Spring focuses on the Americas

Welcome to spring term 1997 -- The Americas Semester. The Americas will provide a framework to compare and contrast the diverse historical, political, social, economic and cultural experiences of peoples of Canada, the US, Latin America and the Caribbean. All this materializes in the form of classes and events for PLU and the community. Included on the schedule are an afternoon conference on sustainability and the new world order (see below) and an all-day conference on the politics of language and identity in the Americas in April. Andean, Native American and Brazilian musicians will perform at "Music at the Crossroads in the Americas" on April 3. The Humanities Film Series and the Feminist Scholarship Series both feature Americas topics, and classes from "Comparative Slavery" to "Women's Literature of the Americas" also help to develop an understanding of these issues. The semester is part of the project to internationalize our university using the Pacific Rim as the unifying theme, funded by a grant from the US Department of Education.

Food, community and the environment

From pesticide use to poverty to urban agriculture, "Sustainability and the New World Order: Food, Community and the Environment in the Americas" will examine issues surrounding food, particularly its production. The afternoon conference will take place from 12:30-6:30 pm on Feb. 21 in the SCC, and includes

Book sale profits Women's Center

Looking for a good book? Stop by the Women's Center Book Sale to browse a selection of new and used books from a variety of genres -- even romance books, just for Valentine's Day. The sale will be held from 10 am-4 pm on Feb. 12 in the UC lobby.

Duo performs love duets

Birds chirp, flowers bloom and love songs fill the air as junior Angela Kellogg and sophomore Louis Hobson perform vocal selections for Valentine's Day. The duo will sing pieces from several popular musicals, including "Les Miserables," "Miss Saigon," "South Pacific" and "Secret Garden." Darren Kerbs (Alumni & Parent Relations) will accompany the program on piano. Minimal costumes and props will be used. The show begins at 8 pm on Feb. 15 in Lagerquist Concert Hall, MBR.

Names Court Dedication

The new wood floor installed in Olson Auditorium last summer and emblazoned with the "Lutes" logo will be dedicated at half-time during the PLU-UPS men's basketball game. The game starts at 8 pm on Feb. 11.

three speakers, a screening of the film "The Corumbiara Massacre," and a panel presentation on "Urban Agriculture, Organic Gardening and Food Security in the '90s." The conference is partially funded by a host of PLU departments and US Department of Education as part of the Americas Semester. The conference is free. For more information, call Debbie Pereira at 7577.

Forward your mail, avoid confusion

Students that have moved already or are planning to move, listen closely. To ensure speedy delivery of your mail to your new address, swing by the mailroom (on lower campus, by Plant Services) or give them a call at 7438 to let them know of the change. This will aid both you and them, whether you're moving off-campus, from one off-campus address to another or just switching residence halls.

Stanford speaks tonight

John Stanford, Seattle Schools' superintendent, presents the first of five lectures by community leaders on "The Power of Difference: Challenges, People and Schools" at 5:15 pm on Feb. 10 in the CK. The lecture series is sponsored by the School of Education as a tribute to and celebration of African-American educators and Black History Month. See calendar for the week's schedule.

Lions dance on campus

In celebration of Chinese New Year, the Seattle Lion Dance Troupe will perform from 11 am-1 pm on Feb. 19 in Red Square (or in the CK if it rains). The performance is co-sponsored by the Chinese Studies Club and the Asian Pacific Islander's Club. Call Ryan Chandlee, 8062, for more information.

Lutheran tradition of higher ed

Faculty and administrative staff are invited to the next discussion of "PLU 2000: What's in a Middle Name?" Phil Nordquist (History) will explore the nature of a church-related university in "Historical and Theological Roots of Lutherans and the

At work on the network

The computer connections that will link Rieke, Memorial Gym and the math and computer science building are underway. Wiring is complete in Rieke and moving along in the other two buildings. The last critical piece of equipment for the system is the etherswitch, which will allow the computers to talk to the campus network. In the past in Rieke, some faculty and lab computers were individually connected to the network. The new wiring and switch will replace that infrastructure, and allow more computers access. Once the switch is installed, the computers can begin running on the new system. The network in the Memorial and the math/computer science building will start as soon as its wiring is complete. Eric Lowe, a computer engineering student, is hard at work on network configuration. The connections are funded by a grant from the Kresge Foundation.

Time to update business cards

One more reminder to re-order business cards at University Printing by mid-February. The cards are being reprinted with the new area code that takes effect in April.

Staff and faculty group offers prayers

Are there times when you wish the PLU community was keeping you or someone you care about in their prayers? There is a prayer group at PLU to do just that. Staff and faculty who want to leave a message for the prayer group can call Opal Huston at 7126. If you contact the prayer group, please mention if you want Campus Ministries to receive your message, too, or Liberal Arts: What is the Lutheran Tradition of Higher Education?" a table talk from 3:30-5 pm on Feb. 20 in the Faculty House. The discussion is part of Church Relations' follow-up to one of the initiatives from PLU 2000. Refreshments provided.

Mouse trap cars teach science

K-12 students from across the state will grow crystals and plants and make mouse trap-powered cars, drinking straw towers, toothpick bridges and wind-powered lifting devices at the 26th annual Washington Science Teachers Association Science and Engineering Contest on Feb. 15 in Olson Auditorium and Rieke Science Center. Over 100 MESA students from the Tacoma/Pierce County area will participate in the competition.

Seminarians and translators answer questions

Mark Hobbs from the Claremont School of Theology -- a United Methodist school in Claremont, Calif. -- will be on campus on Feb. 10 to talk with anyone who is seminary-bound. You can find him from 9 am through lunch on the main floor of the UC, at a table outside the dining room. The Wycliffe Bible Translators will also be on the main floor of the UC on Feb. 10. They will be available for questions in the lobby from 9 am-6 pm and at an informal pizza feed and information session from 6-8 pm in the Regency Room.

Making an M-Pact!

If vocalist Bobby McFerrin says "Y'all is bad!" to an a capella group, you know they must be doing something right. The Seattle group M-Pact! received such praise from McFerrin last summer, and now will perform at 8 pm on Feb. 19 in Lagerquist Concert Hall, MBR. The group's five members won the 1996 national finals of the Harmony Sweepstakes in San Rafael, Calif., as well as the audience-favorites award. Their repertoire includes jazz, funk, rhythm and blues and classical music, including original M-Pact! pieces. Music students receive attendance credit.

Admission is free to PLU students, and $2 for all others.

phone Campus Ministries directly at 7464. If you want to pray for others as part of the prayer group, ask Opal to add you to the group. Prayers are kept strictly confidential.

Blue-collar masculinity

How do low-wage service workers with young children represent themselves as fathers and husbands? What is the relation between those thoughts and how families organize the work they have to do, both in wage-earning and care-taking? Theresa Deussen (Sociology) will explore these questions in light of her research with fathers who work in service jobs at two hospitals in "Family Strategy and Constructions of Masculinity among Low Wage Service Workers." The presentation is from 2:30-3:30 pm on Feb. 14 in Xavier 114, and is part of the "Perspectives in the Social Sciences" lecture series. Refreshments served.

Fastelavnfest means spring has come

The Danish Fastelavnfest will usher in spring on Feb. 15 at 2 pm in the SCC. Put on your costume, enjoy fastelavnsboller (hot cross buns) and hot chocolate and help smash a barrel full of surprises. The event is $3 for adults, $1 for students and free for children under 12. Call Susan Young, 7349, for more information.

Faculty & Staff

[\[Table of Contents \]](#)

Harold Chambers (Natural Sciences) retired at the end of January. He served the university as a scientific instrumentation engineer for 2 1/2 years.

Shannon Mayer '87 (Physics) has returned from leave to teach full-time. She just completed her doctorate at Oregon State University, where she did research on laser cooling and trapping.

Bruce Ostrow (Biology) was introduced to PLU during J-Term when he taught a new course in virology. He continues his work through teaching genetics this spring. Ostrow also is a post-doc at Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, where he does work in fruit fly genetics. He shares a home in Seattle with his wife, Kim, and son, Quin.

Rick Rouse (Church Relations) was elected to a two-year term on the executive board of the Society for the Advancement of Continuing Education for Ministry. SACEM represents 450 colleges, universities and seminaries in the United States and Canada. The organization provides resource materials and quarterly publications on continuing education. Rouse was elected to serve as treasurer at SACEM's annual international conference on continuing education held recently in Dallas, Texas.

Todd Sandberg (Biology) '93 has returned to campus to teach human anatomy and physiology labs. He replaces Dixie Matthias, who is on leave.
