the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age has increased from 1.1 billion to 1.3 billion. The number of people aged 15 years and over has increased from 3.5 billion to 4.5 billion. The total population of the world has increased from 4.6 billion to 5.8 billion.

There are a number of reasons for the increase in the number of people in the world. One of the main reasons is the increase in life expectancy. People are living longer than ever before. This is due to a number of factors, including improvements in medicine, better nutrition, and a more stable environment.

Another reason for the increase in the number of people in the world is the increase in the number of people who are having children. This is due to a number of factors, including a decrease in the number of children who die before the age of five, and a decrease in the number of people who are having children at a young age.

The increase in the number of people in the world is a cause for concern. It is a cause for concern because it is putting a strain on the world's resources. There are a number of ways in which the world's resources are being strained, including the depletion of natural resources, the increase in pollution, and the increase in the number of people who are living in poverty.

There are a number of ways in which the world's resources can be protected. One of the main ways is to reduce the number of people who are having children. This can be done by providing better education for women, and by providing better access to family planning services.

Another way to protect the world's resources is to reduce the number of people who are living in poverty. This can be done by providing better access to education, and by providing better access to healthcare services.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry, no matter how small, should be recorded to ensure the integrity of the financial statements. This includes not only sales and purchases but also expenses and income. The text suggests that a systematic approach to record-keeping is essential for identifying trends and making informed decisions.

In the second section, the author explores the various methods used to collect and analyze data. It highlights the need for a diverse range of data sources to provide a comprehensive view of the organization's performance. The text describes how different types of data, such as financial reports, market research, and customer feedback, can be combined to create a more complete picture. The importance of data quality and the need for regular updates are also discussed.

The third part of the document focuses on the role of technology in modern business operations. It discusses how digital tools and software can streamline processes, reduce errors, and improve efficiency. The text mentions various applications, from accounting software to data analytics platforms, and how they can be integrated into existing systems. The author also touches upon the challenges of data security and the importance of staying up-to-date with the latest technological advancements.

Finally, the document concludes with a discussion on the future of business and the role of innovation. It suggests that companies must continue to invest in research and development to stay competitive in a rapidly changing market. The text encourages a culture of innovation and risk-taking, while also acknowledging the potential risks and uncertainties associated with new ventures. The author ends with a call to action, urging business leaders to embrace change and drive their organizations forward.

"When I was one and twenty, I heard a wiseman say . . ."

"No man can reveal to you aught but that which already lies but half asleep in the dawning of your knowledge.

"The teacher who walks in the shadow of the temple, among his followers, gives not of his wisdom but rather of his faith and lovingness.

"If he is indeed wise he does not bid you enter the house of his wisdom, but rather leads you to the threshold of your own mind."

"The astronomer may speak to you of his understanding of space but he cannot give you his understanding.

"The musician may sing to you of the rhythm which is in all space, but he cannot give you the ear which orrises the rhythm nor the voice that echoes it.

"And he who is versed in the science of numbers can tell the regions of weight and measure, but he cannot conduct you thither.

"Far the vision of one man lends not its wings to another. And even as each one of you stands alone in God's knowledge, so must each one of you be alone in his knowledge of God and in his understanding of the world."

"You hearts know in silence the secrets of the days and nights
But you care first for the sound of your heart's knowledge.
You would know in words that which you have always known in thought.

"The hidden well-spring of your soul must rise and run murmuring to the sea;
And the treasure of your infinite depths would be revealed to your eyes.
But let there be no scales to weigh your unknown treasure;
And seek not the depths of your knowledge with staff of sounding line.
For the self is a sea boundless and measureless."

"Say not, 'I have found the path of the soul'. Say rather, 'I have met the soul walking upon my path'. For the soul walks upon all paths. The soul walks not upon a line, neither does it grow like a reed. The soul unfolds itself, like a lotus of countless petals."

"You soul is oftentimes a battlefield, upon which your reason and your judgment wage war against your passion and your appetite. Would that the Peacemaker might turn the discord and rivalry of the elements of your soul into oneness and melody. But how shall He, unless you yourselves be also peacemakers, nay, the lovers of all?

"Your reason and your passion are the rudder and sails of your seafaring soul. If either your sails or your rudder be broken, you can but toss and drift, or else be held of a standstill in mid-sea. For reason, ruling alone, is a force confining; and passion, unattended, is a flame that burns to its own destruction. Therefore let your soul exalt you reason to the height of passion, that it may sing; And let it direct your passion with reason, and your passion may live through its own daily resurrection, and like the phoenix rise above its own ashes."

*And Passion set upon Reason, thundering,
"Now I am become Death,
the Destroyer of Worlds."*

"Among the hills,

When you sit in the cool shade of the white poplars, sharing the peace and serenity of distant fields and meadows — then let your heart say in silence, 'God rests in Reason.'"

"And when the storm comes,

And the mighty wind shakes the forest, and thunder and lightning proclaim the majesty of the sky – then let your heart say in awe, 'God moves in Passion'."

The World in Retrospect

This was the year of the Earthquake!

Every member of the PLU family will remember for a long time just where he was at 8:29 a.m., April 29, 1965. That was the moment when the Lord spoke in impressive fashion to remind us of our finitude and our helplessness. It was another fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy and warning: "suddenly you will be visited by the Lord of hosts with . . . earthquake and great noise". Such an experience tends to restore each of us to a salutary humility.

An earthquake produces an extremely sobering effect. It comes with conviction—and we humans are immediately submitted to an unannounced examination. How one reacts to such a crisis he will not know until the crisis hits. So with this earthquake. All day subsequent to the Moment each of us were engaged in assessing our reactions, and much introspection was taking place. Certainly one is immediately overwhelmed by a feeling of helplessness. He then casts about for a possible refuge—an area of safety and security. Then how to reach it!

Such is life in miniature. Or shall we say such is life compressed into a moment. All is calm, secure. So assured are we of our security that we become complaisant. The world is our oyster. All is well. Suddenly we are confronted with a power which is utterly beyond our ability to control or direct. We are brutally awakened to the reality of our helplessness in the face of an omnipotence beyond our comprehension.

The earthquake is one of the Scriptural symbols of divine power. In the Book of Revelation appears the prophecy of "a great earthquake such as had never been since men were on the earth, so great was that quake". Presumably no person will escape awareness or involvement in that final holocaust. What will be my reaction in this crisis? All our present life is but preparation for this inevitable confrontation with Him who speaks also in the earthquakes. This can be a frightening, terrorizing thought. But, thanks be to God, this crisis can be anticipated in confidence and assurance. Herein lies the richness and preciousness of the Christian promise. According to the Scriptures the last days will be filled with tribulations of many kinds—among them earthquakes. But also the Scriptures give promise and assurance to all who walk in His ways. How comforting are the words of the beautiful 91st Psalm;

He that dwelleth in the shadow of the Almighty
Who abides in the shadow of the Most High
Will say to the Lord, "my refuge and my fortress"

You will not fear the terror of the night
Nor the destruction that wastes at noonday.

Because you have made the Lord your refuge
No evil shall befall you.
For He will give His angels charge over you
To guard you in all your ways

Because he cleaves to Me in love, I will deliver him
I will protect him, because he knows My name.

"A much-prized way of life"

"Educational administration is ordinarily a blend of deep satisfaction, disappointment, and occasional frustration. The satisfaction comes from attempting with all one's powers to create an educational setting which will evoke the noblest qualities in generations of students ~~who come and go~~. A teacher-administrator ~~never~~ forgets the possibility of helping to create greatness. ~~Where one may at first least expect it, there is always the~~ chance of matchless discovery. If one stays in the business long enough, he will see the rich fruits of his labors."

Men and decisions

Heading up the new 10-year expansion program is Clayton B. Peterson, Vice-President in charge of Development.

Retiring after 46 years Philip E. Hauge, Academic Vice-President has always put the student first in his thoughts.

The Board of Regents: Seated Left to right; Kathryn Nease, S. C. Sieflken, A. Dean Buchanan, Robert Mortvedt, H. L. Foss, Earl Eckstrom, Lowell Knutson, Margaret Moilien. Standing left to right; Fred Henriksen, Ed A. Marken, David C. Getzenlander, Elmer J. White, Eric Paulsen, Alvin D. Rowdall, Donald E. Cornell, Philip Engstrom, Carl Bennett, George Gullasoy, A. G. Fjellman, Einer Knutzen, Harold Nelson, Herman E. Anderson, Theodore Brueckner, Michael Doderer, Paul Bonds, Karl Ufer, Clayton Peterson, Norman D. Fintel.

"But there is also inevitable disappointment. Sometimes it springs from one's own lack of courage or faith. Sometimes it is the consequence of seeing talented youth throw away non-recoverable opportunity. It is a painful experience to see richly endowed youth pursue ends which are fowdry or meaningless when they have the opportunity to make for better choices."

Dean of Students, Richard C. Langton, discusses the expansion of the university enrollment.

"It is at this point that frustration sometimes occurs. Strive as we may, we sometimes cannot create conditions which will with certainty help individual students make the important decisions which they alone can make. We can do nothing which would diminish their sense of personal integrity. Even a bad mistake is a kind of personal property."

The Deans

Margaret Wickstrom, Assistant Dean of Students, is always willing to listen to students' problems.

Leighland Johnson as Assistant to the Dean of Students is faced with varying demands.

Running the University

Erich C. Knorr serves as Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Linka Johnson, registrar, is in charge of the complicated registration process.

Leslie O. Eklund heads the Department of Testing and Veteran Affairs.

"As is all, however, as we carry on our tasks at PLU, always conscious of the fact that we are over-arched and under-girded by the love and purposes of God, we are mindful of the fact that ours, indeed, is a much-prized way of life. Most of us would not exchange it for any other type of endeavor we know. We pray for wisdom, direction, and — above all — for faith which lasts until the end."

— Robert Mortvedt

The Quest for Self Identity

The quest for a way of life is painful and exhilarating; in it is mirrored an image that is struggling to be free of itself and yet retain its identity. The individual stands on a threshold as he enters college. He emerges from the secure conformity of adolescence and its relationships to a world of individuality and self-knowledge. The threshold must be crossed by him — alone. In his interactions with society he learns more and more of the position in which he is to fit. He finds his own niche. He finds himself.

But in the quietness he must analyze and evaluate what he has learned and experienced so that he may know and understand himself. Knowledge wells deep within the individual who searches his soul for purpose. His search encompasses a college lifetime from the first footnote placed on campus and to the last glimpse of empty halls and rooms.

And yet the emptiness remains behind, becoming for the individual a well of experience and wisdom that holds promise and hope for the future.

In The Beginning There Were Numbers

And from that creation of the simple counting system has developed a vast area of study—the field of mathematics, which now involves not only numerals but various letters and characters.

The deep reflection necessary for understanding complex mathematical processes is shown on the face of George Adams.

Kurt Rein explores the theory behind the process in his college algebra class.

Charles E. Hart speaks upon the fundamentals of trigonometry.

Each symbol represents more than just a simple quantity. Today our mathematics system can express complex properties, calculate vast quantities and infinite numerical values.

Directly related to mathematics is physics, the application of a calculation system to the natural philosophy of mechanics, electricity, sound, magnetism, heat and light. Through physics man has channeled these forces to work for him to advance civilization.

Often the theory behind the experiment is more difficult than the actual experiment. Here Harry Adams points out the reasons for certain results to one of his students.

The Applications of Mathematics

Another application of mathematics is engineering which is taught by Robert Schmid (left). With these mathematical calculations, students will construct residential and transportation structures.

Care must be given to each detail of the experiment, Dr. Jordahl explains, if it is to be successful.

How many grams of sodium react with 200 grams of chloride?

Just as physics studies the reaction of natural elements, so does chemistry. However, in chemistry it is the composition of matter, rather than the forces of matter, which are studied.

While Dr. Wayne Gildreth (above) explains the theoretical aspect to his class, the practical application of a chemical theory is demonstrated by Dr. Lawrence Huestis (left) to a student.

Dr. Robert Oles describes the molecular breakdown of a compound during a lecture period of his general science analysis class.

Explanation must accompany experimentation if learning is to be satisfactory. (Below) William Giddings gives that necessary explanation.

Frustration is often the result of many chemical experiments.

From the study of non-living matter to the study of living matter.

As a teacher of biology Melvin Schamberger wishes to "instill within the student a deep understanding and appreciation of the complexities of the living world and the beauty of life around them."

Roger Guilford (above) points out the parts of the flower to a botany student.

Zoology students (below) identify the systems of a sea anemone. Through the study of animals they learn the basic working mechanisms of the human body.

Dr. Earl Cochran (left) carefully watches his students as they perform various laboratory assignments.

Biology . . . study of living matter

Among the most important preparations for study Donald Pettib is "to develop in the student's curiosity about the phenomenon known as life."

Biology is concerned with the study of all living organisms, from the simple one-celled amoeba to the complex human being. Like chemistry, biology studies the make-up of the subject matter as well as the interactions within itself and with other things.

Dr. Harold Leross (right) aids a student in the differentiation of the parts of a specimen.

"General" Sciences

Dr. Jack Ellington (above) hands out equipment to a student during a physical science lab.

Typical of the science building are the many doors leading off the hallways.

Rounding out the science program is the general science department. It carries the biological studies to all living organisms, including plants as well as animals. Also, the general science department deals with the remaining physical properties and forces not included in other courses, such as weather, Eden, and Gravity.

Often demonstration devices, such as the leaf cross-section, aid Dr. Burton Ostenson (left) in explaining biological processes to his introductory science classes.

Although a physically healthy body is important, the mental state of a person must also be healthy if he is to be reasonably well-adjusted. Psychology is the study of mental health. It is the science that deals with human behavior, both normal and abnormal. The Psychology department at FIU emphasizes the formation of a scientific attitude toward behavior and an appreciation of the complex human personality.

Psychology often involves the use of mechanical devices. The camera shown is applied during a laboratory experiment above.

Dale Neidre explains the various deflexion mechanisms the eye brings into play to protect the integrity of the cell.

Psychology—theoretical and applied

Branton Holmberg (right) returns exam papers to his introductory psychology class.

Scen Winther (right) introduces his advanced psychology students to the varying degrees of mental illness.

Closely related to psychology is sociology, the study of the cultural conditions and social institutions which are evolved by people living in groups. Just as psychology is the study of behavior so is sociology. The difference is that it deals with the behavior of the group and the individual's reactions within that group.

Television lectures have been used to great advantage in the sociology department as well as several other departments in the University. Here Mr. Schiller lectures to his introductory sociology classes via television.

Mr. Schiller lists the important points of the material on the board for his casework techniques class.

Sociology – study of development, organization and behavior of human groups

Mr. Mackey (below) explains the problems of urban society to his advanced sociology class with the aid of the overhead projector.

Activities for health and fitness

Before the game can be successfully played, each player and every move must be determined beforehand, explains Coach Roy Carlson to his football theory class.

The most complex and most highly developed living organism is the human body. In health classes, students learn the functions and the requirements which must be met in order to maintain a healthy body. The physical education classes provide opportunity to fulfill one of these requirements—exercise. Enough variation in the activities program is available so that a wide compass of interests can be satisfied. They vary from football to archery, from tumbling to dancing, and from tennis to bowling.

Mrs. Rhoda Young (left) lectures on the essentials of good health to one of her health classes.

Mark Solomon (below) explains to his methods classes the fundamentals of good teaching in the physical education department.

Religion department offers systematic studies of religion . .

The importance of religion in our modern world is forcefully described by Kenneth Christopherson to his New Testament class.

In the stillness and quietness of the campus lies the everlasting presence of God.

Emphasis must be placed on the proper words in order to convey the appropriate meaning of the Bible to students. John Helgeson (far left) and Emmet Eklund (near right) try to add this emphasis during their lectures. Mr. Kelnor Roe (center) stimulates students to think.

The key to understanding.

Philosophy is not the concern of those who pass through Divinity and Greats, but of those who pass through birth and death. Nearly all the more awful and abstruse statements can be put in words of one syllable, from 'A child is born' to 'A soul is damned.' If the ordinary man may not discuss existence, why should he be asked to conduct it?
G. K. Chesterton

In his office Curtis Huber discusses with his class students their various problems and ideas

During a break, George Arbaugh talks with other professors about the various methods of presenting new ideas.

Strength through leadership.

The study of political science trains the student in the exercise of his rights and duties as a citizen by giving him a better understanding of our democratic political processes and of conflicting political systems.

Above, Lowell Culver portrays the importance of a sound governmental system. Below, Donald Forman, political science instructor, steps up with a student between classes.

Robert Parson calls on a student in his Public Finance class.

Business requires deep concentration.

Analysing Our Economy

Economics courses here at the university are designed to offer all the students an opportunity to ~~create~~ a general understanding of the private and public sectors of the ~~United States~~ economy so that they may be more enlightened citizens and voters, to provide the necessary general economic background for students of business education, to prepare the student for a career in economics, and to provide the student with the necessary background for ~~graduate study~~ in economics.

It is the stream of time itself that we shall seek to study.

There is an unquenchable and irresistible thirst of the soul that demands an explanation of the world in which it finds itself. One expression of that eternal yearning is the formulation of religious systems. Akin to such aspiration is that of the historian, who also seeks law and order in the universe. History, like science, like religion, is a constant search for such law, and yet always just eludes the grasp. And if the historian hopes to be judged as all by posterity he can but echo the epitaph:

*"Reader, those that pass me by
As thou art so once was I;
As I am so shalt thou be,
Therefore reader, pray for me."*

Our written communications . . .

It is just beginning to be recognized we are in the midst of another revival of poetry. The contemporary American novelist in our period of social crisis is studying the changing beliefs of our period as they are reflected in previous writers. Our time is the true protagonist of such an examination and the artists are the witnesses at the investigation. Ring Lardner successfully summarizes the values of the nineteen-twenties, and John Steinbeck illuminates the new social values of the nineteen-forties. The differences between these two Americans illustrate the range of experience we have passed through in a decade of turmoil.

An Ode

by William Wordsworth

Though nothing can bring back the hour
Of splendour in the grass, of glory in the flower,
We will growl not, rather find
Strength in what remains behind;
In the primal sympathy
Which having been must ever be;
In the soothing thoughts that spring
Out of human suffering;
In the faith that looks through death,
In years that bring the philosophic mind.

Dr. Paul Vigness is leaving Pacific Lutheran after this year but students who know him well will always remember his sincere interest in them academically, socially, and spiritually. His life in the classroom and on the campus is a living example of his faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

The words from John 1:6, "There was a man sent from God, whose name was John," could well be used to describe Student Congregation pastor John Larsgaard. Pastor John's "quiet guidance" has helped many students through personal crises, social adjustment, and social void. Besides being in charge of all affairs of Student Congregation, he also takes an active part in many other facets of campus life. In April of this year he received his master's degree in theology from Pacific School of Religion in Berkeley, California.

Who Walks the World with Soul Awoke

Who walks the world with soul awake
Finds beauty everywhere;
Though labor be his portion,
Though sorrow be his share,
He looks beyond obscuring clouds,
Sure that the light is there!

And if, the ills of mortal life
Grown heavier to bear,
Doubt came with its perplexities
And whisper of despair,
He turns with love to suffering men—
And, lo! God, see, is there.

Students practice their business skills.

The purpose of the School of Business Administration is to prepare students for responsibility in the field of business and education and to encourage students to become better citizens in our society. The school is not designed only for students planning to go into business, but also for those who plan to teach business courses, continue study in the graduate school and those who desire a general background in economic problems.

Marsha Egan speaks to her shorthand students.

Success through business.

Dwight Zulouf, above, Vernon Stintzi, right, and Charles Peterson, above right, explain the various aspects of successful business administration to their business students.

Understanding through Education

The School of Education contributes to the development of the elementary and secondary teachers with a liberal and scientific education integrated with a Christian reference.

The School of Education offers both an undergraduate and graduate opportunity to prepare students for careers in the teaching profession. The School offers degrees of Bachelor of Arts in Education and Master of Arts in Education. Understanding in all phases of life is its main objective and goal.

Besides being kept busy by observing primary student teachers and teaching a methods class, Mrs. Alice Nappus also has to prepare for her teaching of reading classes.

Carrol E. DeBauer demonstrates the value of using the blackboard to teach arithmetic.

Albers Jones answers questions during one of his elementary education classes.

Dr. Jane Williamson, a new member of the education department this year, lectures to her human development class.

Preparing students for teaching on the primary level is one of the responsibilities of Mrs. Marjorie McClure, an addition to the education department's faculty.

Dr. Stein shares a memorable teaching experience with his secondary methods class.

STUDENT TEACHING . . . a proving ground

Local area public schools graciously provide grounds for our student teachers. Modern by most standards these schools also provide the necessary experiences valuable to professional attainment.

Cooperating teachers request having the student teacher in their classroom and look to them for new ideas and fresh approaches. The student teacher in turn eagerly seeks the assistance of the established professional. Many lifetime friendships come out of this sharing relationship.

The real test comes in establishing rapport with that first class . . . maintaining continuity with lesson after lesson . . . being flexible . . . being able to laugh at one's self . . . and admitting your mistakes. Then comes that growing awareness—that feeling of professional attainment.

Pictures of, and story by David Wytko.

Then it's time to say "goodbye". Giving up a class can be a traumatic experience. Many go back to visit their class "just one more time" before they permanently depart.

Along with being an instructor in speech and telecommunications Paul Steen is kept busy as technical director of all campus TV productions.

The speech department embraces four sections: speech arts, drama, telecommunications, and pathology. If one does not wish to major in speech he will find a general course in speech arts of great value. The speech department tries to maintain two objectives: the development of the ability to communicate thought and feeling, and the improvement of powers of appreciation and evaluation in listening. Practical experiences in various phases of the departmental program is provided through the dramatical presentation, intercollegiate forensics, and a weekly student-centered TV program.

When beauty is expressed in our surroundings, it becomes a part of our life and our personality. It is not a thing to be set apart for occasional enjoyment, but should be sought in everything we do, and in everything we select. The field of art is the application of the principles of design to the problems in life where appearance as well as utility is a consideration.

Music—The Universal Language

Dr. Edward Fries, popular with his students, is shown giving an organ lesson.

Music is significant because it is a thing which exists only in sound, a complex phenomenon of tone combinations organized by a rhythmic pattern in time rather than in space. It pervades past the senses, leaving no trace left in the listener's mind. Unless he can read musical notation, the listener has no way of apprehending the music as a whole other than re-creating it in his imagination.

Christian Service Through Nursing

The School of Nursing accepts the challenge to prepare professional nurses for the responsibilities and opportunities of a Christian service in nursing. The School is concerned with the physical, mental, emotional, social, and spiritual health of the individual. Therefore, the faculty strives to guide the students to acquire knowledge and skills for nursing. Each nursing student is a promoter and teacher of health.

The Senior Class of 1965

*We have planted man, our vine, and tilled the soil
In the purple mist of the first dawn.
We watched the lean branches grow,
And through the days of seasonless years
We nursed the infant leaves.
From the angry element we shielded the bud,
And against all dark spirits we guarded the flower.
And now that our vine hath yielded the grape . . .

For the first time in many years the familiar reply, "Wait until basketball season," wasn't the only remark a Pacific Lutheran fan could make about his football team. It was a long road from their traditional role of cellar dwellers to conference champions, but the Knights did travel this road and to everyone's surprise (except themselves and their coach) now rule as the champions of the Evergreen conference.

Coach Carlson insists that there wasn't a single star on the squad — only 38 players working together as a team to bring respect back to the football program here at PLU. It is hard to refrain from mentioning certain individuals when looking back over a football season, but as Carlson made so clear, this was a complete team effort, so that if one name were to be mentioned, 37 other names would also have to be mentioned.

In winning their first championship since 1952, the Knights won their last six games, the longest winning streak since 1941. After losing their first three games by close margins the Knights hit high gear and undoubtedly finished the season as the best team in the league.

Captain Dave Olson was the only senior on this year's team, which makes the outlook for next year very bright. Coach Carlson and his two assistants, Bob Calleran and Jerry Thacker, will have a nucleus of experienced ball players from which to mold a team that can keep PLU's six game winning streak alive.

The power of the Knight has never equalled as Les Rucker carries the ball on a "mild reverse".

Below: Les Rucker scores the first touchdown of the 1964 season.

"Lutheran Bowen Loses on Fumble," "Whitworth Still Top 10 in Eleven," "Lutes Defeated by Central" — — These were the discouraging headlines that reported the results of the Knights' first three games, but to the critical football eye these first three games indicated that at long last the Knights had a football team. Despite the losses, which very easily could have been victories, the Knights showed a new tough brand of football that was to lead them to the conference title.

In the first game of the season the Knights managed to give the game to UPS, their cross-town rivals, on a fumble that was recovered and returned for a touchdown by the Loggers. The fumble plus an extra-point try and a field goal attempt that were both nearly made, spelled defeat for the Knights. Les Rucker scored the lone Knight touchdown early in the second quarter.

For five years the Knights had been unable to score against the Whitworth Pirates. However, in their first meeting of the 1964 season the Knights ran and passed for 28 points, but it wasn't enough as the Pirates came back in the fourth quarter to score a 35-28 victory. Rucker continued his fine running, scoring two touchdowns. The other Knight scores came on a pass play from Kurt Yates to Bill White and on a 42-yard run by Oliver Johnson after he recovered a Pirate fumble. Dave Nyman and his talented toe accounted for four extra points.

The last time the Knights were to taste defeat was against Central Washington in a tough defensive battle. A bad PLU punt enabled the Wildcats to score early in the first quarter, but after that neither goal line was crossed. Gary Renggli and Bill Krieger turned in excellent efforts on defense. Mike McKay led the offensive with 57 yard rushing. The final score — Central 7, PLU 0.

"The secret of success is constancy to purpose." — Benjamin Disraeli

A taste of victory

After three heartbreaking setbacks the Knight squad jelled and scored a crushing 27-7 victory over the University of Puget Sound. For the first time the men from Parkland combined their offensive and defensive talents in the same game, giving Coach Roy Carlson his first victory over the Loggers.

The Knights scored in every quarter and completely dominated the statistics out-first downing the Loggers 16-7 and out-rushing the team 138-50. Ken Tetz and Bob Battermann both had a good day on offense, while senior Dave Olson and Gregg teamed up to lead the defensive team.

Manager Ken Fredericks does some quick repair work on Mike McKay's uniform.

The Knights took a week out of their conference schedule to take on the previously unbeaten Pacific University Badgers. Led by quarterbacks Battermann and Yates, the Knights continued their strong offensive game and downed the Badgers 21-13. Battermann, Tetz, and Blankenbaker accounted for the three touchdowns while Nyman added the three extra points. Benggli continued his fine defensive play, making 11 tackles and five assists.

Returning to home play the Knights continued their winning ways by downing a strong Eastern Washington team 20-7. The Knights' first score came on a 92-yard drive late in the second quarter. It was Yates' passing that kept the drive alive and, fittingly enough, it was Yates who carried the ball into the end zone on a four-yard run. It was a Yates-to-Johnson pass for 38 yards that set up the second score in the third quarter. Tetz got the score on a six-yard plunge. After White intercepted an Eastern pass, Yates came again too med up with his favorite target, Johnson, for a 70-yard scoring play to complete the Knight scoring.

Win Streak Continues

The Knights scored their fourth straight win and also a Homecoming victory when they downed a good Western Washington team 7-0. It was one of the Knights' best defensive efforts of the year with fine play turned in by Jess Hagerman, Johnson, and M2e Roberts. The only score of the contest came in the second quarter when McKay powered over the goal line from the four yard line.

It had been 10 years since a PCU football team had beaten Whitworth, but this was the year to end the Pirates' domination. The 28-21 victory kept the Knight winning streak alive and also put them in title contention. The Pirates, who had been averaging 214 yards a game on the ground, could only manage 41 against an ever improving Knight defense. While the defense was doing its job, the offensive, led by Yates, Johnson, and Rucker, was picking up the needed points for victory. Hagerman and Renggli were standouts on defense.

Toil and sacrifice — a Championship won.

With the conference championship at stake the Knights traveled to Ellensburg to play the Central Washington Wildcats. PLU, Central, and Eastern went into the last weekend deadlocked for first place in the conference. The Knights' 34-19 victory over Central, plus Western's upset victory over Eastern, gave the Knights sole claim to the conference crown.

Tetz, playing his best game of the season, led the Knights with 103 yards rushing and three touchdowns. Craig Knutzen and the always outstanding Renggli led the defensive team that contained Central with surprising ease. The Knights led 34-7 until late in the fourth quarter when the Wildcats scored twice against the PLU reserves.

The Knights of PLU opened the 1964-65 basketball season as underdogs in the Evergreen Conference, a role definitely foreign to the Lions in recent years. Seldom does a team monopolize play in a conference as has Pacific Lutheran in the past decade. Last teams have won or shared the title in nine of these ten years, going undefeated four times (including a winning streak of 21 games from 1956 through 1960). Overall the teams have won 105 games while losing only 19 in this period. However, gone from last year's undefeated conference champion team were four of the starting five, in addition to the top reserve. This left Curt Gammell, a junior and the only returning starter, in the position of team leader because the remaining starters were a combination of freshmen and sophomores. This youthfulness was evident through the season as the team showed great potential but occasionally lacked the consistency and cool heads that come with experience.

(P. 6) Here worry through a free throw situation.

FW 85, Payer Sound 73 - The Lutes sprinted to a big early lead then held off a mid-game threat to defeat the Loggers and chalk up their 13th straight conference victory. Trailing by a point early in the second half, the Knights came to life, and led by little Al Hedman, outscored the Loggers 15 to 4 to win it up. Curt Gammell led the Lutes with 15 points and a dozen rebounds. He also set up numerous scores on passes from the high post.

Central 71, FW 64 - The Wildcats' Mel Cox proved to be too much for the Lutes as he scored 31 points and the Knights' winning streak was broken. Leading all the way, the Cats just barely survived a late Lute rush which shaved their lead from 17 to 2 points. Curt Gammell, who spearheaded the comeback, led the scorers with 18 points and also grabbed 28 rebounds, breaking the school record set by Little All-America Chuck Curtis in 1959.

PLU 70, Western 61 - A tremendous display of field goal gunnery led the Lutes to an easy victory over Western. Shooting over the Vikings' tight defense, the Lutes made a dazzling 63% of their first half shots. Curt Ommell again led the show with 17 points. Correcting an error on the first six shots he took.

PLU 79, Eastern 69 - Eastern's Savages couldn't cope with the Lutes' hot shooting as they fell behind from the start and could never catch up. Curt Gammell and Al Hedman, with 21 and 13, led the attack, which saw the team make 59% of its shots.

PLU 60, Whitworth 54 - Led by Curt Gammell and reserve Don Rowland, the Lutes broke up a close game early in the second half to down the Pirates. The Lutes' fine defense was probably the decisive factor in a low-scoring game.

Western 67, PLU 57 - The Lutes entered a pair of key away games afflicted with what Coach Lugaard described as "food poisoning." Its effects were evident as the Lutes, with Doug Lindland out and Curt Gammell slowed considerably, fared in the last five minutes of the game, making only two free throws in that stretch.

Ruger Sound 71, PLU 70 - It was the same story against the Loggers as the Lutes, ahead by one point at the half, roared to an 11-point lead then saw it slip away late in the game. Despite his condition, Curt Gammell led the Lutes with 20 points.

PSU 91, Whitworth 55 - The Lutes could do nothing wrong as they handed Whitworth its worst defeat ever by a PSU team. The Pirates were 12 minutes without a basket in the first half as the Lutes built a 17-point halftime lead. Missing their first six shots in the second half, the Knights just kept pulling away. For the entire game the team made 56% of its shots, a new school record. Tim Sherry led the pack with 19 points.

PLU 72, Eastern 63 - Free throw shooting was the key to the Lutes' victory over the Savages in a rough game which saw 54 fouls called. Nearly blowing a 16-point lead, the Lutes came through on four pressure free throws by Tim Sherry. The Lute scoring, which saw four men in double figures, was led by Curt Gammell with 26 and Sherry with 12, all from the foul line.

Central 83, PLU 72 - Central turned on a tremendous display of power in the last 1 1/2 minutes to shatter a close game and end Pacific Lutheran's Evergreen Conference career with a loss. Led by Tim Sherry, who led all scorers with 29 points, the Lutes handled the Wildcats easily in the first half, building up a ten-point lead. This was quickly erased and the lead changed hands 17 times before the final hectic minutes.

Despite losing the final game to Central, the Lutes was the right to try for a trip to Corvallis, due to the fact that they had the third best record (17-17) in the state. In this sudden-death playoff against St. Martin's, however, the Lutes couldn't make a free throw under pressure and lost 67-64, after leading by four with a minute to go. Leading scorer was Curt Gammell, who totaled out with two minutes to go.

This ended another basketball season. 1965 also marked the end of an era in PLU basketball history as it was decided that because of the increasing size of the state colleges, the school would accept the invitation offered to join the Northwest Conference, a group of private schools including Linfield, Lewis & Clark, Willamette, Whitman and College of Idaho. The outlook is for a powerful Lute team next year since everyone but reserve center Skip Hartvigson is returning, resulting in a team with experience in working together, a factor which was wanting to a certain extent this year.

Dexy Langston, Junior Guard

Jon Paulson, Lutes' Leading Batter

The key word to be used in summarizing the 1965 baseball season is inexperience as every position on the team, with the exception of pitcher and catcher, was manned by non-letter men. As a result, the team showed great potential but was plagued by numerous errors. As was to be expected, then, the team showed steady improvement and finished the season on a winning note. Assisting Coach Carlson this year was Chuck Hobbs, a former Lute baseball player.

A lack of experience was the main hindrance to the 1965 Knights of the Net. Two lettermen, Dave Stein and Glen Graham, and freshman Mike Ford led the team to an 8-11 record to better last year's record of one win, the first in three years. Tennis appears to have gained added status this year as some of the athletic department's scholarship fund has been directed to the support of aspiring nettery.

Spring Sports On the Rise

The Lute golf team, led by returning lettermen Dennis Austreng, Dean Sandvig, and Tom Robinson, opened the season with an 11-7 victory over St. Martin's. Displaying good depth and experience they drove to their best season since 1961, when they won the Evergreen Conference championship.

Although there was a lack of team depth on this year's Pacific Lutheran track squad their presence was felt in the league due to several outstanding individuals. One of the league's best sprinters was Wendell Brown who ran the 100, 220, and 440 yard dashes and also anchored the relay teams. Another individual who proved to be a consistent point getter was a Swedish import, Leif Johansson, who was a national contender in the triple jump. One of the pleasant surprises of the season was Lee Rucker who led the Knights in team scoring. Other letter winners were Craig Knutson, Terry Tammiarvik, and a host of freshmen. As in the past the team was coached by Mark Saltzman who has produced two national champions in the last two years.

Something for Everyone . . .

Below: Mr. Mark Saleman, head of the intramural program, and his assistant, Dave Fenn, check over the score book after a basketball game.

"Something for everyone" might well be the name given to the Pacific Lutheran Intramural program. The program offers a chance for every student to find some activity in which he can participate. The intramural program opened in the fall with a touch football league and before the end of the year sponsored competition in the following sports: basketball, track, baseball, golf, tennis, horseshoes, ping-pong, badminton, and volleyball. Other sports closely related to the intramural program are bowling and rowing.

The intramural program is headed by Mr. Mark Salzman, and this year he was assisted by Dave Fenn. Mr. Salzman has built the program so that now it is considered second next to none.

... Even for the Girls

Many girls on the Pacific Lutheran campus find a great deal of enjoyment in participating in the girls' intramural sports program sponsored by Phi Epsilon. Phi Epsilon is an organization composed of women physical majors, and this year Mrs. Paulson served as advisor to the club.

Field hockey, basketball, volleyball, tennis and track are the major activities that the girls take part in. Many girls take part in the school bonding league which meets every Sunday night. The girls also have a chance to compete against other schools in the large playdays that are held throughout the year. One of the big days of the year for the girls is when they meet U.P.S. in the annual field hockey game held during homecoming weekend. PLU indeed is a place where everyone can grow in mind, spirit, and body.

"Oh, When the Lutes Come Marching In . . ."

This swinging, singing foursome represents the active quartet of songleaders. The enthusiastic group of girls led the cheering section with new routines, new pom-poms, and new vitality. They were (above, left to right): Marcia Johnson, Ronni Hellum, Judy Bossi, and Cathy Landvatter.

The work of the AMS has been varied and exciting this year. "For Men Only," a handbook for incoming freshmen containing tips on college life and campus traditions, was published before the year began. A dance, the AMS Spring Carnival, Dad's Weekend, and the Student Home Directory were all sponsored by the AMS. Three scholarships were also given in an effort to stimulate academic excellence.

AMS enjoyed an active and exciting year. In the fall, new students were welcomed through the Freshman Orientation Program, Big-Little Sister Activities, and the Transfer Tea. Proceeds from the rummage sale provided funds from several scholarships, which were presented at the annual Awards Assembly in the spring. Two work shops were held this year from wing chairmen to help define their duties. "Holy Fair Mother," the theme of Mother's Weekend, highlighted the year with luncheon, tea, and a fashion show. Members of the AWS Council attended both the State and National Conventions. Through these activities, AWS attempted to serve all the women and endeavored to make them feel a part of the University.

Alpha Kappa Psi, a professional business fraternity, offers its members a training supplemental to that of the classroom. It helps to develop the abilities and personalities of its members by the conduct of professional programs featuring speakers, social events, and research demonstrations applicable to the business world. It enriches the formal training of the school by means of the business world. The fraternity's greatest strength lies in the fact that its membership is made up of men whose interest is broader than the classroom. Their activities must find scope in a better knowledge of the real world of business and in preparation for it.

In order to get acquainted with other students from this state and to keep in contact with them, a club on PLU's campus has been formed for only Montanans. Many directions of life are found through activities on campus.

After a falling rain the grounded air is fresh and pure. All of nature seems to take a sigh and relax from its internal conflicts. On a college campus there are also many forces working in all directions at all times. The student feels it is necessary to find a way of releasing himself from surrounding tensions. To fully establish college years as a much prized way of life, activities must enter as a form of relaxation and pleasure.
Variety of activities are offered in order to give each individual an opportunity for self-expression in some form all year round. The autumn at PU begins with a series of temptations called Freshmen Orientation.
As winter approaches Christmas songs fill the air and a joyous spirit is felt everywhere. Spring is welcomed as a sign of the rebirth of nature as metaphorically envisioned by the pagan spirit of the annual May festival.

Books, boxes, and bears

Each fall on the campus, amid books, boxes, and anxious minds, the freshmen emerge. As the air begins to clear, a process referred to as Freshmen Orientation unfolds for the enthusiastic newcomers. Tests, lectures, campus tours, and faculty visitations become the essence of their daily routine. It is impossible to fully realize what college life has to offer for the student until he has engaged in the frolic and fun found during the study-break hours on campus.

The warm radiant glow felt throughout all homecoming events is expressed in the smile of Karen Land, the 1964 Homecoming Queen. Sandra Tillson, Homecoming co-chairman, is shown assisting in the final preparations before the Coronation of her Royal Highness.

Queen Koren Captures Crown

Festivities were just one of the various embellishments designed for the enjoyment of the Royal Personage and the capacity throng of students and alumni who gathered to Eastvold Chapel for the Crowning of the Queen.

The Alumni were honored with a banquet in Chris Knutzen Fellowship Hall following the victorious football game against the Western Vikings. Later the same evening the students and alumni were swept into the world of Mars Green at the annual Homecoming dance.

The easiest way to take a sentimental journey is through musical diversionment. One piano, one set of drums, and a bass were adorned with the presence of Dorothy Payne, Dr. R. Byard Fritts, and Paul Steen to present for the audience's enjoyment musical selections that certainly awakened the memories and were fit for the coronation of a Queen.

A queen's court is not complete without her royal princesses. Misses Judy Frazier and Audrey Sorbel congratulate their Queen after the final selection was publicly announced to the student body during a coronation ceremony.

Homecoming: A Time to Enter Into the "Aspects of Life"

Friday night the royal court, students and alumni were enthralled by the beautiful and provocative lyrics of two folk singers Bud and Trava. Their unhampered versatility and professional style was assisted by Buck Wheat on the base. An extensive repertoire of international tunes filled the gym and the hearts and minds of all in attendance. The success of this program and the entire Homecoming was due to the dependable and energetic leadership of the homecoming co-chairmen Sandra Tillson and Roger Claridge. Their complex and difficult task of planning the various events was even extended to making sure there was wood for the glacial bonfire rally held on lower campus.

Variety is the spice of the PUU campus. Homecoming serves as an event to present various experiences in one weekend, the impact of which is felt throughout the entire school year. Queen

Torino, Our Bride of Light.

The Lucia Bride Festival is a perpetuation of a Swedish legend which tells of Lucia, a bride-to-be, who gave her dowry to the Church when her prayers for her mother's health were answered. Lucia's fiance, upon hearing of it, stabbed her. She was immediately transformed. She appears in Sweden now during the Christmas season dressed in a white robe with a crown of candles upon her head. Torino Kerkeeng assisted by Karen Schlatter and Becky Baseler carried through the tradition on our campus.

Kent Hjelmervik lights the seven-fold crown of candles acclaiming Torino Kerkeeng as the 1964 Lucia Bride.

The Spurs prepare CB-200 for the reception following the Lucia Bride Festival.

Shirley Kruger reads the legend of Saint Lucia in braille.

Christmas is a glorious season celebrated by Christians all over the world. Here on the RW campus, where we are of many different nationalities, our season is officially opened with the crowning of the Lucia Bride, a Swedish tradition. The traditional Christmas tree introduced to us by the Germans, and as legend goes originated by Martin Luther, has become a tradition, along with the presentation of A Christmas Carol, by Charles Dickens, a play that is always well received.

Have you ever wondered what makes spring so special? The world is filled with a rebirth of nature as the plants and trees begin to sprout their new foliage. Yet, there is a further meaning expressed during this season, it is the promise for a new way for life. The promise of better things to come, of gay hearts and tranquility to emancipate the troubled world. Dance and song express this jubilant feeling each May at F&E, one of the five colleges in the United States sponsors a folk dancing program. May festival is produced under the auspices of Mrs. Rhoda Young. The participants have been in preparation since October, with weekly rehearsals. The pageantry of the May Festival is enlightened by the presence of the Royal Court. Reigning as queen is Miss Jean Anderson. The court consists of two representatives selected from each class. The entrance of the ribbon bearers commences the evening's activity. Their presence symbolize the traditional maypole dance performed by children all over the land. In our festival the children participate as the crown bearer and queen's attendants. The international flavor of the dances show the universal appeal of spring.

The annual May Festival dancing serves also means to release expression from the heart of man. It reaches into the future that has been lost by so many countries through rapid industrialization. The lush colors of the costumes joined with the lively spirit of the international dances reveal hope, glory, and beauty which enrich people throughout the world.

Right over here, try your luck in the fishing pond!

Spring means fresh daisies, joyful hearts, and the sounds of a carnival filling the air. On PUM's campus all these necessary ingredients for this season are discovered at the annual AMS Spring Carnival. Fresh daisies form a crown to honor Elok Morrison as the Spring Carnival Queen. the festivities and spread the warmth of spring throughout all the kingdom. Fishing in the pond may not always be successful, but there is the pleasure of trying your luck on something new and different. Then again, it is debatable whether or not a turtle race is run on luck or pure skill. The happy sounds of winning are intermingled with those of losing to give the woodcock turtle royal support.

Radiant Smiles

Not all of Spring Carnival is obvious enjoyment. Many hours have been spent by both the boys and girls to organize, plan and build the various booths. Many more hours go into the operation of the booth during the two-night running period. A good deal of time is required to perfect that shine on a young man's shoes; this fact has been borne out by the many Spurs who were engaged in the arduous task. One particular booth that serves as a peril for many is the jail. Its function is to trap innocent bystanders in hopes of gaining a ransom fee in lieu of release. At times the whole situation appears hopeless and a small voice is heard pleading for a rescuer. The hard work and time spent finds its reward in the radiant smiles of those who found joy through participation in the events.

*Life is
as we live it.*

A college campus extends a variety of activities for all its students. Life winds its web of joy, beauty, and sadness throughout the realm of books, sports and discussions. People walking through day find themselves involved in nature; in all that surrounds them because they see themselves as a part of the world in which they live. The sports events offer a chance to let off steam—to release tension built up during a week's study. Involvement with fellow students arises with the proximity of fans cheering. Those who obtain some of the essence of life through education are able to enjoy a spiritual and mental growth that will shape their whole pattern of being.

Mr. Maurice Strone and his ensemble "Choir of the West" performed the world premiere of Dr. Malos Rozsa's "Vaniety of Life" on the stage of Eastwood Chapel on March 23 before a capacity crowd. During the summer of '64, Rozsa, a native of Budapest, Hungary, spent three months in Italy and it was in this European atmosphere that he composed the "Vaniety". Written expressly for the "Choir of the West" at the request of Strone, the "Vaniety" is Rozsa's second major choral composition, the first being "To Everything There is a Season." Both studies were performed by the choir this year. Rozsa's artistry in the field of orchestral composition coupled with more than 100 film scores have brought him international recognition as one of the finest contemporary composers of our time.

Newly elected editor Roger Stillman has found the Mooring Mast desk a busy place to "live!"

MOORING MAST - The voice of the students

It has been said, "Never underestimate the power and influence of the college press." The wisdom of this statement has been clearly shown by the Mooring Mast this year. Under the direction of Editor Dick Finch and his predecessor Roger Stillman, each issue of the Mooring Mast has been a provocative publication . . . leaving no stones unturned on the campus. A substantial increase in funds and in the size of the staff has enabled the paper to turn out bigger and better issues. More than ever before the Mooring Mast has become the "voice of the students of Pacific Lutheran University."

Headline editors Patty Boyson and David Stein attempt to find the proper words to put in the column headed for next week's issue.

Choir of the West in its 38th season.

The Choir of West began its 38th season under a new director as Maurice M. Skones joined the FW staff as director of choral and chairman of the department of music. A man of vast experience in choral music, Professor Skones was formerly director of choral and associate professor of music at Adam State College, Colorado.

A program of contemporary works and traditional songs was presented to audiences throughout the Northwest. An overflow crowd enjoyed an In Spring Christmas Concert given in conjunction with the Concert Chorus on the Eastvold Chapel stage; the program was repeated for various groups in the Tacoma area during December. A semester-break tour took the Choir to Seattle, Vancouver, B.C., and several other Puget Sound cities.

In March the Choir toured Washington, Idaho and Montana, visiting such places as Yakima, Wenatchee, Spokane, Seattle, Whitworth College and Montana State University. An Oregon tour in April included stops at Eugene, Oregon City, and the traditional Palm Sunday Concert at Central Lutheran Church in Portland.

Assisting Professor Skones with the Choir were David Holmquist, Choir president, and Roeder Anderson, student director.

The Sound of Music

Under the direction of Maurice Stokes, the Concert Chorus members found themselves busy with on-campus activities. From early fall the Chorus prepared for the Christmas Concert where they made their first appearance. The Chorus helped by forming a part in the concert evening production. During the second semester the Chorus helped provide the opening anthem for the chapel service. The highlight of the year came in the early spring when the Chorus, the University Orchestra, and soloists performed for the first time on the campus, Gabriel Fauré's "Requiem." Later in the Spring many of the members of the Chorus filled roles in the production of "Carousel" that was put on by the music and speech department.

Pacific Lutheran University Band under the direction of Gordon Gilbertson, again opened the year with an enthusiastic Marching Band for the Football Season. In October the band held a benefit concert for Tacoma's Childrens Orthopedic Guild. Then in November came the highlight of the year for many of the band members, a tour to North Dakota. The tour, which included their Thanksgiving Holidays was twelve days long and they gave eighteen concerts plus a Homecoming Concert. The Public Relation Department - Milton Nesvig - scheduled concerts for them in Washington, Idaho, Montana, and North Dakota. At Christmas time a concert was given to the children at Buckley for a spring presentation, circus and carnival music were featured at a concert in April. The band came to a grand finale with a superb performance at the graduation ceremonies.

During the Basketball Season the Pop Band was directed by Phil Aorhus.

Expression brings variety.

Dr. Daniel Coy Williams opened the newly instituted Expression Series with his visit early in November. Dr. Williams is a member of the faculty of Union Theological Seminary in New York City and the author of many books on contemporary theology. Dr. Williams' main lecture was given November 17, in Eastvold Chapel. The lecture was entitled "The Being of God: A Discussion in Contemporary Theology." February 5th brought the FORD CARAVAN of Music featuring the songs of the Serendipity Singers and the progressive jazz of the Oscar Peterson Trio to the PLU campus. Drummer Ed Thigpen, Bassist Ray Brown and Pianist Peterson, each an accomplished soloist in his own right, displayed their virtuosity in the variety of selections they played. A core of University of Colorado students enlarged by two University of Texas graduates had the audience tapping their toes to a unique "folk-jazz" sound. Author, writer, and teacher Vance Packard lectured on "America in Upheaval — The Seven Great Changes of Our Time", March 6, to round out the Series. Mr. Packard has lectured all over the country and has had several books on the best seller list, including THE HIDDEN PERSUADERS and THE NAKED SOCIETY.

The formalized group of seven boys and two girls entertained the campus with their comedy sketches, dramatic blackouts and extraordinary, musical sound.

ment of all those in attendance.

Mr. Nordham goes over the scheduled program with Miss Skinner prior to the show.

The musical worlds of Mozart, Beethoven and Bartok came to life through the mastery of the Hungarian Quartet.

The year's Artist Series offered a wide variety of programs for the enjoyment of all. The Series opened with the "one-man" show of Cornelia Otis Skinner. Miss Skinner, an accomplished actress, presented a series of "Modern Monologues", and then in the more dramatic vein portrayed the "Wives of Henry VIII". It was an interesting and different type of program, not an interpretive reading but a dramatic presentation with Miss Skinner portraying all the characters in her own play. The second program was a complete change of pace from the first with the Hungarian Quartet. The "great interpreters of great music" (Christian Science Monitor) entertained the audience with selections from the musical worlds of Mozart, Beethoven, and Bartok. The whimsically humorous opera "Die Fledermaus", written by Johann Strauss Jr. and performed by the Canadian Opera Company, delighted the audience in the early part of the second semester. This was the second appearance of the Canadian Opera Company in recent years. This year's opera centered around a practical joke that backfired, trapping the characters in a web of laughter. A touch of old Scotland entered Eastvold Chapel with the appearance of the Scottish Singers and Dancers. The troupe, making its third U.S. tour, performed "Caledonia", a blend of folk music and dances of their country. To round out this year's series.

Hope Halvorson stole the show with her enthusiastic interpretation of Madame Arcati in Blithe Spirit.

PLU's first show was Noel Coward's delightful farce "Blithe Spirit," directed by Dr. Abe L. Borsett. An hilarious chain of events ensued as the character of Charles was haunted by the ghosts of his two previous wives.

The annual Childrens Theater followed, under the scrutiny of producer-director Eric Nordholm. Charlotte B. Cherpensing's adaptation of the traditional fairy tale "The Three Bears," which deals with coordination friendship among the bears and humans, stirred the childrens imaginations.

The third production of the year was presented by Alpha Psi Omega, national drama honorary, in cooperation with the speech department. A satire by Samuel Spewack, "Under the Sycamore tree," dealt with human emotions, actions and institutions through the medium of an ant colony. Arden Rem and Karen Muzzo were co-directors.

The production of The Three Bears marked another successful season opening of the Children's Theater.

Nils and Martin Goosey-Gander are pursued by Fox.

The world-premier performance of assistant professor of speech Eric Nordholm's Runaway Nils took place on March fourth. The play provides a much needed addition to the children's theater. In the past, the only professionally written play for the children's theater has been Peter Pan. Peter Pan and Runaway Nils have something else in common—they both involve "stage flying", where characters in the play actually fly on stage. Peter Fox, a London-born expert on stage flying, who assisted with the Children's Theater production of Peter Pan three years ago, directed the various "flying" scenes in the show.

Nils (center) tells Mats, "There is no Tomten Inn".

Akka has just discovered the Tomten. Mayrose looks on.

The story was written over a period of two and a half years by Nordström. It is based on the story, The Wonderful Adventures of Nils, by Selma Lagerlöf. The tale is of a Swedish lad who is cast into a spell by a tomte elf. As a result, he is able to converse with the farm animals, and many exciting adventures and misadventures ensue. Over 6,000 children viewed the production.

Pi Kopp hosts national convention.

While many of the students were away enjoying a well-earned Easter vacation, the campus of Pacific Lutheran University was buzzing with excitement. PLU played host to the twenty-fourth National Convention of Pi Kappa Delta, national speech honorary. Over 700 students from 132 colleges across the nation came to PLU's campus to enter into debate, discussion, oratory and extemporaneous speaking. Debators battled over the topic, "Resolve: That the Federal Government should establish a national program of public work for the unemployed." The students attending the convention had a chance to see the great Pacific Northwest and to go on an excursion in the Sound for a salmon-bake. Washington's Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem.) traveled from Washington, D.C., to address the convention Thursday afternoon. According to Professor T. G. H. Karl, this was one of the greatest events to hit PLU's campus. The convention brought national recognition to the campus and saw several PLU students receive national honors.

University . . .
on the air

University in Profile, a public affairs program, designed to interpret some of the fundamental philosophies and objectives of the University is released through the facilities of KTNT-TV, channel 11. The program is produced by Judd Doughty of the Speech department faculty and directed by Paul Steen also of the Speech Department.

The diversified programs include analyses of major educational topics, examination of campus traditions and refreshing showcase of collegiate talent.

The purchase of an Ampex video tape recorder made it possible to pre-record University in Profile on campus instead of having to do all the taping at the Channel 11 studios. "Because we are able to videotape on campus the program has a sense of immediacy and intimacy that adds to its appeal," says Judd Doughty.

Jack Shannon and Roger Stillman go over news bulletin before air time.

This year marked the most expanded radio-programming in the Universities' history. Each Saturday during the fall semester a four hour folk music show was broadcast from KAYE in Puyallup.

The show was produced and directed by Roger Stillman. Heading the news staff was Jack Shannon. Besides providing music, the show also served as a means of publicizing coming campus events.

Part of the program material was supplied by the speech department's radio and TV speaking classes. A special weekly feature entitled "Inside-Out" highlighted campus news and personalities.

Ready Two . . . Take Two

KNIGHT-TIME, the hour-long, weekly broadcast produced by the students, for the students is now in its fifth year. The purpose of KNIGHT-TIME is to give students the opportunity to express themselves creatively to other students through the medium of television. It also offers those interested in careers in television the opportunity of becoming acquainted with production and direction techniques. For those interested in technical aspects of television there is the opportunity to learn how to run equipment. KNIGHT-TIME offers the students an understanding of television and provides excellent entertainment.

Among the many and varied jobs performed by crewman Barry Kyle is operating one of the T.V. cameras.

Crew member Alan Mitchell makes last minute adjustments to camera just prior to airtime.

Faculty supervisor Paul Stoen lends a helping hand when and wherever necessary.

Student folksinger Mike Lundstrom makes his KPLU-TV debut on one of the KNIGHT-TIME shows.

With the formation of shapes from our tangled mind we discover the tangible truth of our unfolding spirit.

The joy of an artist comes from his thinking and working... hoping to create a stimulating and thought-provoking image for the beholder.

Therefore, one must strive to step up his attitude to understand, and in understanding he comes a bit closer to life.

The student body joins in singing hymns at daily Chapel Services.

In Him We Live, Move, and Have Our Being

The Bible is used as a text in various classes.

The (Canaan) Tower reminds us of God's presence

A student pauses for meal-time grace.

One of the main objectives of the University is to provide an opportunity for the development and expression of Christian attitudes and faith. It serves to prepare Christian citizens through an unhampered search for truth in all areas of life. An atmosphere of high moral standards radiates from within the campus and penetrates through the many aspects of student activity.

Members of the Inquirer's Class participate in thoughtful religious discussion.

Searching for truth . . .

The Inquirer's Class meets weekly to discuss pertinent questions on faith. Pastor Larsgaard assists the students in their quest for understanding.

Proper services are led by students each Monday night. Their informal but personal approach make them significantly inspiring.

David Fearson meditates before delivering Tower Chapel message.

A Prayer for Christian Service

Oh Lord, our heavenly Father, whose blessed Son came not to be ministered unto, but ————— We beseech thee to bless all who, following in his steps, give themselves to the service of their fellow men. Endue them with wisdom, patience, and courage to strengthen the weak and raise up those who fall; that, being inspired by thy love, they may worthily adhere to thy Name in the suffering, the frustration, and the agony; for the sake of him who laid down his life for us, thy Son our Savior, Jesus Christ. Amen.

Behold, behold, how good - how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. The Lord commanded the blessing even life forevermore. Alleluia!

Convention Chairman John Martilla receives a standing ovation.

Enthusiasm created by first ASPLU Nominating Convention

April 2 and 3, 1965, ushered in a history-making event at PLU. Memorial Gymnasium was transformed into Convention Hall, and a small-scale national convention served as the ASPLU primary election. C. Montgomery Johnson, Washington State Republican party chairman, was the keynote speaker, and John Martilla, a 1963 graduate of PLU, served as Convention Chairman. Delegates and alternate delegates were selected by their living areas to serve as voting representatives. The demonstrations, nominating and acceptance speeches, roll-calls, caucusing, and politicking in general not only aroused an enthusiasm probably never before felt on the campus but also served as opportunities for students to learn more about what goes into the setting-up and conducting of our national conventions.

Paul Swanson and Dave Berg served as co-chairmen for this very successful "first" at PLU.

This candid shot is typical of the many confetti-throwing, banner-waving, roaring demonstrations that took place throughout the convention.

Loyal supporters contemplate the outcome of their candidate.

How would you like to set out 15 million plants?

Quite a project. But nothing unusual when you're in the tree farm business. We not only planted 15 million seedlings last year, but also seeded 17 thousand acres by helicopter.

How does this affect you? Think of it this way. The seeded land alone should produce enough wood to build well over 100 thousand new homes by the time your grandchildren, or their children, grow up.

Or think in terms of the immediate future.

Continual reforestation is replacing the wood you and your fellow Americans are using from our lands today. This, in turn, means that payrolls, taxes and other income will continue for scores of local communities. And that our tree farms will continue to provide water, wildlife, recreation and other benefits for you and generations to follow.

There is one sobering note, however. A point well worth remembering. Tree farming is a costly, hazardous business. It is fraught with the ever present danger of severe losses by wind, fire, insects and disease. And from seedling to maturity, it takes up to 30 years for a tree farmer to recover his investment in every new tree crop.

As a matter of common sense, such long-range investments and risks can be undertaken only under a fair and equitable tax climate. This climate exists, generally, today. For the sake of our nation's forest future, it should continue through the years ahead.

To: The Students and Alumni of Pacific Lutheran University
From: The oldest mutual light and water utility in the nation

The hours, weeks, and years which you spent in studying at Pacific Lutheran University were very productive and enlightening. Why? Partially because there was an abundance of low cost electrical energy to light the desk, to heat the room, to cook the food, to provide the running water, to power the projector, and in some cases to press the clothes.

The productivity of your post-college career will likewise be affected by an abundant supply of low cost electrical energy.

"Productivity is the reflection of expended energy." Should excessive cost restrict the use of energy, then surely the reflection will show. What does this mean to the young homemaker, professional and business person? We think the meaning becomes very clear when the Parkland cost of energy is as little as one-half the national average.

May we extend an invitation to you to settle in our Parkland area.

Electricity is cheap.

Water is pure.

The climate is mild.

and

There truly is a need for young people who plan to diligently work for the betterment of their chosen community.

Best wishes,
Alvin Raber

1 We had fun . . .
 helping to put
 this book together.
 That's what we like
 about the printing business
 . . . working with pleasant, intelligent, talented people
 . . . striving with ideas and ink and paper
 . . . tending
 the modern streamlined monsters that equip our printing plant to crystallize
 all previous thought and effort

2 on paper
 in a way that will make you say —
 "Exceptional"
 "WELL DONE"
 "—I like it"
 "Good color"
 "It sparkles"
 —and we hope you do say it,
 spontaneously.
 The Craftsman Press is our name,
 Craftsmanship is our by-word.
 Make Craftsman your buy-word and you, too, will enjoy the printing business.

Rogers and Hammerstein's smash Broadway hit Carousel was one of the highlights of spring activities on campus. The ever-popular musical utilized the talents of scores of students and many faculty members.

Professor Theodore O. H. Karl, head of the speech department, was general producer of this, the first musical in the history of Pacific Lutheran. He received invaluable assistance from music department head Maurice Skanes, assistant professors of speech Dr. Abe Bassett and Eric Nordholm, and Mrs. LaMoyné Hreha, a choreographer from the Tacoma area.
