Concert Band Goes On Six-Day Tour

This afternoon the Pacific Lutheran College concert band, under the direction of Gordon O. Gilbertson, leaves on its six-day tour of Oregon and Washington. Their first appearance will be in Portland this evening.

Following this will be concerts in Silverton, Lebanon, and Salem. Monday the band will again return to Portland. Monday evening they will play in Castle Rock, Tuesday in Moxee City, and Wednesday at Mosesrock.

A program of marches, classical selections and novelty numbers has been selected. Solo numbers will be played by Jerry Bayne, trumpet, and Lind Karlson, baritone.

The closing number on the program is the powerful "Chorale and Alleluia," written especially for band by Howard Hanson, one of America's leading contemporary composers. In March Dr. Hanson visited the PLC campus and directed the band in this number at a public concert.

FISTS FLY--

Saturday's Smoker Stars Socks and Shocks

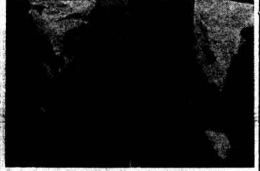

Hear ye! Hear ye! Fight fans everywhere are encouraged to reserve tomorrow night for a slam-bang event which is scheduled for the PLC gym. At 8 p.m. sharp the leather will start flying and when it stops nobody knows. The referee, Rev. Lutnes, was picked because of his great ability to take a punch--when these pugilists start swinging, even the first row, balcony, will have to duck.

The two judges, Mr. Karl and Rev. Olson, will do their best to see that the best fighter gets the award. It has been suggested that the point system, rather than the PLC grading system, be used.

The evening will consist of nine fights, with three one and one-half minute rounds per fight. A tag team wrestling match will also be featured, with Mighty Joe Danielson and Drop-kick Gilmer taking on the Masked Maulers. Several sources have requested that the audience refrain from throwing anything larger than a pop bottle into the ring. Dr. Pepper will be on hand, however, in case anything gets out of hand.

Free programs will be handed out at the door and will include the name, weight, experience, and opponent of each fighter.

All boxers are to be at the gym at 7:30 to have their hands taped. Remember, the seats are on a

IVY HALL MASKED MAULERS first come, first served basis. And bring the gal along--she'll enjoy it, too.

Tassels Sponsor Honor Roll Tea

Tassels, senior girls' honorary, will be host at the annual Honor Roll Tea for Women, Sunday afternoon, 4:00, in South Hall Lounge. This event gives recognition to honor roll girls of the fall semester. Mrs. Nelson, housemother, and Miss Bloomquist, Tassels' adviser, will pour. The spring theme will be carried out in bouquets of daffodils and easter's greens.

A short informal program will include entertainment by Miss Bloomquist, Roberta Birkedahl, and Ruth Myrwan.

Committee chairmen are: invitations, Virginia Grahm and Jean Cogburn; food, Thelma Nygaard and Mildred Van Buren; and decorations, Roberta Birkedahl and Ruth Heino.

Poll Results Show Students Hospitable

Results of the poll taken before Easter recess show that the students are in favor of making their rooms available for visiting groups. An overwhelming 257-58 vote makes it obvious that the majority of students wish to be hospitable.

The two groups concerned are the Augustana Synod Columbia Conference Luther League and the regional Student YMCA. The Augustana leaguers, about 150 of them, will be here during the Thanksgiving vacation. Their presence will make no difference on the dates of our vacation.

The two to three hundred YMCA members will be here December 27-31, during Christmas vacation which lasts from December 19 to January 3.

First Sports Award Banquet Pays Tribute to Athletes

A PLC "first" in the form of the First Annual Sports Awards Banquet will be held to honor all varsity athletes next Wednesday at 7:15 p.m. in the CUB. The inaugural event will be sponsored by the Associated Students of PLC.

Sports celebrities, sports writers and sports-casters will be present to pay tribute to Lute athletes and coaches for their hard work and the laurels they have won. In addition, some 300 students, alumni and boosters of PLC athletics will attend.

Heading the list of sports notables will be Don Paul of the Cleveland Browns, La Verne Torgerson of the Washington Redskins, Chuck Congdon, Tacoma golf pro, Chuck Gilmer, former U. of W. and professional basketball star, Denny Meyer, former Husky miler and two miler, and Bob Johnson and George Wise, ex-baseball major leaguers.

A.P. Writer Main Speaker Jack Hewins, well known Associated Press scribe, will be the main speaker of the evening. Other writers present will be Earl Leubker and Ed Honeywell of the Tacoma News-Tribune, and John Litwood of the Seattle Times. Sportsasters Doug McArthur of KTAC and Clay Huntington will attend.

Following the chicken dinner, the program will commence with presentation of awards, which include all-conference football and basketball certificates, basketball inspirational trophy and the trophy emblematic of the Tacoma City League championship, won by the Gladiator Jayvees.

Two special citations will be given to Ben Cheney of Tacoma and Fred Mills of Kennewick. Mr. Mills will be recognized for his outstanding contribution to PLC athletics and Cheney for his constant interest in and support of athletics in Tacoma and the Puget Sound area.

Lively Program Planned A lively program will follow the awards part of the banquet. In addition to Hewins' talk, student talent will entertain the guests. Offering musical numbers will be the "Eighth Notes," Gerry Baine, Roxie Bergh, Dave Sannerud and Mardel Soliland. Bob Fleming will contribute with magic and sleight of hand.

Tickets may be purchased in the business office. Prices are $1.50 for boarding club students and $2.00 for adults and others.

Candidates Face Coming SB Election

The workings of student government take the attention of the PLC Student Body this week. The election of next year's SB officers, those who will officially represent the students in student affairs and administration in the governmental setup, will be held.

Three Junior men stand as presidential candidates. All of them have excellent academic records, as well as acquaintances with extra-curricular and student government activities.

Prexy Nominees Give Views:

Student government at PLC is sound in principle, but woefully lacking in the practice of these principles. From Art. 1, Sec. 2 of the Constitution of the ASPLC we read: "The purpose of this organization shall be to band the students into an organized unit so as to foster effective student activities and active participation in student government."

Is our student body banded together in an effort to "foster . . . active participation in student government?" How often it happens that no active interest is taken in the student council which "shall act as the legal administrative body directing the affairs of the ASPLC."

In the first place, what can students govern? Student affairs. What are student affairs? Those which do not encroach upon the area governed by the administration.

In reality, this doesn't leave much, but the students can do a creditable job by just sticking to that. Trying to "horn in" on the administration just causes needless frustration and bad feelings. After all, the students can go only so far. No matter what is decided in student council, if it is in disagreement with the administration, it can be thrown out. Hence, stick to your own.

Our student government has become just a paymaster (in a very limited sense) and a system of automation. Nothing new has been added. We carry on in the footsteps of previous student bodies. That which we do seems to be nothing but an obligation to the something. "Well, they had it last year, so I guess we'd better do it again." The spirit of PLC.

The student council has very little respect with either students or administration. Perhaps this is the fault of the council, but it can do nothing alone. Leadership should be placed in the hands of the leaders, but too often student council members are selected on the basis of personality, friendship or "He (or she) hasn't held an office yet."

What is a leader among 1,000 other leaders? Who can tell the difference? Or what are 12 leaders when they have no followers? It is not their responsibility to do everything, even though they should see that things get done.

The main function of the student council should be authority and delegation of responsibility. Until this is accomplished, we have neither student government nor a responsible student body.

On the subject of limited finances, it is only too obvious how little can be accomplished with the present student body fee. Naturally, any increase of the fee is viewed with distaste. But with no student government, why should we need money?

In conclusion, let's all realize that even more important than the student body officers are the students behind them.

—WALTON BERTON

Mrs. White's Sewing

"Let Me Solve Your Sewing Problems!"
EAST OF GARFIELD VARIETY

The three topics which have been chosen for discussion could all be included in one, but breaking it down, we find many particular problems comprising the general inadequacy of our ASPLC.

For want of a better reason, I shall start with the most general of the three, student government. At a recent meeting of the Evergreen Conference Student Association in Ellensburg, Dr. Samuelson, Dean of CWCE, classified student governments of colleges in three general categories. One is sympathetic to the problems, one is limited in its scope so that it is relatively functionless, and one is allowed to work quite independently and yet in conjunction with the administration of the school so that obligations are undertaken and experience gained by the students. Rather than being codded through four years of college, after which one is expected to be a rational, mature adult, varying amounts of responsibility are given to capable men and women and the results are quite gratifying. Their activities are greatly expanded and, because of this, there is added room for expansion of budget and program.

The finances of the student association are very important in my appraisal of the worth and merit of said organization. This is not to say that I would expect to see our budget expanded some ten to twenty times within a year. Nor in five. But I do feel that a continued effort on the part of administration and students throughout a period of many years would bring about a necessary situation; that of a more active and meaningful student voice in the affairs of the college.

In comparison with an expanded, long-range program, this example may appear quite insignificant, but it is indicative of the antiquated procedures under which we operate. After a recent student-sponsored concert on campus, it was necessary for a student to write a check on his personal account for payment of the performer because the business office, through which all our transactions pass, was closed and the ASPLC treasurer was not himself vested with the power to draw on the account of the ASPLC treasury.

As I say, such a situation may indeed be small in itself, but, added to similar ones, it is magnified. These circumstances can be reconciled, but only through much work and cooperation.

This brings me to the third topic; the constitution, with which I am going to deal only in a very broad sense, using it as a possible means to an end. Indirectly, it concerns that portion of the constitution which specifies the procedure for nominating candidates for ASPLC offices. Directly, it concerns the prevalent apathetic attitude of the students. The sad lack of interest shown in student affairs was evidenced when not one petition was turned in for one single candidate for office this spring. Through amendment to the by-laws of the constitution, nominating procedure could be changed to that of petition only, making it a necessary requirement that some effort and interest be shown on someone's part. It is

Constitution:

Article 1, Section 2, Representation in Student Council. I feel that by increasing the number in the council by an additional member from the day student group, there will be a better representation of the entire student body in student government affairs. With this added representation, the Council will be able to perform its functions with more cooperation from all segments of the student body. I think this one new member will tend to create a better feeling of harmony all around.

Also in respect to the constitution, I feel that the Inter-Club Council should have a more effective and meaningful organization. Rather than having club representatives merely receiving an O.K. from the Dean of Women for dates for various events, I think the ICC should meet regularly, scheduling these events after due consideration by all members of the group.

Finances:

At the present time the Student Council has a limited authority over the matter of finances. I would like to extend this limit a tiny bit. I would like to call it the "Greater PLC Fund." My plan would be to bring worthwhile entertainment to the campus, outside of the Lyceum Series, and perhaps more of a local nature, giving the students and outsiders alike a fine evening's program for a very nominal fee. The idea would be to hold three or four of these programs during the school year. With proper support these events could reap a rather profitable return. Carried through each year, the fund would grow larger and larger. A goal could be set, perhaps a swimming pool, or some other such improvement, and who knows, if the students show interest in such a cause, then perhaps some outside sources might contribute. It would give the students a chance to help the school, rather than having the school have the complete worry about additions and improvements.

Student Government:

Functions: The Student Council has two types of functions. One, they must act as an organizing unit for the students of the ASPLC. In a second capacity, they must also, perhaps in an indirect manner, represent the college outside of our campus.

Methods: I feel that the only way and method by which student government can be emphasized and thus made effective is by a thorough backing of the entire student body and with the cooperation of all its members. With students taking this active part, student government will then have the added something it needs to function as it truly should.

expedient that changes be made to promote interest and I feel that nomination by petition is a step in the right direction. An effective student body must have the interest and support of both the students and their officers.

—MERLE HANSON

from Portland, has served as Mooring Mast editor this year and has been on the Student Council. Merle Hanson, ASPLC treasurer this year, was also president of the Sophomore class. Eddie Larson, a pre-semianarian from Tacoma, is Junior class president and has been a choir member for three years. This is by no means an exhaustive list of the accomplishments and activities of these men.

Two candidates for vice-president have been selected. This job includes the responsibilities of being second-in-command and also heading Inter-Club Council, where the social calendar is drawn up. Larry Lane, a dweller of De Jardine house, is an EBA student and president of Alpha Sigma Lambda. David Steen, a pre-sem history major, has been a class officer and has served on many committees.

Three young women have been nominated for secretary: Carol Bottemiller, Janet Emilson and Helen Jordanger. All three have been Seminars, so they are not strangers to the mass of work that needs doing in the student body.

The keeping of the ASPLC funds after election will be done by one of these men: Ross Goetz, Sophomore class president; Dave Knutzen, Sophomore student council representative; or Dean Libner, Toastmastering Junior.

Sports Talk

with Don Hall

Featured in this week's Sports Talk is a gentleman whose name has appeared at the top of a similar column for a good many years. Jack Hewins, Associated Press sports writer for the Northwest for the past 10 years, and a reporter in these parts since 1931.

Jack is coming to our campus next Wednesday evening as guest speaker for the Sports Award Banquet, so it might be of interest to learn a bit more about Jack and his career.

He graduated from Washington State College in 1931, with a degree in plant pathology safely tucked away. He apparently quickly forgot all about that, as he took a job with the Pullman Herald as a news reporter. He soon moved to take a job with the Walla Walla Union (now Union-Banner), where he changed from straight news to head the sports desk for three years.

In 1937 Jack joined the Spokane Chronicle staff, writing news again. In 1939 the Associated Press grabbed him and he stayed in Spokane until 1946, when he moved to his present job in Seattle with the A.P. During the past 10 years he has covered all the major sporting events in the Northwest and has written his column, Northwest Sports.

This year he will celebrate his Silver Wedding Anniversary and has two children, Taylor, 20 years old and in the Air Force, and Lora Lynn, 14 years old.

When asked about his opinion of the status of the small college in sports, particularly in this area, he put forth some very good thoughts.

"I think that the quality of ball played by the small colleges as a whole, has improved steadily in the past years." As an example he singled out basketball, but said that football or any other sport could be substituted instead. "The small colleges have been picking up good talent lately where they weren't so fortunate in earlier years."

The reasons for this, he explained, could come under two major headings. First he felt that the Pacific Coast Conference rule that denies freshmen the chance to play varsity ball has influenced many to the small college where they can play four years on the varsity. Also the stress that the larger colleges put on big men, almost to the point where they ignore anyone under six feet, puts the small colleges in a position to grab up the sometimes superior but shorter players.

For more of his viewpoints on the various aspects of athletics, buy a ticket to the banquet Wednesday night for a good night's entertainment.

Baseball Squad Opens At Central Tomorrow

Opening their schedule tomorrow afternoon in a double-header in Ellensburg against Central Washington College of Education, the PLC baseball squad coached by Marv Harshman opens the spring sports parade. Conference play does not open until April 18 when Western Washington plays here. Last year Western won the conference crown, and PLC won the title the three preceding seasons.

Harshman thought that Central would be the team to beat this year as the Wildcats are expected to field a well balanced team with many hold-overs from last year's second place squad.

A tentative line-up which Harshman has been working with this past week includes: Ray Reep, Bob Olson, and Rich Hamlin, scrapping for first base; Don May, second base; Denny Ross, third base; Ardeen Munson, shortstop; Gale Thompson, Ron McAllister, Ron Storassil, and Jack Newhart, outfielders; Lynn Calkins, Walt Lananger, and Dave Hatt, catchers; and Jerry Larson, John Fromm, and Ron Colton, pitchers.

Harshman hopes that Storassil may be able to help the mound crew.

Cindermen Encounter S.P.C. Here Wednesday

Building a team around a nucleus of six returning lettermen, Coach Mark Salzman is readying his cindermen for the coming meet against Seattle Pacific College to be held here next Wednesday afternoon. The always strong Falcons invade Luteville to provide the season's opener for the PLC chinchids.

After only one week's practice in which to limber up, Coach Salzman stated that he still needs sprinters, hurdlers and milers. Galen Nusbaum returns this year to run the 100, 220, and the pole vault. Tom Gilmer, another standout from last year's squad, specializes in the broad jump, high jump, and low hurdles.

Dale Storassil will be back for the high jump and Stan Jacobson and Roy Schwarz return to run the middle distances and the mile. John Fromm also returns to throw the javelin. Freshman Carl Searcy will strengthen the Lutes in the field events as he was outstanding in both the discus and the shot put last year for Kent-Meridian High School.

Free Throw Contest Won by Duane Moe

Sinking 86 out of 100 attempts, Duane Moe won the intramural free throw contest for the second year in a row.

Dar Roa Featured Speaker At Luther League Meeting

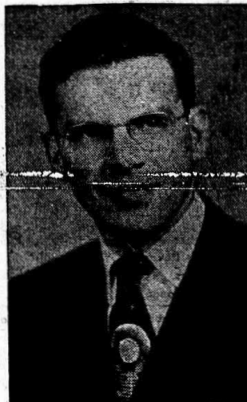

Dar Roa, Minneapolis, Minnesota, youth evangelism counselor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, will participate in the circuit convention at Our Savior's Lutheran Church, Stanwood, Wash., to be held April 6, 7 and 8 at Pastor Lucky's church.

The meetings, open to all, are planned to "teach youth to reach youth for Christ," according to Wes Apker, president of the North Puget Sound Circuit.

A native of Eau Claire, Wisconsin, and a veteran of the U. S. Navy, Roa is a graduate of Lawrence College and Luther Theological Seminary. He continued studies at the University of Minnesota, St. Paul, Dakota, and the Biblical Seminary in New York. He earned a Master of Arts degree in education at New York University in May, 1954.

Education Profs Meet In Spokane

Three members of the Pacific Lutheran College faculty are in Spokane this week for a series of educational meetings.

Miss Anna Marn Nielsen, Miss Junet Runbeck and Dr. Arnold Hagen, all of the PLC education department, attended the convention of the Northwest Association for Student Teaching. Later in the week they attended meetings of the Inland Empire Educational Association and the Northwest Association of Elementary School Principals.

On Thursday Miss Nielsen, a member of the executive board of the Northwest Association for Student Teaching, addressed the Delta Chapter of the PLC Alumni Association at a dinner meeting.

The teachers will return this evening.
