'Beauty-Beast' on Stage Next Thursday

Another fantastic and imaginative story of the children's world will come to life when "Beauty and the Beast" is presented by the PLC speech department, as the second feature of the annual Children's Productions.

Three matinee performances will be given: March 10 at 1:00 p.m. and March 12 and 19 at 2:30 p.m. Ticket prices are 35 cents for children and 60 cents for adults.

Dorms Compete To Raise Funds

Inter-dorm competition is in full swing for the Campus Chest. Under the motto of Matthew 25:40, "As you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me," all the dorms are engaged in fund-raising projects for the benefit of students abroad.

Ron Soine, coordinator of the competition, reports the following projects for the individual dorms:

South Hall has had an apple sale and plans a fudge sale in the near future. Mary Undlin is the chairman for South, and Carmen Alvarado, Judy Anderson, and Pat Neumeier are working with her.

A car wash for students and teachers is planned by West Hall, which has already held a pickle sale. Chairman for this dormitory is Carolyn Breuer, and Karen Abelson, Nadine Bruins and the Dorm Council are assisting.

A doughnut sale is one of several projects planned by North Hall under the leadership of Donna Baerg. It will be held on a Sunday morning for the benefit of late risers.

Stuen, Evergreen and Ivy are also planning projects. More will be said about these later.

In Old Main, banks have been placed in each room with the motto for the competition written on each. Ray Gallie is the dorm chairman, and working with him are Dave Crowner, Morris Hauge, Gary Olson, and Lowell Stordahl.

Beauty is played by La Vonne Erdahl; Dale Benson plays Prince Armand; Jerry Dietz, Renard; Mavis Everette, Antoinette; Ardell Dungan, Queen; Elaine Everette, Fairy Godmother; Grace Harthill, Aurélie; Rosalyn Foster, Alphonse; Dennis Knutson, Beauvais; Bob Johnson, Pierrot.

Beauty is a childhood friend of Prince Armand, who must choose a queen by midnight of his coronation eve or lose his throne. Among the many princesses brought for his approval is Antoinette, who came with her wily magician father. This magician changed himself and his daughter into a pair of wonderful apes. They cast a spell on Armand and transformed him into a beast, hoping that no one but Antoinette would desire to be his Queen. But they forgot that the Prince had a Fairy Godmother. She finally broke the spell and Beauty became his Queen.

Like former children's productions which Mr. Nordholm directed, such as "Rip Van Winkle," "Alice in Wonderland," "Jack and the Beanstalk," and "Flibbertygibbet," "Beauty and the Beast," with its many magical effects, promises to draw record crowds and intrigue audiences of children and adults alike.

PLC Receives Research Fund

The Robson Research Fund, established at PLC by Tacoma neurologic surgeon Dr. John T. Robson, will provide for the study of a problem in the fight against multiple sclerosis.

Dr. Charles Anderson, professor of chemistry, will supervise the project. He has appointed two chemistry students to work on the project—Ed Walters, sophomore chemistry major, and Jerry Armstrong, senior chemistry major.

The first phase of this long-term program will be five years.

Miss Universe Will Be Crowned During PLC World Fair Festivities

Tomorrow night at 7:00 in CB-200 the weeks of preparation, campaigning, building, collecting, and the various other tasks headed by Jerry Dodgen and co-chairman Al Blomquist will culminate in the opening of PLC's second World's Fair.

Master of Ceremonies Dave Williams will officially open the festival with his welcome at 7:00.

The first fashion show, beginning at 7:30, will feature the very latest in America's styles.

At 8:10 candidates Judy Likkel of North, Gretta Weason from West, and Ginny Lee of South will present talent to vie with that of Evergreen's Miriam Bloomquist, Ivy's Kathy McCall and Stuen's Gail Hauke in the Miss Universe Contest.

Judges Pastor John Larsgaard, Mr. Milton Nesvig, Mrs. Paul Templin, Marie Peters and George Doebler will make the final decision preceding the crowning of Miss Universe at 10:00.

A second fashion show will begin at 10:20, followed by a program featuring more of PLC's talent at 10:45. Guitar and acrobatic acts will be included in the program. The final event on the schedule will be a drawing at 11:25 for a door prize—a $52.00 pair of skis—to the lucky ticket holder.

Other Fair activities include displays, worth almost $4,000, from Switzerland, South America, Alaska, Hawaii, the Orient, and Scandinavian countries. Downstairs, games set up by Gary Lind and his committee will compete for business with Tudy Rogness's group in the International Cafe. Visitors may try a Swiss Delight, Chinese soup, German pancakes and Hawaiian salad or stick to the American style of ice cream and hot dogs from the wandering vendor.

Twelve Debaters Attend Tourney

Twelve PLC debaters left Wednesday afternoon for the Linfield College "Tournament of Champions," which started yesterday at McMinnville, Oregon, and will conclude tomorrow night.

Events at the tournament include debate, impromptu, extemporaneous, interpretative reading, salesmanship, visual aids, oratory and after dinner speaking.

Those from PLC participating in the senior division are Andrew Carlson, Judith Johnson, David Stuart and James Traynor. Junior division debaters are Karen Ableson, Janice Dahl, Norma Dayhuff, Richard Helstrom, Joe Laurent, JoAnn Maier, Merle Overland, and Zane Wilson.

Theodore O. H. Karl and Vernon A. Utzinger are the debate coaches.

Alpha Psi Produces 'Waiting for Godot'

"Waiting for Godot" will be Alpha Psi Omega's experimental production this year.

The play takes the tendencies of the world from an existential viewpoint and reduces them to the tendencies of four people. Intellect, emotion, power, and subservience are the characteristics of the four characters who inhabit a private world waiting for some magnificent force to change their lives.

The four member cast is composed of Fred Bindel, George Doebler, Lyle Pearson and Byron Scherer.

BEAUTY will be portrayed by La Vonne Erdahl in the second feature of the annual Children's Productions, under the direction of Eric Nordholm.

PRINCE ARMAND, who becomes transformed into the Beast, will be played by Dale Benson on the CMS stage next Thursday, in the first of three matinees.

EXODUS

by Ruth Walker

Exodus, by Leon Uris, 598 pages, Doubleday & Co., Bantam Books, 75c.

Here at PLC, almost every student can tell what the Exodus of Moses was, but I wonder how many realize that a modern exodus has just taken place? Or that a Bible prophecy has been recently fulfilled? In Deuteronomy 3: 19-20, Moses tells the people that they shall remain in the cities "until the Lord gives rest to your brethren, as to you, and they also occupy the land which the Lord your God gives them beyond the Jordan; then you shall return every man to his possession which I have given you." It is this return that is covered in the book Exodus, by Leon Uris.

In a modern epic style, the recovery of Israel by the Jew is chronicled. Subtly woven into the sweeping drama of the return are the personal lives and loves of the leading characters. Through skillful flashbacks and thought descriptions, the author makes the characters very alive and believable. Although the events are historically correct, the men and women are fictional personalities that Uris believes typify the modern Jewish spirit.

The description is vivid and often terrifying. The chapters dealing with the attempted genocide of the Jews by the Nazis are especially striking.

For those who have a set picture of the Jews as miserly money-grabbers, this book will come as a definite surprise. Uris himself admits that the story of the return was "a revelation to me as I discovered it in the farms and cities of Israel." And the suffering, courage, and determination of the Jews is a revelation to all readers!

Ruth Walker is a sophomore majoring in education.

Books for Your Interest

Whether intra-murals or stocks and bonds is your uppermost concern, many of the books being received by PLC's library should be of interest to everyone. Particularly those recent arrivals concerned with your field of interest should draw your attention. A very few of the new books are the following.

Economics

Principles of Industrial Management, L. P. Alford and H. R. Beatty.

Mathematical Economics, R. G. D. Allen.

Researches Into the Mathematical Principles of the Theory of Wealth, Cournot Augustin.

Unions, Management and the Public, W. E. Bakke and Clark Kere.

What Is Growing Old?

by Ed Walters

In this era of rockets and the talk of space travel we have become accustomed to hearing many fantastic stories. Not the least appealing of these is Albert Einstein's theory that if one were to travel at speeds near that of light he would seem to age slowly.

But some scientists have taken their eyes away from the tremendous reaches of space and are concentrating on the little molecule. Here they find that aging may occur as a result of rare metabolic accidents that increase the concentration of insoluble, non-functional, or noxious by-products of metabolism.

Evidence in favor of this theory is the presence of certain pigments which occupy much of the intracellular spaces. Their volume is related to the age of its host in some manner.

Another theory of aging says that the chemicals that stimulate the body to produce proteins become deficient; as a result muscle wastage, weakness, and loss of weight occur.

Perhaps some feel that we are a little young to worry about our old age; but don't fret, the problem still will not be solved when we are aged.

A Spirit of Enthusiasm

The enthusiastic cry of "On to Kansas City" was subdued—at least for this season—with the results of the PLC-Western playoff last Wednesday night.

Lute fans, outnumbering their rivals, and unequalled in spirit, caused quite a stir this week. The NAIA playoffs were a cause of upset schedules, unexcused absences, bus rides and crowded cars as a mass exodus took place from the campus each afternoon. The Student Congregation suffered a sudden drop in attendance.

Commented the TNT sports columnist, "Pacific Lutheran College fans don't lack for enthusiasm." He was referring in particular to the two PLC-ites who set out on a bicycle excursion to Ellensburg. A day earlier, two hundred "enthusiastic" students were pictured in the Tacoma Tribune as they left for the Central game in Ellensburg.

What lies behind this undefinable spirit that PLC possesses? It's more than sportsmanship, for it's evident in other phases of student life. This intangible spirit—this enthusiastic unity—presents a challenge to extend it even farther—beyond Kansas City. Through defeat many victories have been won. — D.H.

What's It Like in KC?

Maybe cold filigrees of branches lining gray streets shiver in a winter's wind. Maybe the hissing tracks of automobiles hurry along behind the wheels as soggy rain drips off roofs and covers the pavement with a shiny slick. Or maybe it's bright and clear—a spring day—and people lean left and right in a ticket line partly in anxiety to see a basketball game and partly to absent-mindedly look at the box-office window again.

What's it like in Kansas City? Much like it is in New York, Walla Walla, Wichita, San Diego, Memphis or Tacoma. The weather may be different, the entertainment vary, names sound strange, but one thing is the same. There are Christians more concerned with laughing at the misfortune of others than correcting their own faults. There are Christians definitely more worried about their own safety than the lives of others. There are Christians who can spend many coffee cups over the world's problems, but find little time to really study and seek their Lord's will.

PLC isn't immune from Lent. You can find time to make use of Lent by letting Christ occupy a spot a little closer to the center of your interests. But to "let Him" means a slowing down, giving ear to His Word and giving voice to prayer. Perhaps that's where the "giving-up" comes in. Maybe you might have to turn off KJR for a few minutes. What a loss!

Student Council Highlights

by Dea Reimann

THINK or THINK. Everyone knows this is an election year. In the national arena, the quadrennial mud-slinging is already well under way. On the local scene, the time to choose the candidates for the annual ASB elections is drawing near.

Candidates' petitions must be turned in at the ASB office by March 22. These petitions will be available in the ASB office March 15. That's less than two weeks from now. In other words, now is the time for all good men to . . . either run for office or encourage their best qualified associates to do so.

Selecting a candidate for a student body office implies making a different kind of judgment from that involved in selecting a candidate for Homecoming Queen. The function of a Homecoming Queen is primarily decorative. This should not be true of a student body officer.

'But, Godot Isn't Coming'

by Lyle Pearson

The above line never appears in "Waiting for Godot," and if it did, there would be no play. The entire play is one of anticipation of the coming of that dynamic something, that force that can fulfill life, in a word the "Godot that all men wait for." If Godot ever did come in the course of the play, or the course of life for that matter, this journey through time would be over.

"Waiting for Godot" is a modern French play by Samuel Beckett, a pessimistic existentialist. Now, first, people are going to say "What is existentialism?" Let me say, without going into the depths of the term, that existentialism is a philosophy akin to the idea of "living in the moment." It takes the basic concept that man, occupying only a small space in the scale of time, must therefore "live in the moment," or make the most of the time that he has before him, his brief, useless-in-itself life span.

Now I have, in very simple and debatable words, laid down a point from which to begin discussion of Godot. But people will ask, "Isn't this entirely opposed to what we have been taught in our religion classes? Isn't the idea to live in the moment un-Christian, let alone un-Lutheran, not to mention anti-Evangelical?" I answer, "Not necessarily."

Existentialism, just like the Bible, can be interpreted for good or for ill. There are different ways of "living in the moment," just as there are different ways of being a Christian. Certainly it is possible to become an alcoholic, if one looks for a meaning to life through the alcoholic means, but it is just as possible to become a real person by attempting to find life through a "real" or "honest" means.

Hoping to have presented the basic philosophy behind the play, as well as shown that this idea is not necessarily the opposite of a Christian view, I would like to return to the play to show its specific view of life. The message, or more accurately, "point" of the play is very pessimistic.

The two main characters, Vladimir and Estragon, wait on a country road, wait for "Godot," a man whom they cannot really remember, to save them from a meaningless existence. They attempt to pass the time by 1) discussing religion; 2) insulting each other; 3) telling themselves how they need each other; 4) finding diversion by watching passersby who, unknowingly, are as lost as themselves, and 5) eating carrots. They must stay and wait because, well, because "Godot" is the only answer to their lives that they can imagine.

Several times in the play, Estragon, the emotionalist, asks Vladimir, the thinker, "Why don't we go?" Vladimir always answers, "We can't; we're waiting for Godot." In my opinion, if Vladimir ever answered, "I don't know; let's go," and they left, not only would the play be over, but the two characters would be on a real search for a meaning or purpose of their lives.

What are you waiting for?

Students Appraise 'Godot'

MARIE PETERS: Waiting for Godot is a challenge to both actors and audience. You will hate it or you will acclaim and laud it, but in either case the impact will be great. It is a very individual and personal thing.

ZANE WILSON: I think I may read a better play, but I'll never read another that talks from right inside me like this one does. I've never read another play where I felt like I'd been there before.

BYRON SCHERER: If I laugh at them

I laugh at myself.

But I can't help laughing,

So I weep!

BLAYNE PERLETH: I like the vagueness of it. It can mean a different thing to each person who goes to it.

ART ELLICKSON: It's loaded!

LARRY IVERSON: The four characters in the play are humanity waiting for Godot and wondering if he will ever come. With them, the audience waits—through laughter and tears, fear and excitement.

Vikings Dethrone Lutes In Kansas City Playoff

It took three games on their home court to do it, but Western Washington College's Vikings finally ended the Lutes' domination of Northwest basketball by downing the Gladiators in the district playoff, earning the first trip in the history of their school to Kansas City for the National NAIA Basketball Tournament.

Monday night the Lutes had a hard time finding the hoop as they shot only 35 percent from the floor and were out-rebounded by the Viks in losing the opening playoff game 81-71.

The next night looked like the same story as the Parkland cagers went into the dressing room at half time trailing 36-39, but the second half was a different story as the Lutes found their fast break and ran WWG into the ground. The final score was 83-68 with seniors Bill Williams and Denny Ross dumping in 21 and 15 points, respectively, for Coach Gene Lundgaard's squad.

Western came onto the court the next night hotter than a pancake griddle as their high scoring University of Washington transfers, Ron Crowe and Jim Greer, each hit their first four shots from the floor and gave the Bellingham gang an early lead.

The Vikings never trailed, but with 2:30 seconds remaining the Lutes pulled to within one point. A rash of PLC fouls and Western's Herm Washington's magic touch at the foul line gave the Viks a hard-fought 76-82 win and a trip to K.C.

Junior forward Norm Dahl topped the PLC scoring parade this year with 424 points as the Lutes racked up 18 wins against nine defeats.

Williams led the team and the conference in rebounds with 273 in 27 games.

The Gladiators outscored their opponents 1992 to 1852 over the season and out-rebounded them 1457 to 1233.

PLC shot a fine .404 percent from the floor, hitting 758 shots in 1827 attempts.

14 Lettermen Return to Squad

Coach Jim Gabrielsen has 14 lettermen returning to the baseball squad this season. No seniors were on the team last year.

Returnees are Al Blomquist, Glen Campbell, Ron Colton, Stan Fredrickson, Dennis Gudall, Chuck Hobbs, Lars Johnson, Don Kepler, Bob Kuper, Gary Peterson, Ken Riggers, Kent TeKrony, Gary Vestal, and Frank Waterworth.

Baseball practice began a couple weeks ago, but basketball and snow called a temporary halt to the spring training.

The season will get underway when the Lutes meet Central Washington at Ellensburg on April 2.

Karl to Attend NAIA Confab

Mr. T. O. H. Karl, professor of speech, will leave the Linfield debate tournament by train Friday night for Kansas City and the annual meeting of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA).

Mr. Karl is special consultant to the National Executive Council, and chairman of two committees: National Faculty Committee and Committee on Relationships between Athletic Conferences and the NAIA. The meeting will run from March 6 to March 12, the same time as the NAIA Tournament.

What happened to the man "most likely to succeed?"

Back in 1953, Ben was the guy with the winning smile, personality and good grades. Couldn't miss. So, they voted him "Most likely to succeed."

One day, Ben's roommate said, "What are you going to do when you graduate? I haven't got a thing lined up."

"Well, nothing's final, John," said Ben. "But I am thinking about Lutheran Brotherhood."

"Life insurance? I haven't given that much thought."

"Sounds like a good deal, John. This is the life insurance society for Lutherans—like you and me. And it's really growing fast."

Ben's right! Lutheran Brotherhood has over $1 billion of life insurance in force in 40 states and five Canadian provinces. There are good openings right now for college men. And, a full training program... real opportunities for qualified young men who want a lifetime career in life insurance.

What happened to Ben, the "man most likely to succeed?" He joined Lutheran Brotherhood and is now a General Agent. And John, his roommate? Ben's right hand man in the business of providing security for fellow Lutherans.

You can't beat success. And the opportunities in 1960 are even greater with Lutheran Brotherhood. Send us a card for the full story.

Vigness Wins Prof. Snarf Contest

Dr. Paul Vigness was chosen Professor Snarf of 1960 during elections held last week.

Dr. Vigness won with a total of 3,744 votes, while Dr. Walter Schnackenberg and Mr. Charles Peterson were runners-up with 3,077 and 2,813 votes, respectively.

Associated Men Students, sponsors of the contest, reported a profit of $99.27, which will be used to help finance the purchase of a suit of armor for the new tradition room.

Dr. Vigness has been at PLC since 1956 in an active teaching capacity, and was a member of the Board of Trustees prior to that time. He is presently assistant professor of religion and history.

PROFESSOR SNARF

Other candidates for Professor Snarf were professors Ford, Christopherson, Gaines, Roskos, Salzman and Strunk.

Meteorologist To Talk Here Tuesday

Mr. F. I. Badgley, professor of meteorology and climatology at the University of Washington, will present two talks on meteorology here next Tuesday.

At 10:30 a.m., Mr. Badgley will speak to Dr. Jordahl's general physics class on the subject, "Scientific Challenges and Career Possibilities in Meteorology."

In an open meeting in CB-200 at 3:30 p.m., he will give a talk entitled "Geophysical Observations from a Drifting Ice Floe." He will discuss his experiences as an observer on Station Alpha, a station established in the Arctic Ocean for the IGY, or International Geophysical Year. The talk will be illustrated with slides. Anyone interested is welcome.

AMS Makes Loans

A short term loan fund has been established by the Associated Men Students to provide quick cash, on signature alone, for those who are temporarily short.

Loans up to $10 may be obtained at the business office by filling out a card with the amount desired and the signature of the borrower. The loan may be for a maximum of two weeks, with a service charge of 25 cents. This charge will help build up the fund and take care of any expenses incurred.

In the two weeks during which the fund has been in operation, loans totaling over $120 have been made to 15 people.

Two to Attend National Debate

Judith Johnson and James Traynor will compete in the annual "Heart of America" tournament at the University of Kansas, March 9 through 12. Twenty-one schools are entered, including Baylor, Dartmouth, Harvard, Northwestern, Oklahoma, and USC.

High School Debaters Receive Trophies

Debaters from Ballard, Port Angeles and Wenatchee High Schools won a majority of the ribbons at the high school debate tournament held on campus last weekend. About 489 students from 45 schools attended.

Port Angeles and Wenatchee tied for senior division sweepstakes, and Ballard took the junior division trophy.

APO Selects Beard Winners; Lettermen Plan Annual Show

APO Selects Contest Winners

Four men were selected during halftime of the PLC-Buchan Bakers game February 25 as winners in the annual Alpha Phi Omega beard-growing contest which began February 2.

The winners in the four divisions were: Warren Willis, fullest beard; Paul Holmquist, best-trimmed; Bob Ellis, best VanDyke; and Roy Tahminen, who came up with the best crop of peach-fuzz.

The prizes were, respectively, a bottle of skin bracer, a free shave at Gerry's Barber Shop, a bottle of mustache wax, and a Gillette light shaver.

Marv Jacobson, John Nelson and Robert Derr were chairmen of the event. Judges were Miss Dorothy Payne, Miss Jane Smith, and Dr. Paul Vigness.

Concert Chorus Holds Party

PLC's Concert Chorus, a group of more than 100 students under the direction of Dr. R. Byard Fritts, will hold its second-semester party tonight at the main lodge of Camp Kilworth.

After meeting behind the CMS, the group will leave for the Camp at 6:30 p.m. Entertainment will be furnished by members of the chorus, and refreshments will be served. All chorus members are urged to attend.

Lettermen Plan Minstrel Show

The traditional Lettermen's Club Minstrel Show will be the main entertainment for the Saga Carnival's second night, March 26, in the CMS Auditorium.

About forty-five men will take part in the show, which will feature such favorites as "Old Man River," "Dry Bones," and "Mood Indigo."

Dave Dahl and Eric Ottum have been chosen as directors, while the tentative end men are John Jacobson, Norm Dahl, Al Blomquist and Denny Ross.

The Lettermen's Club would like to emphasize that any men interested are welcome to attend rehearsals Monday and Wednesday evenings in the first floor lounge of Old Main.

Language Students Combine Program

A dinner and get-together is planned for the foreign language students at 6:00 next Thursday in Chris Knutzen Fellowship Hall.

The German, Spanish, French, Greek, Latin and Norwegian language students will present various educational and musical numbers, including a tour in poetry and song of France, a discussion of Latin derivatives of English words, songs by Mr. Frederick Newnham, associate professor of music, and selections by the German band.

Dad's Weekend Set For March 26-27

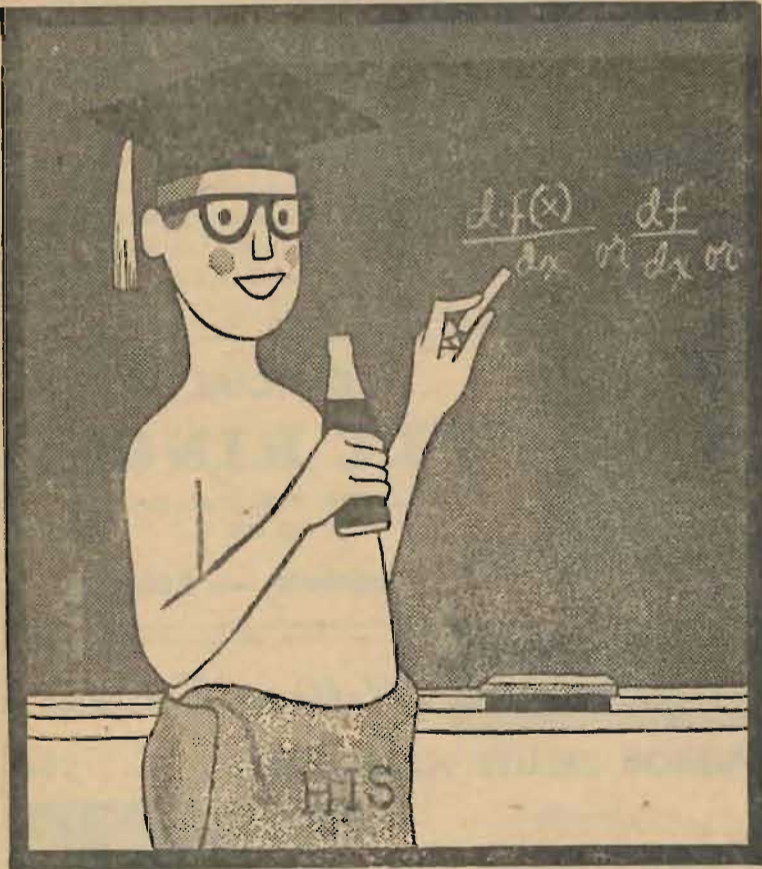

Dad's weekend, something new on the PLC Campus, is being planned for March 26 and 27. Sponsored by Associated Men Students, it will give the fathers a chance to "batch it" with their sons for the weekend.

On the schedule of activities for the weekend are included the Saga Carnival, the Lettermen's Minstrel Show, a baseball game and a track meet. On Sunday afternoon there will be a barbeque on campus, and, weather permitting, an outdoor meal. (The beef will be supplied by the May ranch of Spokane.)

Glen Campbell and John Mitten are in charge of the event, and would welcome volunteers for assignments. A letter has been sent by AMS to all PLC dads explaining the event and requesting that they notify AMS if they plan to come.

Absent-minded Professor

Not so absent-minded when you get right down to it. He remembered the most important item—the Coke! Yes, people will forgive you almost anything if you just remember to bring along their favorite sparkling drink—ice-cold Coca-Cola. Do have another, professor!
