Orchestra Concert Features Do-It-Yourself Composition

A composition that is re-composed each time it is played will be one of the highlights of the Pacific Lutheran University Orchestra concert Tuesday, Jan. 14, at 8:15 p.m. in Eastvold Auditorium.

Under the baton of Stanley Petrulis, the orchestra will perform "Available Forms No. 1" by avant-garde composer Earle Browne. The conductor, by means of a chart with numbers and a pointer and with his fingers, indicates the order of the 27 musical "events" which make up the piece.

The performers also enter into the creative process of composition by determining the inner details of rhythm on their own. The chamber orchestra performing the piece is made up of just 18 players.

The unusual number follows Gluck's

"Overture to Iphigenia in Aulis," usually considered Gluck's finest work in this genre.

Claude Debussy's "Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun" concludes the first half of the program. This work, written in 1894 when Debussy was just 32, was his first major orchestral work, and in it his impressionistic style appears fully formed.

Tchaikowsky's Symphony No. 5 makes up the second half of the program. This ever popular work is replete with beautiful, soaring melodies and intense, powerful climaxes. In short, Tchaikowsky at his most appealing.

This is the orchestra's second program of the season, following the highly successful Phi Beta sponsored Saturday Theatre concert. The 65-member orchestra will present several other programs this year, including a concerto program featuring student soloists on March 18, and oratorio program in conjunction with the University Chorale May 18, and the graduation concert May 31.

Cathy Collins

Speech Department Schedules All-School Oratory Contest

Cathy Collins, winner of the annual Pacific Lutheran University All-School Oratory Contest for the past two years, will seek her third straight win in the 1969 contest Jan. 13-14.

A junior from Salem, Ore., Miss Collins is majoring in speech and has consistently won honors during her three years of forensics at PLU.

Orators will compete in preliminaries at 4:30 p.m. in Eastvold Auditorium 123 and A 208, Monday, Jan. 13. Finals will be held in Xavier Hall Tuesday evening at 7:30 p.m.

The annual contest is sponsored by the university chapter of Pi Kappa Delta forensics fraternity. Chris Berger, a sophomore speech major from Bothell, is the contest chairman.

Library Completes Successful First Year

"The library is the beating heart of university," President Robert Mortvedt observed two years ago. At the time the PLU library was being transplanted into the new facilities bearing Dr. Mortvedt's name.

Since that time the "patient" has thrived as the library has grown more rapidly than at any time in recent history.

In his annual report to the president, released just prior to the Christmas holidays, librarian Frank Haley announced two milestones: with an 11 per cent collection increase in the past year, the total volume collection exceeded 100,000 volumes for the first time, with a present total of 101,449.

Also for the first time, $100,000 was available for collection building purposes. The total budget was in excess of $229,000, including a $67,907 federal grant provided under Title II of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Noteworthy acquisitions made in the past year include a complete microfilm collection of London Times from 1785-1966; New York Times on microfilm from 1880 to the present; Christian Science Monitor Index; new editions of the Catholic Encyclopedia and International Encyclopedia of Social Sciences; and catalogs of the British Museum, Library of Congress and National Union Libraries.

The Pittsburgh Courier, a distinguished Afro-American publication, is now available on microfilm from 1923 to the present. The staff is also cooperating with Tacoma Community College to complete a list of references to Afro-American publications and volumes available in Pierce County.

There has been a ten-fold advance in recorded media services, due in large part to a complete integration of recordings with the conventional library operation.

These and many other additions, coupled with operational improvements and staff expansion, helped make the new library's first complete academic year a milestone. The facility is rapidly becoming one of the best among northwest colleges and universities.

ART STUDENT GUILD DISPLAY BEGINS IN LIBRARY GALLERY

Works by members of the newly organized Pacific Lutheran University Art Student Guild will be featured during January in the library gallery.

The showing is juried and displayed by the student organization. It includes paintings, sculpture, drawings and pottery.

Members of the Guild are art majors or minors. They organized the group this year to introduce the university and the community to expressive works created by students.

According to Steve Anderson, Guild president, the display will also reveal to the public the artists' use of imagination and skill in the execution of contemporary ideas.

Plans For China Conference Underway

Ambassador Chow SheKai, official representative of the Chiang Kai-Shek government to the United States, is among the speakers slated to participate during the 1969 West Coast China Conference at Pacific Lutheran University.

This year's conference is scheduled for Feb. 28-March 1 according to chairman Larry D. Cress, PLU senior from Spokane. The ambassador will speak at a March 1 noon luncheon, Cress announced.

The conference theme, "China Today," will be approached through lectures supplemented with question periods and one panel discussion. At least six China watchers from throughout the United States are planning to participate.

Topics to be discussed include the Sino-Soviet split, Chinese Marxian philosophy, China and Africa and the cultural revolution.

Students from colleges and universities all over the West Coast have been invited to attend.

New Editor Takes Over Mooring Mast Reins

John Erickson

New

Mooring Mast

Editor

John Ericksen, a junior from Issaquah, has been chosen by the publications board as the new editor of the Mooring Mast. He succeeds the current editor, Tom Stuen.

Ericksen will head the student newspaper staff during the spring and fall semesters of 1969.

He indicated that there will be no drastic changes in the paper this semester. "We will build on the work of the previous staff," he said. "I hope to maintain the newspaper as the significant influence on campus that it has been."

A history major, Ericksen attended high school in Longview, Wash. Last year he was the president of the Intercollegiate Knights and served as vice-president and publicity man for the Young Republicans.

PLU Second In Funds Received By ALC Colleges

Pacific Lutheran University ranked second last year in total funds raised by American Lutheran Church colleges and universities according to figures released recently by C. M. Johnson, assistant director of the church's Division of College Education.

Total gifts and grants received by PLU totaled $1,739,879. St. Olaf headed the list with $2,773,077.

Other institutions ranked as follows:

Concordia	$1,633,521
Capital	1,292,617
Luther	1,211,497
Augustana	1,065,081
Augsburg	900,799
Texas Lutheran	892,398

Dana	444,069

Lute Hex Broken By Logger Cagers

Eleven unanswered UPS points in the final two minutes of the first half broke open Monday night's PLU-UPS basketball game and the Loggers went on to win easily 99-60.

The first half ended with the Lutes trailing 42-24 after a valiant first 18 minutes against their undefeated cross-town rival.

Bruce Reichert and Al Kollar kept the Knights in early contention. Reichert hit three straight field goals and Kollar dumped three out of four attempts. But deadly outside shooting by UPS finally broke a tight PLU zone defense, then the quick Loggers repeatedly penetrated against the Lutes' man-to-man coverage.

Both teams opened up in the second half, trading baskets with abandon, but by that time the game was out of reach. PLU outscored the Loggers 10-9 early in the second half. Doug Nixon came off the bench in the final six minutes, hitting 12 points to lead the Lutes in scoring.

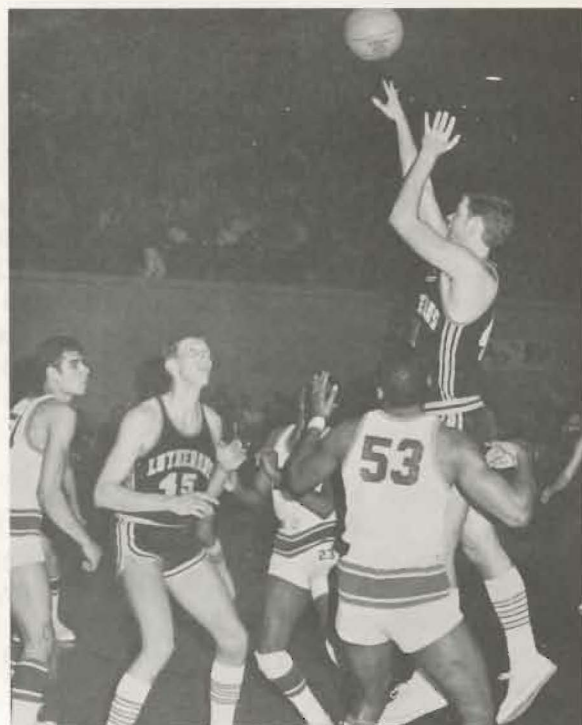

Bruce Reichert finished with 11 points, seven in the first half. Al Kollar, who fouled out with 10 minutes left, got eight of his ten points in the first half.

Kollar and Leroy Sinnes led the Lutes in rebounds with nine and eight respectively.

The loss was the fifth in six starts for the Lutes, who began their Northwest Conference title defense at Lewis and Clark Tuesday. They meet Willamette here at home tonight and tomorrow night.

While the varsity was having its troubles, the Lute JV's almost pulled out the preliminary game, losing in the final 10 seconds 76-74. Trailing by up to 12 points in the early going, the JV's tied the game at 50-50 with 12 minutes left and led repeatedly during the final quarter as the lead changed hands on almost every basket.

The UPS win thwarted a comeback attempt by the JV's, who now have lost four straight following an early season 2-1 mark. Just before the Christmas break they dropped an 83-69 contest to Tacoma Community College, and were stopped twice in the Port Angeles Invitational Tournament, first by Peninsula J. C., 102-93 and by the Seattle Pacific freshmen 88-76.

Leroy Sinnes scored during first half action Monday against UPS. Watching are PLU's Ake Palm (45) and UPS's Argie Rhymes (53).

Report To Faculty

Part VI

The Capital Budget

by A. Dean Buchanan

I have heard comments from more than one faculty member over the years something like this, "If only we weren't constantly planting more trees or putting in new sidewalks there would be more money available for salaries or library improvement." These conclusions are based on the false assumption that capital improvements are somehow in competition with the educational and general budget. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Basically there are three budgets: (1) the educational and general budget which was discussed in parts II and III of this report, and which is financed principally from tuition and unrestricted gifts; (2) the auxiliary enterprises income and expenditures budget (the operation of food service, residence halls and bookstore) which is fully self supporting and not dependent on tuition or gifts for their operation^{*}; and (3) the capital budget which is the subject of this section.

Whenever gifts are received earmarked by the donor for capital purposes ("building funds" or a specific project) these gifts are deposited in a separate self balancing fund, "Building Funds". It is from this source that capital improvements are made; e.g., the major upper campus landscaping project, parking lots, remodeling of Xavier Hall and Evergreen Court, and University participation in the construction of new residence halls. Funds were also accumulated for the construction of the Mortvedt Library and the Olson P. E. Building.

Our long-range ten-year budget includes projections for all three budgets. Thus the construction of all new facilities since 1964 followed the sequence set forth by the master plan. Accordingly, projects were programmed in faculty-student-administrative committees, architectural drawings obtained, financing provided by fund raising campaigns and federal loans and grants, and finally the construction phase itself carried out. All of these steps were also carefully "budgeted" time-wise in order for a facility to be ready for occupancy by a given date. Thus, the capital budget was constructed to provide the necessary funds by the several means available and at the required time periods.

* It should also be noted that the total indebtedness of the University at July 31, 1968, $6,661,000, results from financing auxiliary enterprises. This indebtedness is being amortized entirely from the operation of the auxiliary enterprises.

The results from 1964-65 to date are summarized as follows:

Facility	Year Of Construction	Building Cost	Equipment Cost	Financed by
				Fund Raising	Federal Grants	Federal Loans
Foss	1964-65	$ 843,765	$ 46,408	$ 70,173	$	$ 820,000

This concludes my brief six part summary report. I trust that it has been informative and helpful. My purpose has been to provide you with a clear picture of the finances and resources of the University. If this report has met a need, I would appreciate your comments. This has been the first attempt to assemble in some kind of summary fashion a financial overview of the University. In future years a similar format may be followed or improved upon depending on your reactions.
