UNIVERSITY CENTER
DEDICATION SUNDAY

A welcome to University Center dedication ceremonies and open house was issued this week by Dr. Eugene Wiegman, president of Pacific Lutheran University.

"This building will be dedicated to the students, faculty, staff, alumni and friends of the university," he said. "It's your building, designed for spirited living."

The Center mirrors the spirit of PLU, according to Dr. Wiegman. "We are committed to a life style of learning and serving that is rooted in Christian ideals," he added.

He described the building. "It reflects the limitless freedom and rugged individualism synonymous with the forests and lakes of the Puget Sound region," he said. "Its bright, warm colors keynote the hospitality for which the area is famous. And the openness of the courtyard, the soaring wooden trusses and the solid facade all bring to mind the fjords of Norway, from which springs the PLU heritage."

The president added, "Here we will dine, play, worship, meet and experience the mutual concerns we have one for another. It is up to us to make this Center a symbol of life. It is here that we can make a good start toward showing what Christ-like living means."

Dedication ceremonies will be held in Olson Auditorium at 3 p.m. this Sunday afternoon. Tours and open house will follow immediately in the Center itself.

Members of the University Center dedication committee have been President Eugene Wiegman, Howard Scott (Regent), Ray Tobiason (alum), Bill Christensen, Tom Gumprecht, Steve Carlson and John McLaughlin (all students), A. Dean Buchanan (bus.), Goodwin Chase (Regent), Walt Tomsic (art), Jim Peterson (news bur.), Roger Gruss, (press sec.), Marv Swenson (U. C.), Dave Olson (p.e.), and Clayton Peterson (dev.), chairman.

A new twist is added to a classic tale in the Pacific Lutheran University Children's Theatre production of "Little Red Riding Hood," beginning this weekend at PLU.

In the Children's Theatre version of the familiar story, the young wolf thinks he is smarter than men and plans to outwit them and make them his servants. But no matter how hard he tries, he cannot learn to control his wolf nature.

Public performances of the popular semi-annual Children's Theatre are scheduled for Saturday afternoons on Nov. 7 and 14 at 2:30 p.m. in Eastvold Auditorium at PLU. Special productions will also be held for Franklin-Pierce, Clover Park, Bethel, and Eatonville School districts during the next two weeks.

In the play the young wolf learns that it is better to be a good wolf than an imitation man, according to director Eric Nordholm. Assistant professor of communication arts at PLU, Nordholm created the Children's Theatre 15 years ago and has served as director of the traditional production since.

RED RIDING HOOD"

The cast features Greg Thompson, a Boring, Ore., freshman, as the ambitious young wolf. Gwen Larson of Odessa plays Red Riding Hood, and the sly grandmother who foils the wolf's grandiose plans is portrayed by Julie Harris of Beaverton, Ore.

Others in the cast are Pennie Knight as the old wolf, Bob Hoff as Nicholas and Frank Calsbeck as Peter. The mother is portrayed by Becky Shear.

Hoff and Miss Larson are both veterans of former Children's Theatre productions.

Nordholm has produced two children's plays each year since 1955, designing the productions to appeal to pre-school through third grade youngsters. But more than a few adults have also found the productions intriguing. Between six and seven thousand youngsters see each of the productions.

Tickets for the public performances are available at the door.

Secretaries at Pacific Lutheran University scored a clear-cut victory in their struggle for liberation last Wednesday. The All-University Commission ruled that pant-suits are acceptable working apparel.

Although there is no clear, known Lutheran doctrine relating to skirt length, an informal straw vote among male PLU administrators indicated a marked preference for "above the knee" models. The midi received the least supporters.

The ceremonies will be held in Olson Auditorium at 3 p.m., followed by tours and an open house at the new facility.

"The completion of the Center and the contributions made to it by LIFE are further affirmation of our regard for our youth and our desire to provide them with a working base from which to move out into the world," Fintel said this week.

"The concept of the center illustrates the realization that the whole life of the student is important," he added.

Fintel has served in his present post for the past six years and was assistant director of the division of college education for four years. He has been one of four regional directors of the LIFE program.

From 1951-60 he was director of public relations at Wartburg College.

He graduated from Wartburg with a degree in social studies and obtained a masters degree in journalism at the University of Wisconsin. He is currently working on a doctorate in the field of higher education at the University of Minnesota.

Fintel is also president of the National Lutheran Campus Ministry board of directors.

Applications are being accepted for a new type of language school devoted to teaching German to children in their formative years. Classes are scheduled for 9:30 - 12:00 each Saturday morning beginning Nov. 14, on the PLU campus.

Registration of children from age four through junior high will continue until Nov. 14 when classes begin, according to Dr. Rodney Swenson (for. lang.)

The curriculum of the Tacoma German Language School is based on the premise that languages are best learned at an early age. Teaching faculty have been recruited from teachers who are experienced in German and in dealing with young children.

Teachers in the newly formed school include Mrs. Eva Hagemeyer, B. Ed. in German and French from Western Washington State College and M.A. from the University of Washington; Mrs. Anke Culver, a native speaker who holds an M.A. in German from PLU; and Mrs. Felicitas Saynella, also a native speaker with a B.A. from UPS.

GERMAN SCHOOL
ACCEPTING APPLICATIONS

There is a non-refundable registration fee of $3.50 payable at the time of registration. There will also be a slight tuition fee to be established when the enrollment figure is definitely known. It will be in the vicinity of $5 per child per month.

Checks for registration should be made out to the Tacoma German Language School and mailed to Dr. Rodney Swenson, Department of Foreign Languages, Pacific Lutheran University, Tacoma.

ARTIST SERIES
PRESENTS
MARNI NIXON
NEXT FRIDAY

Marni Nixon

Soprano Marni Nixon has planned a program of classical and Broadway favorites for her Artist Series concert at PLU Friday, Nov. 13.

The second Artist Series offering of the season, the concert will begin at 8:15 p.m. in Olson Auditorium.

Miss Nixon's program includes songs from "West Side Story", "The King and I", "Porgy and Bess", "My Fair Lady" and "Funny Girl." She also has planned a medley of Henry Purcell tunes arranged by John Edmunds and a series of classical numbers.

Red-headed Marni Nixon is emerging as one of the most astonishingly versatile actress-singers in the theatrical world. Equally at home in the world of Bach or Mozart or in music of contemporaries like Schoenberg, Webern and Stravinsky, she has been reviewed as "one of the most adroit comediennes on the operatic stage today."

TIME magazine, in a recent feature article spotlighting her vocal dubbing for many actresses in films, called her "The Ghostess with the Mostest." Her singing voice was lent to Natalie Wood in "West Side Story", to Deborah Kerr in "An Affair to Remember", and "The King and I" and Audrey Hepburn in "My Fair Lady" to mention a few.

During the past few seasons she has concertized throughout Israel and has won acclaim for two premieres with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic. She has appeared in classical opera and light opera throughout the United States and the BBC-TV in London, and recently made her film debut as Sister Sophia in 20th Century Fox's "The Sound of Music."

SPECIAL NOTE: Artist Series ticket holders are invited to attend the performance of the American Ballet Repertoire Co. Nov. 16 in Eastvold Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. The ballet performance and a replacement concert, being negotiated now, will replace the spring performance of the Denver Symphony, which cancelled its Northwest tour.

"BETWEEN TWO THIEVES" TO BE PRESENTED BY UNIVERSITY THEATRE

Warner LeRog's "Between Two Thieves," a powerful drama about Jewish oppression that ran for more than a year on Broadway in the mid '50's, will be presented by the PLU University Theatre next week.

Production dates are Nov. 11, 12, and 14 in Eastvold Auditorium beginning at 8:15 p.m. each evening. Tickets are available at the University Center.

Director Bill Parker, assistant professor of communication arts, describes the play as a modern re-trial of Christ. It concerns a Jewish acting company traveling for 15 years asking the question, "why have we been persecuted for 2,000 years?"

The major scene is a courtroom trial with Biblical characters called as witnesses. Among the witnesses are Judas, Peter, James, John, Mary and Joseph and many others.

Scott Green is cast in the lead role as the prosecuting attorney, David. Donald Shandrow plays Elias, the head of the Jewish acting company. Other major roles are portrayed by Pat Olson as Sarah, a member of the Jewish acting company, and Greg Yock as Judas.

The Fund for Theological Education, Princeton, N.J., is again offering its "trial year" fellowships. About 70 fellowships will be awarded for the academic year 1971-2 to those "not now definitely planning to attend graduate theological school, but who would be willing, if awarded a fellowship, to attend such a school for one year in order to consider seriously the possibility of the ordained ministry."

The fellowship is designed for men and women who are currently undecided about a vocation and/or field of further study, but who are seriously considering some form of ordained ministry and would like further opportunity to explore such a possibility.

The fellowship stipend provides the following: room, board, tuition, fees, and an allowance for books and miscellaneous personal expenses. Additional stipend is given to married fellows with children.

Candidates must be nominated. If you know of a potential candidate, please contact Prof. David Knutson, religion dept. Deadline is Nov. 20.

LUTES POST FIRST
WIN OVER WU, 37-7

Senior Safety Grant Spencer, with two key pass interceptions and a participant in twelve tackles, helped spark the Lutes to a 37-7 win over Willamette Saturday in a game played at Salem.

It was the first victory for the Lutes over Willamette in five outings. The win leaves PLU in second place in the conference race behind undefeated Linfield.

The Lutes broke the game wide open in the fourth quarter as Spencer's pass thefts set up one touchdown and halted a 56 yard Bearcat drive.

Don McPherson, who in unofficial statistics leads conference rushers in average yards per carry, tallied two touchdowns in the final frame.

ADDENDA: Ed McGrath's 40 yard field goal, his eighth of the year, ties him with Linfield's Steve Davis, for the conference lead. Both have surpassed the season record of six. . . Dave Halstead needs only 25 yards in the remaining two games to break the school season rushing record. . . The Lutes now lead Northwest small college teams in scoring, averaging 30.7 points per game.

PLU CREW DEFEATS
STANFORD, OSU

In Norse mythology, Odin, the god of war and god of wisdom, rode an eight-legged horse, Sleipnir, the Glider, who ran like a storm wind to distant battlefields on earth.

Modern-day Norsemen from PLU rowed Sleipne (sp) on Saturday--and it was no myth--but rather the Lutes sleek eight-man shell glided to a first place finish in the Klamath Falls Invitational Regatta, defeating Stanford and Oregon State in heavyweight competition.

In the season opener the varsity eight was bolstered by four veterans from the four man-with-cox crew which won the West Coast Sprint Race and finished third in the IRA Regatta at Lake Onondage, New York. The Klamath Falls race was limited to eight-man events.

Covering the 1500 meter course in a time of 5:01, a scant one second ahead of Stanford, cox Ralph Neils, stroke Malcolm Klug, No. 7 Conrad Hunziker and No. 6 Jim Putler, from PLU's nationally recognized four, were joined by Rick Landvatter, Leo Hilsinger, Roger Evenson, Lee Dawson, and Tim Brueckner.

Oregon State was a distant third with a time of 5:15.
