Many Grads Return To Visit School at Annual Reunion

Capacity Crowd Attends Banquet At Which Class of '34 Is Received Into Alumni Ranks and 5 New Board Members Chosen

With the theme, "There's Music in the Air," being carried out, the annual alumni reunion was held here last week end. A large crowd was on hand for the affair and as a result, the reunion was a huge success, according to Alfred "Cap" Anderson, president of the group. As an opening of the festivities, the Drama Club presented three one-act plays in the gym Friday night. The Saturday evenings included the big Alumni dinner in the college dining hall and a basketball game afterwards in which the Gladiators defeated Seattle Pacific College, 40-32.

At the banquet, a capacity house of more than two hundred attended. The program of which "Cap" Anderson was toastmaster included: a greeting by Dr. O. A. Tingelstad, talks on musical development at Pacific Lutheran College by Mrs. P. E. Hauge and Prof. J. O. Edwards, reminiscences of the eastern choir tour by Eric Hauke, 32 songs by a quartet of Ronald Martin, Clarence Monson, Bob Monson and Arnold Anderson, numbers by the school orchestra, welcoming of the graduating class with response by Kathryn Johnson, class president, and the election of Ruth Fadness, Marie Vandenburg, Helen Thrane, Berger Nelson, and Fred Scheel to the Alumni Board and Prof. J. P. Pflueger as faculty advisor. Welcome letters and those who assisted Irene Dahl.

Farm Party in College 'Barn' on February 17 Causes Much Hilarity

Honoring those students entering P. L. C. for the first time, the student body gave a farm party in the gymnasium Saturday evening, February 17. Suitable to the occasion, the room was decorated to represent a large barn. A program including vocal duets by Mildred Monson and Mary Hudson, accompanied by Norman Jensen; tap dancing by Anne Johnson with Irene Shafland; piano; vocal numbers by a girls' trio—Mildred Monson, Evelyn Monson, and Dorothy Delamarter; and a piano solo by Rhoda Hostenstad, was presented. After the group had played games, Irene Shafland and Orville Schianbusch received prizes for their costumes, declared most appropriate by the judges, members of the faculty. Then, divided into groups, those present gave an impromptu program. Following the playing of "Farmer-in-the-Dell," refreshments—home-made bread, sugar cookies, and milk or coffee—were served.

Assisting Kathryn Johnson, general chairman, were the following committees: Decorations, Evelyn Monson (chairman), Milton Nesvig, Eldon Anderson and Irene Shafland; refreshments, Mary Nash (chairman), Alice Peterson, Rhoda Hostenstad, and Lila Rudd; entertainment, Clarence Monson (chairman), Jean-Marie Fowler, and Evelyn Irwin.

Speaker in Accident

Because Mr. Donald Young who was scheduled to speak in chapel, was in an automobile accident recently, the student body will hold only a business meeting tomorrow. Mr. Young, who is the industrial manager of the Bank of California, will address the student body at some later date.

22 F. R. A. Students Register This Term

Library Book Re-Conditioning and Campus Work Are Projects for P. L. C. Government Aid

As a result of the Federal Relief Administration, twenty-two students will be allowed to attend Pacific Lutheran College for the spring semester by working for their charges. The students will do work as outlined by the school, and will be paid by the government, the money to be given to the school to pay their bills.

Instead of only sixteen students, as formerly announced, the quota for this school will be twenty-two, because officials in charge of the relief for this state made special pleas to the federal government for P. L. C. This quota is to be equally divided between boys and girls, eleven of each being admitted. According to stipulations, twenty-five percent of those receiving this aid must not have attended school last fall.

The work being done by the girls is under the direction of Prof. Pflueger, and includes the re-conditioning and sorting of library books. The boys are working on the campus, at present being engaged in making a road to the orchard so that a team of horses can go down from the top of the hill. Other projects of like nature will be engaged in at the completion of this job.

Debates With Aberdeen And U. of W. This Week Open Busy Season

Holding its first official debate yesterday, the men's negative team, John Dreibeis and John Van Leuven met Jack Cavney and John Oldfield, the affirmative team of Grays Harbor Junior College.

Today, at the University of Washington, John Van Leuven, John Dreibeis, Roland Swanson, and William Zier will meet affirmative and negative teams from that school.

A practice debate was held last Wednesday with the College of Puget Sound, the men's negative team again debating.

On March 8, the women's squad, Hazel Monson, Jean-Marie Fowler, Eunice Arneson, and Margaret Wesson will debate the "Grays Harbor Junior College in Aberdeen."

Several other debates are being planned for all of the teams. The debata which have been non-decision, are on the question "Resolved: That the increased powers of the President have made a permanent policy in the United States."

As electrician, property manager, costume chairman and assistant to the two former, William Pflueger, John Van Leuven, Lila Rudd, and Ferdinand Bondy worked for the productions' success. Upon the club's decision, mimeographed programs were made for this presentation.

Grads Planning Spring Activities

When the Graduating Class met for the first meeting of the second semester Thursday noon, Feb. 15, announcement was made of the Senior Class play to be given in the spring, and Kathryn Johnson, president, appointed Virginia Byers (chairman), Evelyn Monson and William Zier to serve on a committee in conjunction with the faculty advisor, Dean Hauge, and the play director, to select the play and the night of presentation. The cast will be chosen by Dean Hauge and the director.

Graduation announcements were considered and the president appointed a committee consisting of Oscar Anderson (chairman), Hazel Monson, Jesse Pflueger, and Jennie Lee to get bids and sample announcements from various printing shops.

Margaret Wesson, editor of the Saga, requested the special support of the Graduating Class in the publication of the annual and announced that all seniors must have their pictures taken before March 25.

A class party was discussed, but no definite plans were made.

Collegiate Digest and Mooring Mast Offer Students Travel Aid

Through special arrangements with bus, air, rail and steamship lines, the Mooring Mast and Collegiate Digest have inaugurated a new service for Pacific Lutheran College students and faculty members.

In the current issue of Collegiate Digest, there is a coupon which may be filled out and sent to the offices of the Associated Collegiate Press publishers, which will bring by return mail information on any particular tour or tours which the student or faculty member may wish to take next summer.

This service is designed to aid in planning tours that will take the traveler to the scenic and historic places of interest in the countries or sections of the United States in which he is interested. There is no cost for this service; it is free. Any students or faculty members who might be planning a trip for next summer are urged by those in charge to avail themselves of this opportunity to gain complete information on all types of travel and all places of interest along the routes planned.

Dr. Tingelstad To Address Mission Society Tonight

At the Mission Society meeting this evening at seven o'clock in the recreation room, Dr. Tingelstad will speak, and piano selections will be rendered by Thelma Daniels and Ida Thompson.

Those elected as officers at the meeting held on February 14, were Roland Swanson, president; Herbert Norgaard, vice-president; Irene Shafland, secretary; and Floyd Knutsen, treasurer.

Affair Sponsored By Annual Staffs Promises Thrills

Elaborate and Peppy Affair in College Gym Will Bring Unusual Entertainment To P. L. C. Students and Friends

In order to introduce the Saga more vividly to the student body, the Saga staff will stage a carnival in the gym on the evening of Friday, March 9. Plans are being made for some novel ideas to be carried out, and this entertainment promises to offer some original and peppy ideas, all of which will lend to making the patrons enjoy the evening immensely. Clarence Monson, general chairman, is arranging a program, the main feature of which will be the skit, to be written by one of the Pacific Lutheran College student body. The skit, however, is only one of the many interesting features of the program which Mr. Monson has planned, the whole evening's entertainment centering around one general theme. The whole affair, according to Mr. Monson, is going to be very original and those who visit the carnival are promised a rare treat.

7 Boys Enjoy Ideal Bachelors' Existences In 'Shack' Apartment

"Hey, Mespunk, it's your turn to get breakfast, and if you don't stir your stumps we'll all be late for nine o'clock class." This from the Stanley Berentson as he rolled over and yawned a few times. However, the gentleman in question, outside by late hours, only snored the louder and wriggled his big toe, which was protruding from under the coverlet, to scare away one of the "shack's" pet flies.

Willie Zier then appeared in the door of the kitchen and announced in his sweet manly voice "Breakfast is served in the dining car, second car to the rear." Out rolled six sleepy he-men and tumbled to the kitchen to chow. As a penalty for late rising, Mesford had to make all the beds and sweep the floor, and there just had to be some dishes done they were all dirty now, none having been washed for three days. I suppose you'll wonder why John Redden had to help, but he was on K.P. duty for numerous reasons, not to be mentioned here.

"Must you sing?" groaned Schierman to Ronny Martin. "I know I can't sing, but don't have to be told so."

Ronny forgot his wrathful reply, for Dammel just came in with some old cakes from Dahl's grocery store where he spends much of his time. Thus live the seven boys in the second story of one of Parkland's biggest buildings. The "shack," however, fills a definite place in the social life of Pacific Lutheran College, as it is rumored that seventeen present and former P.L.C. lites spent the last week-end in this famous sanctuary.

"Come up and see me some time?"

The Reunion

The reunion has come and gone. To many of us who were present it was merely a social affair of passing interest, a getting-together for a good time. To others it meant an opportunity to bring to relief events of bygone years, to draw from the storehouse of the mind memories of past experiences and live these over with those with whom we once shared them. To a few, perhaps, it had a deeper meaning than apparent to the superficial observer.

A thing that struck us was the comparatively small number of older alumni present. Why do not the older graduates come back? Is there anything in our reunions that displeases them, or is there perhaps something lacking that they would expect to find? These are important questions, for the school cannot afford to lose the interest and support of its early graduates. Those people have now children of their own, and should be one of the mainstays of the school. If our gatherings do not attract them, we should find out where the trouble lies and remedy it, even though we of the younger generation should find it necessary to sacrifice some of our ideas of a perfect reunion.

It may be true that our reunions reflect too little of the intellectual spirit and academic dignity that older people would expect to find in a gathering of college graduates. Perhaps this is one of the reasons why the older alumni do not come back. Naturally, these people have from the years gathered a more serious outlook on life, and much of what to some of the younger alumni is humorous and entertaining may to them seem out of place on such occasions.

Which Shall It Be?

We had occasion the other evening to stroll along the campus as the sun sent his last wavering beams through the clouds, painting earth and sky in colors of unspeakable beauty. Behind us walked a young couple, watching the panorama in silent awe. Said the young girl to her companion: "I love to watch the sun go down. In childhood I thought heaven was where the sun went at night, that the western sky was the outer portals, and sunset, the time when angels ushered new souls into that wonderful realm."

"I too, love to watch the sunset," said her companion. "To me colors are the language of God, and they are never so beautiful as when nature herself paints them. My greatest joy is to roam around the woods and the hills, to listen to the music of the forest, to the birds and the brooks, and to behold the glory of land and sea as nature signs beneath a starlit sky. Such experiences are to me the grandest of inspirations."

What a sharp contrast to the conversation of this young couple is the frivolous and meaningless jargon that characterizes our time. In this pleasure-mad age our purest and most exalted emotions are starved out. All of us have somewhere in our beings dormant forces yearning for expression, forces feeding on devotion and love, on colors and fragrance, on calmness and peace, forces that, if fed, would lift us above the commonplaces of life, soothe our nerves, keep our courage high, give meaning to this life, and hope for the next. But in our mad rush for the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, for exciting entertainment and nerve-wrecking thrills, we forget this side of our emotional nature. On the other hand we persist in feeding our baser impulses, such as selfishness and excitement, by senseless yelling at games and so forth—emotional exercises that leave us weaker and worse in mind and body. No wonder our nerves are cracking when we thus systematically attempt to wreck them. No wonder we are jumping out of windows, taking poison, suing for divorce, or childishly quarreling about trifles—growing old before we are mature—when we thus defiantly ignore that part of our being that was meant to give balance and poise to life. No wonder one of America's leading physicians recently told us we are headed for the junkpile.

Chapel Gleanings

The flattest failure of all is allowing ourselves to follow our own worldly desires.

Success depends not on the outcome, but on how we perform the task. —Rev. Xavier

Lent is a call to everyone to follow the way of Jesus toward Jerusalem.

It is hard for us to realize that Jesus went willingly to his death; and yet, if we don't realize this, we cannot understand the power of salvation.

It was because Jesus' eye was upon us that he underwent suffering and death for us.

Had Jesus been led away violently against His will, he could not have atoned for our sins. —Rev. Pflueger

The crucifixion of Christ is the most notable and far-reaching event of all history.

If this event had not taken place the power of Satan would have been unlimited. —Rev. Ramstad

Jesus stonated witnesses through all the ages to lead us in the path of our Savior.

When Jesus came, he set his foot in the steps of the prophets. Just so, he has admonished us to do the same things.

If we are honest to our religious responsibilities, we will be more sensitive to the possibilities God has given us. —Dr. Tingelstad

After an illness of nearly two months duration, Dr. O. A. Tingelstad was able to be in charge of the chapel exercises for the first time on February 19. In his talk he enumerated several of the things he had learned through his illness. They were:

How wonderful are the possibilities of man.

The utter foolishness of religious skepticism.

To appreciate the richness of God's Word.

The beauty and kindness of human intercourse.

The beauty of service. —Dr. Tingelstad

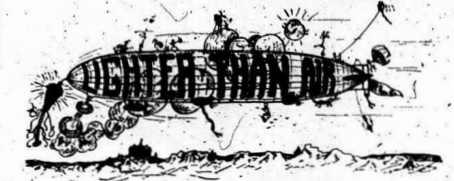

When a person is ill, he looks heavenward because he can look in no other direction.

Jesus not only gives light but He is light—the light of the world.

Though a person may be physically blind, he still has the possibility of spiritual sight.

One of the functions of the light of Jesus Christ is to wake us up from spiritual sleep, just as physical light wakes us in the mornings.

Just as the sun directs us through the day, so Jesus, the light of the world, directs us through life. —Rev. Shafland

Professor Bardou: Who's the greatest inventor the world has ever known? Harvey J.: An Irishman by the name of Pat' ending.

Olson: What do you consider the greatest accomplishment of the ancient Romans?

Bitter: Speaking Latin.

Lady (to census taker): And those two boys are sisters.

Census Taker: But, I beg your pardon, madam, that couldn't be possible.

Lady: Oh yes, my sister lives next door.

Shipwrecked Sailor: Why does that cannibal keep looking at us?

Second Sailor: Maybe he's the food inspector!

Jack H.: Those roosters kept me awake early this morning with their crowing.

Howie H.: Don't complain about the roosters. When you get up early you crow about it for days, too.

Lloyd K.: Did you ever read, "Looking Backwards"?

"Peanuts": Yes, once in a test and I almost got canned!

Bride: Now, dear, what will I get if I cook a dinner like that every day this year?

Hubby: My life insurance.

Swirth was visiting an old farmer. "Say," said Swirth, "four methods of cultivation are all out of date. Why I'd be surprised if you got ten bushels of apples from that tree."

"Wal," the farmer said casually, "I would too, that there's a pear tree."

Hong: Why is it you have only ten lines on "milk" while the rest of the class has pages?

Bud W.: I wrote on condensed milk, sir.

Paul X.: Mother, I showed the teacher up before the whole class today.

Mrs. Xavier: How did you do that?

Paul X.: She asked me for Lincoln's Gettysburg address, n' I told her that he never lived there. Oh, you should have heard the class laugh, then.

Little David Edwards had always been regarded by his family as particularly clever.

Still, he rather outdid himself when a rough looking tramp invaded the yard one afternoon and asked him where his father kept his money.

"It's in his vest, in the kitchen," replied David.

A few minutes later the tramp came through the kitchen doorway in a hurry, much battered and torn.

"Smart kid, dat!" he muttered. "Never said a word about de old man being inside de vest."

Fine Staff Working Hard To Make Saga Successful Annual

Aiming for All-American N. S. P. A. Rating and Ask Whole-Hearted Support of All; Editor Announces Complete Staff

To keep up the pace set by the preceding years' staffs was no easy task set up as a goal for this year's group of Saga writers. The value of the publications thus far has been recognized not only by the students, faculty, and friends of Pacific Lutheran College but also by the National Scholastic Press Association in judging the yearbooks.

The new project undertaken this year, that of publishing a two-year edition of the Saga also required much thought and planning. However, with the help of business men who are experienced in annual work, a satisfactory plan has been finally formulated, and the staff has been working hard toward making this annual the "best ever."

Although the question arose as to whether adequate support could be secured from the students and friends of the college in order to make the book a financial, as well as editorial, success, the business staff has been greatly encouraged by the number of subscriptions received to date. The partial payment plan as adopted by the staff has proven very popular with the students. In the face of the fact that advertising has been reputed as being hard to procure this year, the advertising department has made fairly good progress.

In the editorial department, the writers are busy with their first assignments which are due on March 1. Several surprises are in store for the subscribers since entirely different arrangements and extra pictures are to be featured in some of the sections. The novel idea around which the entire editorial work is to be centered is the entirely original theme which has proven to express increasing possibilities.

A new member on the art staff will be Fredericka Schlanbusch, recommended favorably by Mrs. Kredler, who has charge of the art work. The complete staff is as follows: Editor-in-chief, Margaret Wesson; associate editors, Edgar Larson and Rhoda Hokenstad; class editors, Gertrude Brunner, freshmen, Jane Williams, sophomores, Norman Westling, graduates; religion, William Rasmussen; music, Norman Jensen; organizations, Eldon Anderson and Herbert Norgaard; activities, Eleanor Raudebaugh; men's sports, Carroll Erickson; women's sports, Alice Roe; features, Shirley Savage and Gerhardt Fluigger; high school, Norma Preus; copy readers, Hazel Monsen, William Zier, and John Van Leuven. On the business staff are: Business manager, Arnold Myhra; advertising, Evelyn Irwin, Leonard Wesson and Ervin Dammef; circulation, Roland Swanson and Virginia Byers; accountant, Ruth Carlson; typist, Selma Bafus.

Thelma Daniels is in charge of decorations, and she with Evelyn Irwin, chairman of booths, is doing ever thing possible to make the surroundings and atmosphere of the gym beautiful and, at the same time, in accordance with the Carnival idea.

Evelyn Irwin has appointed the following committees to take charge of the various booths: luncheon, Rhoda Hokenstad, chairman, and Gertrude Brunner; fortune-telling, Eldon Anderson, chairman, Carroll Erickson, and Jane Williams; make-up, Shirley Savage and Virginia Byers; mystery booth, John Van Leuven, chairman, William Zier, and Norman Jensen; fish pond, Selma Bafus, chairman, and Norma Preus; subscription, Roland Swanson; tickets, Arnold Myhra; confectionery, Alice Roe, chairman, Eleanor Raudebaugh; nigger-baby, Ruth Carlson, chairman, Gerry Fluigger.

Everything about the Carnival is surrounded with a great deal of mystery, and it is only through attending that one can reap the full enjoyment of this extraordinary affair.

MARGARET WESSON
Editor of the Saga

After budgeting their time to the last minute, the Saga staff has chosen April 2 for the date when all the copy is to be in, and the printing and engraving to be begun. As well as a dead-line for the editorial staff, this date marks the goal-end for the advertising and circulation departments.

Then too, the students must remember that all pictures to be used must be in by April 2, especially the Graduating Class and those who are to have individual pictures taken for the annual. Also, this marks a line when the definite number of subscriptions we can count on must be paid at least in half.

The red letter day, that is decided upon for publication, will be May 18. This will be three weeks before the closing of school. The staff, being represented in the choir which hopes to go on a tour this spring, will be delayed in their work for the time when the choir is gone. We hope that the students and friends, as well as the staff, will cooperate to make possible the publication of the annual on the selected date.

College Classmates Reminisce Over Happy P. L. C. When Looking Through Yearbooks of Long Ago

It was a blizzard, blustery day in a big eastern city. Men hurried from awning to awning in the hope of missing a few of the icy bits of sleet hurled from the sky.

On a corner, in the shadow of a large office building a small group of business people were waiting for the tram-car. At last the long-expected conveyance arrived. Almost instantly the corner refuge was abandoned, spike heels all flying toward the waiting street-car.

The recently vacated space was noticed by two middle-aged men who had each been looking for just such a shelter from the wind and storm. The two rushed toward the goal coming from different directions, and strangely enough, both arrived at the same moment in the same place on the corner. Consequently a collision occurred, and without this incident happening our story might not have been any different from those hundreds enacted daily on the streets of our metropolises.

However, since these gentlemen did come in contact with each other almost too forcibly, our story may continue. The better dressed of the two looked kindly into the eyes of his neighbor but no glimmer of recognition was visible in his grey eyes. As for his comrade, truly a little worn-looking and thread-bare in apparel, as he gazed into the eyes of the other man his heart became filled with memories and reminiscences of happy times passed in his youthful college days. Hadn't he seen those eyes before, and what was making him grasp the outstretched hand of his social superior as if he was his dearest friend?

"John! Don't you remember me?" he cried in a husky voice.

"Why, no. I never saw you before," said his puzzled acquaintance. "But how do you learn my name?"

"Why, aren't you old Johnny who used to play tackle in the line on the 1934 Gladiator team?"

"Why-uh, yes-s-s. But how did you know me?"

"I'll tell you-how it is. Just the other night I was sitting in my room in the boarding house and finally took out a bunch of old Sagas from my trunk. I was wondering how all you old pals were and what you were doing now, as I looked through the old pictures. That's why I recognized you so quickly. Don't you remember me now?"

"Well, I know I've seen you before, but I just can't remember your name. You know it's been over 30 years since we graduated from P.L.C. How can you remember so long? Pardon me if I ask your name."

"I'm Ed who used to kick you the hardest in the shins at those old practice games. Don't you remember the time we fought over that girl, down by the creek that night. And then after all that trouble she fell for that blond pansy and we neither one married her. My, but women are fools!"

"Sure, I remember now! And remember that last Campus day when we all got thrown into the creek for refusing to work? I'd give anything to see some of those old scenes and faces again. Did you say you have a Saga of that last year? I certainly wish I'd gotten one. And that annual was for two years in 1934, wasn't it? I still remember how much I wished I'd bought one instead of going to the mountain with that gang of kids. That was sure a keen cover they had, and didn't they take a lot of pictures; it seemed as if every page was just full of pictures. By the way, what are you doing now?"

"I have a job down in the packing department of that new glass business over east of town. Yes, I get a lot of enjoyment out of that old annual. It's almost worn out now, but I still see those old scenes and gangs of classmates as well as if it were just yesterday I was there. What are you doing for a living?"

"I'm in the insurance business, recently elected to the vice-presidency

Offer Free Saga

March 2 is Deadline for Skits Written

To increase interest in the Saga carnival to be held March 9, the Saga staff is offering a free copy of the Saga to be published this year to the person who writes the most suitable skit or performance for the carnival program. According to Clarence Monsen, general chairman of the carnival, it is hoped that this contest will not only increase interest in the carnival but will also bring to light some original idea which will make the program more entertaining. Already the students are showing interest in the contest and those who are in charge have expressed themselves as being confident that by the closing date a great variety of manuscripts will have been presented.

Here is an excellent opportunity for some clever and original student who, because of financial conditions, would otherwise be unable to own a copy of the biennial Saga, to make good use of his talent.

The rules for the contest are: 1. Any member of the student body is eligible to compete in this contest. 2. The skit shall not exceed twenty-five minutes and shall not be less than fifteen minutes. 3. All manuscripts must be in by 3:30 p. m. March 2. The skits will be judged by a committee composed of Mr. Reid, Mrs. Taylor, Oscar Anderson, and Rhoda Hokenstad. 5. The skits shall be handed in to Clarence Monsen, and the manuscripts shall be numbered, with the writer receiving a duplicate number. No names are to be on the manuscripts.

of the company."
"Say, wouldn't you like to come up to the boarding house where I live and have a look at my relic of a Saga and talk over old times?"

"That would be great," and the face, worried by business cares, lit up at the thought as at a rare treat, and these two men found happiness the next night just in the pages of a small college annual.

Originality Marks Theme of Yearbook

Editorial Staff Enthusiastic Over Idea Which Offers Increasing Possibilities

The theme of a school annual is always one of the most significant features of the book. It is around it that the staff weaves that which goes to make up the finished record of student activities. It is the subject of the theme which gives character and originality to the yearbook.

The first two annuals which the students of Pacific Lutheran College published had an historical basis for their themes, going back into Norse mythology and legend. The third yearbook, too, used an historical theme, as the motive of that book was "Pioneers." These themes proved to be very suitable for the Saga, as the name itself suggests history.

According to Margaret Wesson, editor of the book to be published this year, the present Saga staff wanted a theme which had historical significance, and yet one which would portray the growth of the individual throughout life. For this reason, the staff chose a theme which our school motto, "Build for character," itself suggests. "The theme is historical in that it carries with it the foundation and building of our school. In a like manner it portrays the foundation and growth of individual lives. The staff has tried to represent the various parts of school life as suggestive of rocks and stones, such as cornerstones and milestones. New possibilities in the use of this theme are coming into evidence every day, and each member of the staff has taken up his particular job with a great deal of enthusiasm. Those who have seen the work thus far accomplished with this interesting theme as a basis are greatly impressed.

The efforts of several members of the Saga staff, who have worked together with the Morning Mast staff, have made possible this six-page edition of our college newspaper. All the articles on the two pages dedicated to the yearbook have been written by the Saga editors, and groups from both publications have solicited the necessary advertising.

Tomorrow morning at the regular student body meeting, the Saga staff will present a special rally. Through this rally, the staff hopes to increase interest in this year's publication and to show the necessity of whole-hearted support on the part of every member of the student body. Pep talks will be given by the members of the staff. Especially does the staff wish to increase the circulation of the bi-annual yearbook at this pep assembly.

On the following Thursday, the Board of Control has given the Saga staff permission to present a pep rally in the interests of the Carnival at the chapel assembly. According to Clarence Monson, who is in charge of the Carnival this year, this is the one big money-making event which the staff puts on, and for that reason it is necessary to create interest and enthusiasm among the students, as well as outsiders, as the students are the best advertisers for such school functions. At this pep rally, the students will be given some inside news on what is going to happen at the Carnival, thus giving them an incentive to bring all their friends to this event, which, as planned will be one of the most interesting carnivals yet given at Pacific Lutheran College.

All students are urged to attend both these rallies, as it is promised that they will be both entertaining and enlightening.

Girls Play Outside

On account of the nice weather, the girls have started taking exercises and playing games outside during their gym periods. According to Mrs. Rohlfman, the new gym instructor, the girls will soon be allowed to earn gym credits by playing tennis and golf.

All Subscriptions Due By April First and Paid in Full April 20

The "Saga" is a publication of the Pacific Lutheran College Associated Student Body, but in order to make it a success financially, we must have the support of the alumni and friends as well as of the students and faculty. The financial success of the 1933-1934 Saga depends on the number of subscriptions which can be procured by April 1. The staff members have been giving their best in order to make this an annual one of which all the College will be proud, and one which will give double joy and pleasure to possessors in the future. Since the scope covered by this edition will be two years' time, double enjoyment will be received in reading it.

Yet we are charging only the usual price of $2.00 for the book. Sale of this book is the responsibility of the entire student body and all the alumni since it is their book, published to give them enjoyment in years to come. To subscribe should be the least that they are willing to do to show the appreciation due the staff for the hard work and long hours spent to make this edition of the Saga one of which they will be truly proud in the future.

A partial payment plan makes possible four small payments in which to buy the Saga. However, all these must be paid in full by April 20 in order to set definitely the number of copies to be printed.

Feature Mendelssohn's Birth

The German Club meeting held yesterday featured the anniversary of Mendelssohn's birth. Opening the program, Eugene Burgoyne played a violin solo composed by Mendelssohn. Virginia Davis gave a resume of the life of Mendelssohn. German songs, led by Mr. Highby and accompanied at the piano by Margaret Wesson, completed the meeting.

Will Photograph Groups For Yearbook in March

In the near future work will begin on photographing the groups representing this year's activities in the Saga. Clubs, classes, athletic teams and other groups will be snapped in their prettiest poses, sometime in March. We are asking for the cooperation of the student body in this matter in order that everyone may be taken with the group in which they belong, and that the photographic work may be done in the shortest possible time. The expense to the Saga will be decreased to some measure if all the pictures can be taken in one day. A list will be posted as to the schedule for pictures, and we hope that all students will be ready promptly at the time given over to them.

Again a call goes forth that more snap shots are desired by the editors. Any good pictures of students, faculty, or scenes may be placed in the box in the library.

And last, but not least, seniors and all who are having pictures taken, please see the photographer by April 2. We will appreciate your cooperation.

Bi-annual Saga Is Unusual Feature Here This Year

1933-34 Yearbook Has Many Added Features, Made Possible by Publication of a Single Edition for Two Years

The staff of the 1933-34 Saga has been working diligently on a project never before undertaken at Pacific Lutheran College. A bi-annual publication such as has been decided upon by the college will add interest and variety to editorial history in the school as well as helping us to keep up the standard established in previous years in annual work.

Irene Dahl, now one of the secretaries to the administration at the college, was editor of the first yearbook which was published the spring of 1930. Her main problem was that of collecting and preparing for publication data of the institution from the time it became P. L. C. until the first year the college felt they could afford to publish an annual. This first annual was awarded 890 points out of a possible 1000 by the National Scholastic Press Association, thus giving the Saga a "First Class Honor Rating" or "Excellent" by the judging association.

In 1931 a second "First Class" yearbook was published under the capable editorship of Olaf Hagness. The theme of both of the first two Sagas was that of Nordic legendary history, chosen to carry out the idea expressed in the name Saga, which title was submitted as one of many in a contest to help choose the name of P. L. C.'s yearbook. Dagny Hjermstad received the honor of submitting the name which was chosen.

"Pioneering" was selected by the 1932 staff as their theme. Once again, this time under the leadership of Esther Westby, the Saga, true to precedents set by former publications, came from the National Scholastic Press Association judgments with another "First Class Honor Rating."

In 1933 because of the graveness of the financial depression, felt by our school as in every line of business, the College Board of Trustees voted to abandon the idea of publishing a yearbook and concentrate efforts and funds that year to make a doubly worthwhile one in 1934. Thus came about our first bi-annual publication which will be submitted by the staff to the students and friends of P. L. C. late this spring. We felt that to publish one volume, containing records of two years' activities compiled in a creditable way would be more in keeping with the principles established before by the Yearbooks at our college, and more of a credit to the entire institution than two separate yearbooks, each inferior in quality and make-up because of financial stress.

The book will be compiled in the usual way, having, however, all clubs, classes, and athletic teams written in a history of two years' work instead of one. Pictures were taken of groups at school last year, and will find their place with the pictures of this year's students. Complete records of athletic contests and participants will be presented in the athletic section. The only difference in the annual will be the increase in the number of pictures, the necessity of collecting only one set of advertising, and single printing and binding expense.

The graduating classes from both years will have complete records of the activities of their respective classes in the "Classes" section. Thus the Class of '33 will receive as much recognition as does the Class of '34.

The staff aims to put out an annual of which P. L. C. will be proud of in spite of the seeming financial impossibility of publishing one.

A. S. B. Sends Dues

Because of the lack of funds in their treasury, the student body did not feel able to send a delegate to the annual Lutheran students' convention, held February 23, 24, 25 at Augustana College, Sioux Falls, South Dakota. However, they send to the Lutheran Students' Union one hundred dollars, their annual dues to that organization.

Gladiators Avenge Defeat Here Friday

40-32 Win Over Seattle Pacific College Makes Up For Early Season Loss

The Lutheran hoopsters avenged an early-season defeat at the hands of Seattle Pacific College here Saturday before a capacity homecoming crowd by a 40-32 count. The Seattleties started fast to gain a seven point advantage before the Gladiators hit the basket. However, once started, the Lutherans had all the best of it with Moe, Jack, and Willard dropping them through the hoop. They led 18-14 at the half and held their lead until the end of the game. Moe and Jack led the Lutheran scoring with 16 and 14 points respectively. Axelson was the big gun for Seattle Pacific ringing up 12 markers.

Sport Slants

By Milton Nesvig

Well, another basketball season is over and a highly successful one, too, as far as the Glads are concerned. Our boys played a good brand of ball all season and accomplished the purpose for which they set out, the Junior College Championship. Nice going, gang.

We've commended the fine play of our hoopers, but there is one important person who should not go unmentioned and who is the real power behind the basketball squad. Hats off to good old Coach Clifford Olson!

With the return of good weather, boys gym classes have been shifted from the gym to the ball field. On gym days, Tuesday and Thursday, roll will be taken at the field after which sides will be chosen for playground ball.

Miss Rohlman, girls' gym instructor, who has been putting the girls through their paces over in the gym, also announces her classes will revert to the outdoors.

There's been some talk circulating concerning the formation of a Junior College golf league similar to the basketball conference which just completed its first successful season. Our golfers are all for it and if something can be done about this, another important step will have been taken in the development of Washington Junior College athletics.

Spring is here and with it usually comes tennis, but when our net enthusiasts look at the sad condition of our courts, their hearts sink. It wouldn't take much to remedy this state of affairs, the improvement of which would be gladly greeted by all: How about a little action on this matter?

Pardon us, but mistakes will happen even in the best of college newspaper editors. It seems that the Alumni played the Reserves a white back and we failed to print it. The fact that the Alums won overwhelmingly, 41-18, is not the reason that it did not appear, however. Rudy Sanderson, who averaged around 16 points a game in his college career, was the big noise for the grads with 19 counters. Again we ask the forgiveness of the Alumni for this seemingly inexcusable error.

Levinson comes through, even if he is a married man. When Kenny Johnson and Jack Hudson dropped out of the game at the end of the semester a gaping hole was left to fill at guard. Bob, however, took it upon himself to alleviate this and did so in a fine manner.

Another boy on the squad who deserves credit is our rangy center, Gene Jack. Gene's play is not the flashy type, but is steady and he gets his points every game. His stellar play at the pivot position has been one of the strong features of our attack this past season.

As one of our fans said of the Ellensburg outfit: "If those boys got down on their knees, they'd still be taller than our forwards." These boys surely are big and it was no trick at all for these giants to take a decision from us. The scare we handed them at the first of the season was due to the enormity of their floor which enabled our forwards to run rings around them, but as our floor is much smaller, our attack was curbed.

Evidently the Glads and Falcons forgot that basketball floors are built for the purpose of said game, "cause one of the greatest rough and tumble battles, reminiscent of the gridiron, was waged over in the gym Saturday night. Kneeing, elbowing, shoving, piling up, and everything else went on and things reached a climax, when with 10 seconds to go, the referee received a jab in the eye which temporarily put him on the shelf. Wottabattler!

Although intercollegiate basketball is a new venture for Seattle Pacific College, the support which they gave their squad is surprising. Coupled with their students and our big reunion crowd, the gym was packed tighter than a drum.

Sorry folks, but that's all for this time. Look at the length of this column again, 'cause it's more than we'll be able to scratch up in one issue for the rest of the year. With a "so-long" to basketball and a welcome to spring and the great outdoors and all that it affords, we bid you, one and all, adieu for this issue.

Gladiators Close Successful Season

P. L. C. Five Wins Seven Out of Eight Tilts in Jr. College Competition: Play Four Games

The P.L.C. basketball squad closed its season last night by winning a hard fought game from Bellingham State Normal by a 32 to 29 score.

The team this year has been one of the best ever to represent our school. Having started out in quest of the Washington Junior College championship, the Gladiators galloped through with seven straight wins, first taking Grays Harbor J. C. 31 to 29 in a thrilling contest with two overtime periods at Aberdeen, and later 49-31 on the home court. After a brief rest, the Lutherans traveled to the Inland Empire to administer a 30-29 beating to the Yakima Valley Junior College squad, stepping a Yakima rally in the closing minutes of the game. In the most thrilling game of the season the Lutherans again nosed out Yakima 48-44 in one overtime period. Traveling north the Glads easily took Mount Vernon 37-14 and duplicated the victory here 37-18. In the crucial tilt of the season the P.L.C. squad defeated Centralia here 43 to 18 to clinch the championship and loving cup. The next week they suffered their only conference defeat at Centralia, 26 to 28 in a list-less game.

The Lutherans avenged themselves on Seattle Pacific College for the 18 to 22 defeat suffered early in the season at Seattle, by pounding the Seattleties 40-32 here.

With old Gladiators evidently taking it easy the Bellingham Normalites took a 35 to 24 decision on their home floor. The Ellensburg Normal squad ran into a determined P.L.C. quintet and barely eked out a 34-31 decision in their own back yard but had little difficulty subduing the Lutherans 38 to 14 on the P.L.C. maples.

The Pacific Lutheran College hoop quintet found their disadvantage in height too great and dropped a 38-14 decision to the Ellensburg Normal cagers on February 18 here. For a time the teachers had trouble penetrating the Lutherans' defense; but having solved it, they scored nearly at will, while the Gladiators were held to six field goals during the entire contest. Hall, Ellensburg center, led the scoring with eight points, while Willard was high for the Lutherans with seven counters.

Lineups: P. L. C. (14): Moe, forward, Trulson, forward, Leask, forward, Sanderson, forward, Jack, center, Willard, guard, Levinson, guard, Monson, guard, Totals.

P. L. C. Ends Season With Victory Over Viking Squad, 32-29

Thrilling Contest Tied at Several Stages, But Glads Never Headed; Moe and Sollie Stars

In a clean, hard fought game, the Gladiators closed their season last night taking the strong Bellingham Normal, hoopmen into camp 32-29. Although Pacific Lutheran College was never headed, the Vikings tied the count at several stages of the game; and the outcome was doubtful till the last whistle, which found the Glads leading.

At halftime the score was knotted at 18 all and on two other occasions in the second half the score was tied. With but a few minutes to go, the Lutherans pulled ahead and held a three point margin at the conclusion of the tussle.

"Dutch" Moe for the winners and Sollie for the losers were the high point men. Both of these men did practically all of their scoring in the first half. Moe scoring 12 of his 14 points and Sollie all of his nine counters.

Lineups: P. L. C. (32): Moe (14), Leask (6), Willard (8), Levinson (2), Subst: P. L. C. Trulson, Bellingham: Dunningham (4), McBeth, and Pfendner.

Referee: Al Hopkins.

Rev. E. H. Dahle Gives Movies, Lectures On Alaskan Missions in Chapel Friday

By Milton Nesvig

Rev. Elmer H. Dahle, touring the States after spending nine years in the far North, gave a lecture, illustrated by moving pictures in chapel last Friday morning on the missionary work being done in Eskimo land. His talk centered about our three missionary stations up there at Teller, Shismaref, and Igloo, and the pictures showed interesting and varied scenes in and about these missions.

At the Teller station where Mr. and Mrs. Jesse B. Olson are stationed, scenes were shown of the orphanage the natives and their children, and the region about the mission.

Rev. Shafland Visits P. L. C. During Reunion

Rev. Shafland of Livingston, Montana was a visitor at school last week end and also spoke in chapel Monday. He used the Bible story of the man born blind as a text for this address. Rev. Shafland was ordained as a minister of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America last June before he accepted the call at Livingston which he is now serving.

To visit with his sister, Irene, now attending P.L.C. and former Luther College associates was the purpose of his trip. Dr. Tingelstad is a former football and basket ball teammate, and Paul Higby, a former classmate.

Sunday morning Rev. Arthur J. Knutzen 27 of Toledo, Oregon spoke at divine services in the chapel. In the afternoon a reunion choir rehearsal was held at 1:30, and at 3:00 o'clock a concert was given in the gym. Marie Wrang opened the program with a piano solo, the present choir sang three numbers, Dr. Tingelstad spoke, Prof. Edwards rendered a piano number, the present choir sang another group, and the reunion choir sang in conclusion, "Beautiful Savior" and "Landsighting." To conclude the reunion, the Trinity Luther League served refreshments and held a social hour in the chapel basement Sunday evening.

Hartje is also printing the paper, Eskimo Land, which gives news of the mission work and which was started and edited by Rev. Dahle.

At Igloo, the remaining outpost, Miss Helen Frost, a trained nurse from the Chicago Lutheran Deaconess Home, is in charge.

Other scenes of interest shown were a reindeer round-up, dog teams in action, Eskimo blanket-tossing, the Arctic ice pack, and the unloading of a freighter from the State.

Choir Makes 2 Concert Appearances In Tacoma

Complimentary to Rev. and Mrs. O. J. Edward, who have left the First Norwegian Lutheran Church for a charge in San Pedro, the choir gave a concert last Wednesday evening, Feb. 21. In a short talk, Dr. O. A. Tingelstad explained the needs of the college, after which the audience raised a treasury offering. Between numbers, Prof. Edwards played piano and organ selections. In conclusion, Rev. Edwards spoke a few words in appreciation of the concert and the good wishes extended him and his wife.

Continuing their season's concert program, the "Choir of the West" appeared in Westminster Presbyterian Church, Rev. W. J. Sharpe's charge, on Friday evening, February 16. Before a silver offering was lifted, Margaret Wesson spoke on behalf of the school. Prof. J. O. Edwards varied the program with piano numbers.

"Harvard should be open to any man of unusual talents, whether he be rich or penniless, and whether he comes from Minneapolis or New Orleans," Pres. J. B. Conant of Harvard University, said recently in announcing a change of policy for the eastern institution.

Evidently the dorm students believe in the saying, "there's safety in numbers," cause practically every one of them hiked out to Lake Spanaway on Washington's birthday.
