Glenn Johnson Accepts Lead In College Play

With the addition of Glenn Johnson, who will play the leading role, the casting of "Gown of Glory," the all-college play, is complete. Committees have also been chosen to work on costumes, publicity, make-up, properties, house, and furniture.

The play, to be held on the nights of November 17, 18 and 20, will be centrally staged, with the audience sitting around the acting arena on the stage.

The play centers around the struggles of a small town minister, David Lyle, who is striving to break away from the small town to become the leader of a larger congregation. Others in the cast are Jean Christensen, Carol Falk, Dianne Bassett, Stewart Morton, Ted Carlstrom, Gerald Farmer, Judy Bunker, Joan Werle and Mark Freed.

P. L. C. Welcomes Young Statesmen

By John Shannon

Over two hundred high school student leaders, from Washington and Oregon, will attend the fifth annual Student Congress here Saturday.

"I am happy, on behalf of the Department of Speech, to welcome to our campus all of the high school students, and their coaches, participating in the Student Congress," said Professor Theodore O. H. Karl, Director of the Department of Speech.

Acting director of the Congress, which is sponsored by the Washington Epsilon Chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, is Edith Engel; co-assistant chairmen are Janet Carson and Tore Neilsen; John Osburn will act as vice-president and speaker of the Senate, and John Rydgren, as speaker of the House.

The Congress will be conducted under the authority of Roberts' Rules or Order, revised, and is modeled after our Federal government. All students participating must choose to be either Republicans or Democrats.

The incomplete Congress program is as follows:

Registration—8:00 to 8:30, CMS lobby.

Social Lobby—8:30 to 9:15, CMS lounge.

First Joint Conference—9:30 to 10:35.

Welcome by Professor Theodore H. Karl, chairman of the Department of Speech at PLC.

Welcome by Dr. Phillip E. Hauge, Dean of PLC, and John Rydgren, president of the Student Body.

"State of the Union" message by Congressman Thor Tollefson.

Introduction of speakers and assignment to committees.

First Senate and House Session.

Caucus by parties: Elect floor leaders, elect steering committee, determine party positions on major issues.

Introductions.

Committee meetings. Open agenda, 11:00 to 1:00.

Lunch, 1:00 to 2:00.

Coaches meeting in the SUB coffee shop, 2:00 to 3:00.

Second House and Senate sessions, 2:00 to 4:40.

Reading of agenda.

Reading of committee resolutions by chief clerk of session.

Reports by committee chairmen on resolutions.

Consideration of resolutions.

THOR TOLLEFSON, Congressman from Washington, will deliver the "State of the Union" address tomorrow at the annual high school Student Congress here. Congressman Tollefson will be escorted to the stage by a special escort guard, composed of members of the Student Council.

Staff Will Not Print 'Mast,' Due To Tests

Due to mid-semester test week, November 9-13, the "Mooring Mast" will not be published. All students, or organizations, who have notices or articles they wish published in next week's paper will have to turn them in by next Tuesday.

Pictured above is the 75-piece Seattle Symphony Orchestra which appears here under the direction of Arthur Fiedler in a "Pops" Concert. The event will be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, at 8:15 p.m., in the Chapel-

Music-Speech building auditorium. The ticket sales are going well, and the concert is expected to be a sell-out, according to Prof. Karl E. Weiss. Tickets may be obtained at the business office in Old Main.

Students To Get 'Inside Look' at LSA

Students will be given an "inside look" at the make-up of the Lutheran Student Association on Sunday night at 7 p.m. in the SUB.

Planned especially for freshmen and newcomers, the program will be an attempt to familiarize PLCites with the function and organization of L.S.A. on the campus, regional, national and international levels.

Chairman for the evening will be Harve Neufeld, transfer from the University of Saskatchewan, Saskatoon, Canada. He served as president of the L.S.A. group on the Canadian campus.

Presenting the different phases of L.S.A. will be Ruth Hanson, Mary Ensberg, Salim Mitri and Gerald Farmer. Also on the evening's agenda will be a hymn-sing and a brief

Neglect of Traffic Laws Is Dangerous

At a recent Student Council meeting it was pointed out that PLC students are daily endangering their lives by neglecting to observe two important traffic rules. They are: 1) no parking along the yellow line in front of Old Main and, 2) observance of and compliance with the traffic light in front of the main gate.

This situation has been of annoyance to the entire community, as a recent letter in the Tacoma News Tribune testifies. Their article is concerned mainly with the traffic light problem and the difficulties it presents to motorists who are driving past the campus. Dashing across the street against the light or from between parked cars is inviting an accident.

It should be remembered that those lights are put there for the protection of the students and, as so, must be shown respect and cooperation.

Mu Phi Welcomes Five Coeds in Ceremony

Five PLC co-eds will formally become members of Mu Phi Epsilon, national music honorary, tonight at 8:30 p.m. in the lounge of the C-M-S.

According to Jeanette Foss, president of the local chapter, Epsilon Sigma, the pledges are: Faith Bueltmann, Kathryn Gulhaugen, Jewel Kelly, Onella Lee, and Marguerite Thompson.

Assisting in the initiation will be present Mu Phi members and also several representatives of the Tacoma Alumni chapter.

Membership elections to this honorary are based on scholarship, musicianship, character and personality. Candidates must be music majors and a sophomore in academic standing.

Ron and Fun Club

By Ron Johnson

Seeing that this paper has failed to interview a really important dignitary, I decided to remedy the situation.

I found him sitting in the 'stacks,' reading an account of Pogo in the P-I. Awkwardly approaching him, I introduced myself and offered my hand. He took it immediately, and a smile of understanding crossed his face.

"I know why you hesitate, my boy," he said. "I realize that I was not very well liked in my time, and I admire your ability to talk to me."

Shaking off this compliment, I asked him why he was here in the United States, and not in his mother country in his brief visit back to the living world.

"To tell the honest truth, I rather enjoy your capitalistic pleasures. Please refrain from telling anyone about this, though; my statues would be destroyed, and I rather think they flatter me."

"I understand, sir; you can be sure that I will keep that fact a secret."

"Thank you, my boy; and please call me Uncle or Uucle Joe. My grand-nephews used to call me that, and I rather like it."

Then he questioned me briefly on my courses and told me that he thought highly of education in this country. I decided to take him around campus, and show off our fine, capitalistic environment.

If any of you thought I was talking to myself and wandered about campus last week, gesturing wildly, you were badly mistaken. I was merely showing a visitor around.

"Dig that crazy green Olds convertible. Who does that belong to; a Wall Street banker?"

When I told him it belonged to a professor, he told me he had been under the impression that all teachers were underpaid.

After touring the campus, he regretfully told me that he had to leave. Bidding him an understanding farewell, I wondered how such a nice guy got so much power; he was probably just a crazy, mixed-up kid.

I noticed that my departing friend had a very clever Princeton haircut. Must have been down at Clover Creek to have Paul Running trim it for fifty cents. Paul does a good job on both Communists and Lutherans.

"The children of this complex world have many more choices to make."

"The decisions which men make toward world affairs need the counselling of One Mightier than us."

Students Recall Halloween Pranks, Remember 'Trick or Treating' Fun

By Barbara Leaf

With the arrival of another Halloween many of our students have been found reminiscing Halloween pranks of years gone by, and our own little ghost listened in on some of these.

Margaret Caines remembers the time she and a girl friend were dressed as little harem girls and had to put on an "exhibition" before they could have a treat.

"I remember being invited to go on some real mean spree and refusing," was Lois Danielson's answer. A certain Halloween party she attended when she was in the fifth grade stands out in Nancy Peterson's mind. Anita Schnell remembers the time her group drove a certain teacher's car through the Agriculture building and into the study hall. Also heard from Anita was the fact that some students had removed a "Lions Den" sign from the entrance of their stadium and placed it over the principal's door.

Going 'trick or treating' in her majorette uniform and getting a Milky Way stands out in Judy Bureker's mind. June Sather has memories of getting all dressed up like a boy and really having a time.

Doing all the crazy things teenagers do was Lorraine Schmick's memory. Margaret Solum will always remember the time she and her friends placed a bucket of water over her neighbor's doors and thought it was great fun until they found out the neighbor had forgotten her key and wanted Margaret to come over and open the door with her key . . . Pranks do backfire, don't they, Margaret?

Jerine Larson remembers going on a scavenger hunt back in 1948 (election year) in the better residential section of Spokane and asking for a Truman button only to have the door very sharply slammed in her face . . . How were you to know they were Republicans, Jerine? Beverly Sveningsen remembers the fun she had throwing water filled balloons at all the cute high school boys back in her grammer school days. Always to remain in Carol Falk's mind is the time she won a little skunk as first prize at a hard times Halloween party.

Girl Troubles?

By John Shannon

For you men, who have troubles with the weaker sex, here are a few common rules designed to help you:

1. Ignore her. This will intrigue her very much.

2. Never ask for a date ahead of time. In fact, the later, the better; she'll be so surprised, especially if she's in bed when you call.

3. When you call for her, don't come to the door; roll the car window down, yell her name loudly, and honk the horn. She will realize you are in a hurry; it will show her parents that you are a determined man; furthermore it will make a terrific impression on their neighbors.

4. Talk about subjects about which she knows nothing. She'll be amazed at your brilliance. Be very blase about everything she says.

5. Be sophisticated; hold your cigarette with three fingers, and exhale through your nose. Make sure you smoke in closed areas. Blow smoke all over her. She will like the foggy effect, and appreciate it, as others catch the odor of her added sophistication.

6. Never open doors for the girl. After all, logically, you will be the last one out and will have to close them. Why should you do both?

7. Never be on time; it will give her longer to get ready. Sometimes, however, it is better to be early in order to hurry her; e.g. if the admission prices go up at the movies.

The preceding rules were designed for readers' interest only. They do not express the opinions of the writer, nor those of the Mast staff. Any resemblance or likeness of the rules in connection with some person, or persons, is unintentional, and coincidental.

P.U. Upsets Lutes, 19-6

It was a successful Homecoming for Pacific University last Saturday night as they toppled the off-beat Gladiators from PLC, 19-6. It was mighty cold, even for football, but the Badgers kept things warm with two touchdowns to the Lutes' one in the second half.

The first half was close, with the half score ending 7-0 in favor of the Badgers. In the early moments of the second half the Lutes raced to a touchdown, made possible by some fine defensive play by guard Roger Larson. Twice he broke through to spill, in order, Gerry Millis and Dan French for big losses. When Millis attempted to kick out of danger it was Larson again who broke through, blocking the kick beautifully. Brian Price recovered the ball for the Lutes on the Badger four yard line. Three plays later Dick Larson went into the end zone standing up to make it a 7-6 ball game.

Pacific returned the compliment, as three plays after the kickoff, Dan French, crashing through at least three would-be tacklers, rambled 47 yards to a Badger TD. The final Pacific touchdown was a result of a Lute fumble on their own 25 yard line. Quarterback Randall went into the end zone four plays later to conclude the night's scoring.

Frank Karwoski displayed some fine broken field running in the first half. He was injured in the second half and Mary Harshman's offense was hampered from the time he left the game. Ron Billings showed his football versatility by playing quarterback, end and half-back. He also stopped an early touchdown drive by Pacific with another of his pass interceptions. Loss of Bill Borden made itself felt as the Lute line was outcharged continually by the Badgers.

PLC returns to conference play next weekend as it tangles with the University of British Columbia on Canadian soil.

Many fans were on hand, and we had the best representation of any "away" game. The weather was snappy, but that didn't freeze the fine PLC spirit. Let's have a big crowd tomorrow, too.

New Machine System Aids Registration

Adding ease of economy in both time and labor in filing student registration cards in the registrar's office this fall is the new McBee Kerport machine. The cards are electrically punched and sorted into any required order. Mrs. Loney, assistant to Dean Hauge, has revealed.

With the ever-increasing enrollment, data had become more involved and diverse. Without a corresponding increase in personnel, the new system will rapidly allow one to find the address, major, church affiliation, and other information about a student.

"The new machine will be of most value in compiling statistics," Mrs. Betty Brown, secretary to the Registrar, commented. "For example, formerly when an outsider asked for the number of students majoring in a certain field, it might have been hours before the information was ready. Now it will be a matter of minutes."

"Blessed is he who runs in circles, for he shall be a wheel."

News from the Bench

By Ted Siek

The Pacific University Badgers met the Gladiators enthusiastically at Forest Grove last Saturday. They had a big, aggressive line and a good ground attack. From the Lutes' angle there is a bright side, too. Karwoski ripped off runs of 35 and 20 yards in the first half; he was shaken up in the third quarter, but he went back into the game to go for another nice gain. Roger Larson showed why hustle pays off. He blocked a Pacific punt which set up the Lutes' lone touchdown. Sophomore Gerry Gale got his share of the tackles from the line-backer spot. It seemed ironic that Ron Billings was not listed as a starter in the official program. Billings played quarterback most of the game. Harsh remarked that against UBC he'll probably use Ron at quarterback, end, halfback and maybe fullback.

Notre Dame's new "I" formation defense is not the latest word to coaches in the Evergreen conference. Joe Lapenwick, head coach at Western Washington, has taught his gridders this defensive arrangement for several years. It's called the "straight line defense" in conference circles. In this formation two or three players take their places directly behind each other and form an "I" perpendicular to the line. When the opposing center snaps the ball, the "I" explodes; one player crashing the line on one side, the others crashing in different places. This defense generally confuses the offensive team's blocking assignments. Notre Dame used the "I" formation in beating Georgia Tech, 27-14.

According to statisticians, one-platoon football has brought more scoring per game. This is true despite the fact that extra point accuracy is about 10 per cent lower. These facts are based on nation-wide figures.

St. Olaf of Northfield, Minn., remains unbeaten and untied in six games this year. They have scored 269 points to their opponents' 58.

Predictions: So far my average is 1000. No mistakes, no predictions. This Saturday: WWC 13, CPS 19; EWC 14, CWC 14; UBC6, PLC 14; Stanford over Washington State, UCLA over California, Michigan State over Oregon by six touchdowns.

Some sports fans take their football seriously. Three spectators collapsed and died within 10 minutes of each other while watching Minnesota defeat Michigan 22-0; another fan collapsed during the first of the Iowa-Indiana game, and was pronounced dead shortly after he arrived at the hospital.

South Barracks Defeated Twice

The So. Barracks team "fought" two very close games, losing by one touchdown to Tacoma and Western this week.

Dick Kent caught a pass from Joe Trabucco for the Barracks boys' only score. Tacoma reversed its usual procedure as Len Nelson passed to Donn Koessler for two TD's. Final: 12-6.

The next day Western held the southerners scoreless as they pushed over one touchdown on an aerial from Bud Lester to Clyde Genz.

Clover Creek managed to beat Eastern Parkland 8-6. Don Hefty passed to Jacobson and Ted Siek was in for a safety for the Creekers. Eastern's lone effort was a pass from Eliason to Phil Wigen.

Western Parkland trounced the Clover Creekers 26-6 as the Westerners kept in competition for the championship. Siek threw to Hoover for Clover Creek as Bud Lester passed and ran for three touchdowns. Genz caught two long ones in the end zone.

Student Describes Hungry Mountain Lion

Carnivorous mountain lions and the correct way to eat spaghetti have been topics of speeches given this week in Miss Jean MacGregor's speech classes.

"Herman," an imaginary family-eating mountain lion, was described by Paul Lucky. Herman had devoured the entire family, which left no one to help Paul with the dishes. The story reached a happy ending, however, as "Herman burped."

Jimmy De Palma told of the correct way to eat spaghetti. He concluded that some people get so desperate they end up by shovelling it into their mouths right from the plate.

Elmore Duncan Is Mission President

Newly-elected officers of Mission Crusaders are Elmore Duncan, president; Stewart Morton, vice-president; Evelyn Peterson, secretary-treasurer, and Clarence Potratz, ICC representative.

Committees have been formed to emphasize the mission field and its opportunities.

The Mission Emphasis Week group will start its work in the spring during Missison Emphasis Week. During this week, committee members will post papers, pictures and posters showing the work being done in the various mission fields on the different bulletin boards. The group will attempt to have a different speaker each day of this special week. Talks will be on the mission field and the work being done.

The Visiting Committee will consist of groups which plan to visit monthly, Criswell Home, Midland Home for the Aged, Puyallup Home and other homes for the aged. Special visits will be made to Pierce county jail and other organizations from time to time. On these trips, members will stress the spreading of the Word as well as the singing of Christmas carols during the holiday season.

A student need not be a member of Mission Crusaders to participate in these activities. Anyone interested in missions and its work may attend the meetings which are held every Monday beginning at 12:30 p.m. in the Tower chapel and watch the bulletin boards for notices.

Sunday a group met in front of Old Main at 2:15 in the afternoon to visit Pierce county jail. Midland Old Men's Home was also visited on Monday.

Those interested in bringing good cheer by presenting the Good News made a trip to Puyallup at 6:00 p.m. October 22.

All persons are worried because they are either single or married.

Player of the Week

Selecting Jim Ball as this week's Player of the Week was no hard task.

Jim, co-captain of the Lutes this year, was an all-conference selection last year and is one of the better ends in the Northwest this year.

Playing his high school ball at nearby Puyallup, im tried W.S.C. for one season, but transferred soon to PLC.

Jim stands 6 feet and weighs 180 pounds. He is a much-feared pass receiver and an excellent blocker. He is in on a good many tackles in every game, and is a soluable asset to the team.

"Harsh" says he is really glad to have Jim here. Jim and Mona, the newlyweds, have set up housekeeping in Parkland.

Second Floor North Intramural Winners

The second floor north team emerged as the winner of the girls' intramural baseball tournament. Captained by Carol Hintze, this team won the championship by beating the second floor south team, 15 to 12, in the final play-off, October 26.

The girls have been turning out for play on Monday and Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The teams participating in the tournament include the fifth floor and apartment, third floor north, second floor north, Ivy Hall, second floor south, Day girls, third floor south, and fourth floor.

Those on the winning team are Ida Jo Gronke, pitcher; Milt Brammer, first base; Joan Barkstrom, second base; Pat Darville, third base; Carol Hintze, left field; Connie Bjornsen, centerfield; and Ollie Romtvedt, right field.

The game starts at 8 p.m. tomorrow night, and the cheer leaders hope to have a good crowd on hand.

Coach Harshman has stressed both offense and defense this week, and hopes to be victorious.

Bill Borden will return to action, and should bolster the line considerably.

Dale Homestead is still out with a shoulder injury, but otherwise the Lutes will be at full strength, barring further injury.

The Canucks have their strongest team in years, and really displayed a rolling game against CPS, gaining 368 yards via air and land. The Thunderbirds' left halfback, Bill Harriman, is one of the best backs in the conference. He's the man the Lutes will have to stop. UBC lost to Eastern, 20 to 6, last week, so going by comparative scores the Lutes would be 13 point favorites.

"Commit thy works unto the Lord, and thy thoughts shall be established." — Prov. 16:3.

These are times when life to the soul seems barren and dry, One feels the crushing load of despair and the inability to try To even attain the heights that were once the goal, To gain the satisfaction which makes personality a whole.

One day follows in the footsteps of another in rapid succession And it seems that in all the weary day's toil, no progression To anything worthwhile comes to show the weary heart That this day past lived was worthwhile to start.

But wait, any action which was useful or kind, A cheery "good morning" and a happy smile will find Its way into another soul and linger with a warm glow. Remember, giving joy to others deals despair a lethal blow.

Think of that little child with whom you talked In happy children's land with him momentarily you walked; Think of all the simple trust that little one displayed And commit thy works unto the Lord and be no more dismayed.

He will establish your thoughts and make you strong, Do every day's work as for Him and it won't belong Till the loneliness and despair in your heart will go As the sunshine in the springtime melts the winter snow.

—By Marie Bloomquist

Planning the entertainment will be June Wigdahl and Joan Poencet, co-chairmen, and their committee, Lois Anseth, Darlene Luiten and Beverly Tranum. Clean-up committee is headed by Jean Christensen and Mary Lou MacDonald, with Thea Reber and Mimi Ruele assisting.

Rose Larson is chairman of the refreshment committee and has Lina Taber, Doris Ormbrek, Evelyn Biery, Pauline Skjonsby, Myrna Shelver, Delores Beck, Ellen Henry, and Marlys Salterback to assist her.

Tickets for the tolo will be taken care of by LaWanna Hurber, Barbara Carlson, Janet Olsen and Marie Indergaard.

As yet, the definite place and time has not been set, but the approximate price is $2.00.

More details will appear in the Mooring Mast November 6.

Prayer for Life

Lord, give us life today, Life strong and triumphant; full, free, and eternal. Give us the fullness of physical life In these, the swift-perishing habitations of Thy Spirit; Give us the fullness of mental life In these poor tools by which we strive laboriously to think Thy thoughts again; Give us the fullness of spiritual life, The glory of the knowledge of Thine own in dwelling, Whereby, in space and time, we may know the Life Eternal, Which is Thyself.

CAMPUS CHEST COLLECTION WINDS UP TODAY

Today is the last day for students to give their contributions to the "Campus Chest." The collection for welfare agencies began Wednesday when John Osburn presented the subject in Chapel. An offering was taken at that time, and students have the opportunity to add to the fund by leaving their gifts at the booth in Old Main.

Senior Class Chooses Ramstad As Adviser

Professor Ramstad, chairman of the PLC chemistry department, is getting well acquainted with the class of '54.

Last week he was chosen to serve as adviser for the Senior class. This marks the second time he has been elected adviser for this class. In 1952, when the class of '54 were Sophomores, he held the same position.

At the same time, the Seniors selected McKewen Studio as the official photographer for the class pictures in the Saga.

Swim Pool Is Too Costly; Discuss Patio

"The cost of an indoor swimming pool in the gym would run anywhere from $4,000 to $4,500."

This was revealed in last Tuesday's student body meeting as the question of a student-financed project was again brought up. There was no further discussion of the swimming pool.

The idea of a combination patio-lounge was introduced by John Rydgren, student body president. The lounge would be built off the south end of the Student Union building and contain an indoor barbecue, folding picture windows, a fireplace, and an outdoor patio.

"The approximate cost of this project," John added, "is $5,000 or $6,000."

The question was then raised as to whether this cost would include student labor.

"There are some specialized jobs," it was pointed out, "that the students cannot do."

It was argued that the necessary funds could be raised from grants left by graduated classes and by pledges made by the present students.

"Could this money be transferred to another project later on?" one student wanted to know. "If the patio project proved unsuccessful, he suggested that we offer the money to Ernie Johnson, a Pacific Lutheran graduate who is traveling as an industrial consultant to the Sudan in Africa.

"That would help push PLC's interests over there," he added.

John Rydgren replied that that matter could be decided upon later.

Glad About Town

The people of Tacoma had the privilege of hearing the official French army band last Tuesday evening. The Guard Republican Band of Paris (a misleading translation of "Musique de la Garde Republicaine de Paris") stopped at Tacoma's Temple Theatre on its first American tour since 1904. This organization is what is often called a symphonic band, a far cry, of course, from the oompah-oompah type of aggregation.

Captain Francois-Julie Brun had complete control of his musicians as they turned effortlessly from the marches of Sousa to such symphonic items as the tone poems of Richard Strauss and Debussy. Their playing of the latter's Prelude to "Afternoon of a Faun" was easily as good as that of many of our American symphony orchestras. Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody was genuinely exciting.

The versatility, precision, and color of the Guard Republican Band are probably well known, and these qualities make it one of the world's most respected musical organizations. But to attend one of its concerts is to be subjected to the peculiar Gallic charm and vivacity which its members seem to communicate to the audience. This is what gives the band a place of its own in the upper echelons of the music world.
