Wanted: used paperback books

Used paperback books in good condition are needed for the Parkland Book Fair held from 10 am-6 pm on May 11 on the East Campus field (inside the building if inclement weather). Besides a book sale, the fair will feature a craft sale and various community organizations sharing information and providing activities for kids. Adult admission is one can of food, one school supply item or $1. Proceeds honor of being a participant in the US Army Cadet Command Partnership in Nursing Education program. A total of eight scholarships will be designated for ROTC students to attain their nursing education at PLU. The scholarships will be 3 or 4 years in length.

PLU Math teams succeed at international math contest

Two teams from PLU received honorable mention recognition in the International Intercollegiate Mathematical Contest in Modeling held in February. There were 393 teams representing schools in nine countries. PLU teams were among 114 to place honorable mention; only 63 teams placed higher. Congratulations to Dee Baker, Trista Jolly, Amy Skare, Matt Anderson, Rocky Downs and Amos Lyso as well as to coach Rachid Benkhalti (Math).

PLU students present papers

Senior Robin Meyers and sophomore Nigel Barron presented papers in communication analysis at the 20th annual Northwest Communication Association Convention in Coeur d'Alene on April 12. Meyers' paper, "An Analysis of Cartoon as Dynamic Spectacle: The Oklahoma Bombing and Bipartisanship," and Barron's study, "Publish or Perish? Rhetorical Implications of the Unabomber Manifesto," were also speeches the students competed with in intercollegiate forensics this year. Both Meyers and Barron are communication majors.

MFT grad students give presentation

The MFT-Headstart Partnership Project Coordinator Teresa McDowell and MFT graduate students Kerrie Ferguson, Betsy Sullivan and Michelle Loiseau gave two presentations at the annual national Headstart Association conference in New Orleans in March. The presentations highlighted an observation tool they developed and the use of MFT training programs to provide mental health consultation to Headstart.
