REGENTS APPROVE
SALARY, TUITION HIKES

A cost of living salary increase which will average six per cent for all employees at Pacific Lutheran University was voted by the school's board of regents at its annual winter meeting on campus Monday.

Dr. Eugene W. Wiegman, PLU president, stated that the regents adopted a balanced operating budget for 1971-72 of $7,961,500, an increase of $600,000 over the current school year.

To finance the salary raises slight increases in student costs were voted. Annual tuition was hiked $100 to $1,500. A $50 tuition charge was voted for the one-month interim period each January. Previously there was no charge to the student for this period when one course (equivalent to four semester hours) was taken.

Rising food costs and a more liberal eating policy with regards to quantities necessitated a rise in board costs of $30.00 per year.

With these increases, Dr. Wiegman explained, a school year at PLU for the average student load will cost $2,700.

In other action the regents approved three minor campus improvements. These include the resurfacing of two tennis courts, the installation of new and additional curbing for the outdoor running track and additions and alterations to the warehouse facilities in the maintenance area.

PLU RECEIVES ESSO
FOUNDATION GRANT

The Esso Education Foundation has awarded PLU a $2,500 grant under their 1970-71 Presidential Contingency program. The use of the money is to be determined by President Eugene Wiegman.

The open-ended grant is used in underwriting the cost of unbudgeted items or activities which help further the educational objectives of the University.

In 1970-71 the Esso Education Foundation awarded grants totaling $3.1 million, with a record $1.6 million allocated for support of experiments and innovations in higher education.

DRAWINGS, CERAMICS
FEATURED IN DISPLAY

"Five Targets and Four Trees" - Ritchie

Two separate exhibitions including drawings and ceramics are on display concurrently at the Pacific Lutheran University Gallery through the end of February.

Featured are metalpoint drawings and washes by Bill H. Ritchie, assistant professor of art at the University of Washington, and ceramics by 10 contemporary artists on loan from the Manolides Gallery in Seattle.

Ritchie's work includes images of targets, trees, numbers and chickens, images often repeated in serial forms. His metalpoint technique, done with silver or other metals on gesso grounded boards of paper, is one of the oldest art techniques and was used a great deal during the Renaissance.

A frequent exhibitor in national print and drawing exhibitions, Ritchie has won exhibition awards in New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York and Canada as well as throughout the Northwest.

Many of the ceramics are "non-functional" kitchen items --a huge cookie jar, plate with build-in utensils, cups, teapots and the like. Others are lamps in various forms.

A unique piece is a replica of a bathroom with all details in silver glaze.

According to PLU's Keith Achepohl, director of exhibitions, the show has examples of some of the brightest, most colorful and imaginative pottery currently being created.

A full-length production of the Henry Purcell opera, "Dido and Aeneas," will be presented by the PLU Department of Music Thursday and Saturday, Feb. 25 and 27.

Curtain time at Eastvold Auditorium is 8:15 p.m. producer and stage director is William Sare.

The opera will feature a performance of the Concert Ballet Group of Tacoma under the direction of Jan Collum. The group, one of 30 regional honor groups in the country as determined by the Regional Ballet Association, has given some 200 performances in the Pacific Northwest over the past six years and participates in the Joffrey Ballet Summer Program at PLU.

The libretto for "Dido and Aeneas" was taken from the chapter in Virgil's epic poem entitled "The Aeneid," which describes the imagined origin of the Roman nation. Nahum Tate, the librettist for Purcell's opera, altered Virgil's writing to make a Baroque comment. The Greek gods now serve as puppets in the hands of the Sorceress and witches.

The cast features Constance Koschmann as Dido, Stewart Hanson as Aeneas, Deborah Robinson as the Sorceress, Karen Wraalstad as Belinda, Sandra Haugen as the first witch, Cindy Salo as the second witch, Sarah Potter, Mark Scholz and Korie Rinderknecht.

In addition, there will be a chorus of 30 voices, primarily singers from the Choir of the West and the University Chorale. Jerry Kracht will conduct the University Orchestra.

The performances are complimentary.

PLU ARTIST SERIES
PRESENTS PIANIST
LORIN HOLLANDER
FEB. 26

Lorin Hollander, one of the country's extraordinary pianists, will appear in concert at PLU Friday, Feb. 26, at 8:15 p.m. The talented 26-year-old stage veteran's performance is presented by the PLU Artist Series.

Hollander has just returned to the States after a long-awaited London concert debut where he performed with the London Philharmonic. He has given concerts on five continents and has performed with countless well-known orchestras.

His PLU appearance is one of only a dozen university concerts he has scheduled for 1971.

Reviews have compared Hollander to Franz Liszt, and the New York Times has called him the "leading pianist of his generation." A musician since the age of four, he began his professional career at age 11.

Hollander is also actively involved in experimental educational programs in the public school system, and gives much time and effort to the education of the nation's youth, based on his belief that re-opening lines of communication with young people is crucial to the arts. The informality of his performances reflect his desire to renew the interest of young people in the world's great music.

Tickets for the concert are available at the U.C. Information Desk.

CARDIAC CAGE CREW
STAYS ALIVE

Pacific Lutheran University, staying alive in the Northwest Conference race by voiding the scorebook death certificates in the closing seconds of the cardiac carnivals at Pacific and Linfield last week, must continue two steps ahead of the conference-appointed burial detail Friday and Saturday when they enter the dens of College of Idaho and Whitman, where other NWC front-runners have already experienced euthanasia.

Game time on KMO Radio is 9 p.m. Friday and 7:55 p.m. Saturday at the 1360 spot on the dial.

The temporary stay of execution, if it extends through this weekend, will set the stage for the showdown at the PLU corral between the Lutes and Lewis and Clark February 18, followed by the locals and Willamette on the 20th.

In addition to surviving the cut in the conference scrabble, the Lutes, now 6-2 in the loop ladder along with Willamette, trailing Lewis and Clark at 6-1, reached the .500 plateau for the first time this season. The Lutes, attempting to maintain a twenty-three year winning tradition, are now 10-10. Also, the two road wins in succession is a season high.
