Dr. Paul M. Reigstad, associate professor of English, will use his scholarship award to study in Norway and England during the 1965-66 school year. The primary object of his leave will be to study the Norwegian language and literature as background for the preparation of a book on the Norwegian-American novelist, O. E. Rolvaag.

Since Rolvaag spent the first 20 years of his life in Norway, the influences of this country were strong in the shaping of his mind and art. All of his published novels were first written in Norwegian. His major work is "Giants in the Earth," published in an English translation in 1924.

Dr. Reigstad also will be assisted by travel grants from the American Philosophical Society and the American-Scandinavian Foundation.

Guest parking stalls have been established on the west side of the big Faculty Parking lot east of the Administration Building. If you know of people bringing cars to the campus for any purpose please suggest to them that they use these guest stalls. Otherwise, their cars may be ticketed. We must protect our Faculty lots for those authorized to park there. We do not intend to ticket legitimate visitors to the campus, and the best solution is to request them to use the clearly-marked guest parking stalls.

The convention, which is open to the public, will be held in Memorial Gymnasium, beginning at 7 p.m. tonight and 9 a.m. Saturday.

STUDENTS LAUNCH DRIVE TO RAISE FUNDS TO REPLACE OWL AT ZOO

PLU students have launched a drive to raise funds to replace the Arctic owl which died last Friday at the Point Defiance Zoo.

It is the belief of Norman R. Winnick, director of the zoo, that the owl's death was caused by circumstances resulting from the mistreatment of two eagles by a pair of PLU students, John L. Sullivan of Renton and James M. Johnson of Junction City, Oregon.

Winnick expressed belief that considerable noise must have accompanied last Wednesday's attack on the eagles and was responsible for the hysteric actions of the owl Thursday. The bird was found dead the following morning.

George Long, a junior biology student from Pullman, initiated the fund drive Wednesday, indicating there was a student desire to erase the stigma which the incident caused.

"We want to make it clear to the community, that there is another side to the story. The majority of the students at PLU are interested in action of a positive type."

Long also stated that the students feel somewhat indebted to Point Defiance Park since various PLU classes make field trips there to study the animal and plant life.

Winnick called the fund drive "a fine gesture. We would be happy to accept any donation for the replacement of the owl."

The students hope to raise at least $200, the replacement value of the owl. Additional funds, if raised, also will be turned over to the zoo to be used for other projects.

This marks only the second time since the founding of the national convention over 50 years ago that it has been held on the west coast and the first time it has been hosted by a college in the Pacific Northwest.

Advanced registration indicates that approximately 700 students and faculty representatives from more than 130 colleges and universities will attend the five-day convention. Some 300 delegates will arrive early Sunday on a special train which will originate in Chicago.

Sen. Henry Jackson will be the principal convention speaker. He will deliver his address at 2:30 Thursday.

Besides the regular convention business sessions other features of the program include a talent night Tuesday, a cruise on Puget Sound followed by a salmon bake at Tillicum Indian Village Wednesday and the convention banquet and awards ceremony Thursday.

Eight rounds of debate have been scheduled along with four rounds each of oratory, extemporaneous speaking and discussion. There will be separate divisions for men and women in all events except discussion and the open division of debate.

Raymond Yeager, Bowling Green University, is the convention chairman. The local chairman is Theodore O. H. Karl, chairman of the PLU department of speech.
