collected 12 runs on 16 hits.

The solid wood from Al Blomquist and Gary Olson, both hitting .429, provided the backbone for the Lutes' batting.

Run number one was set up when Al Blomquist singled to left and reached second on a left fielder's error. Then Glen Campbell doubled down the third base line bringing Blomquist across.

Regional ACS Meet on Campus

The annual joint meeting of the ACS Student Affiliate Chapters from St. Martin's College, the University of Puget Sound, the University of Washington, and PLC, was held on the PLC campus last Saturday. A total of approximately fifty students and faculty advisors were present.

At the morning session students presented the following papers: "Chromatographic Separation of Fatty Acids," Roger Lundblad, PLC; "The Willgerodt Reaction," James Snyder, St. Martin's; "Electroluminescence—The Light of the Future," James Francis, UPS; "Chemistry of Cerebrosides," Jerald Armstrong, PLC; and "The Effect of Ionic Radiation and Radiomimetic Chemicals on the Living Cells," Neal Berg, St. Martin's.

The latter paper, in which Mr. Berg discussed the disruption of cell control that results from radiation cleavage or chemical modification of the cell's deoxyribonucleic acid, was considered the best student talk of the day and awarded a cash prize by the PLC Chapter. Mr. Loyd V. Johnson, chief chemist at the Hooker Chemical Corporation plant in Tacoma, judged the talks.

Dr. Vernon Miller, director of chemical research at the Puyallup Western Washington Experiment Station of Washington State University, was the featured speaker of the day. Speaking after a luncheon served in Knutzen Hall, Dr. Miller discussed the role of chemistry in agricultural research. He made special mention of the Experiment Station's work on fluoride sensitive plants and the control of bulb plant diseases.

Effort—Possible Source of Solar Energy," Miss Kathy Bates, UPS; "Diazacetamide Esterification of Chymotrypsinogen and Characterization of the Resulting Esters," Myron Waxdal, UW; "Hardness of Steel," Charles Laubach, PLC; and "Characterization of An Unknown Pyridinium Salt," Denny Nelson, PLC.

The purpose of these regional meetings is to promote interest in chemical research at the undergraduate level and to give the participants experience in the communication of scientific information.

Admission will be 25 cents for any two bums. The proceeds will be used to purchase a stereo for the lounge.

"They come by the dozens...each with a diploma and a bright smile"

"More and more bright, personable, well-educated young men come to me for jobs these days. And it's often hard to make a decision. That's why, in addition to other qualities, I look for maturity and stability. Life insurance ownership is one of the things that indicates this to me."

This businessman is typical of today's employer.

He is interested in the college man who can plan ahead—especially personal future security. So, it's reassuring to remember that as a Lutheran you can turn to our Brotherhood Provider Life Insurance Plan. For just 44¢ a day (based on age 25) you can own a $10,000 Brotherhood Provider Plan. And this is permanent, dividend-paying insurance that will help you build financial security for the future.

The future belongs to the man who plans for it. See your Lutheran Brotherhood campus representative today.

Is Photography Art?

Although photography can be treated as an art it differs somewhat from painting. The medium of photography is light, while the medium of painting is thought of as pigment. Painting also is different in that it can be more highly controlled. Once the picture is taken the photographer can't manipulate the subject matter. If he does manipulate he becomes a maker of collages.

Photography traditionally has been narrative. Elwell feels that "telling stories should be left to literature." Photography as an art is still in its infancy because it "has not been clearly defined as an art form." Photographers have been too concerned with the technological. "Laughing babies, narrative scenes, etc., have been emphasized altogether too much."
