

PLU Prepares for Spiritual Emphasis

Campus Leaders Ask For Students' Prayerful Support

The Student Council Monday night passed a resolution urging students "to begin preparing this week for Spiritual Emphasis Week by evaluating their own Christian life through prayer."

The Committee for Student Concern, a special group officially unaffiliated with the Council but acting as its agent in stimulating student interest in school matters, also strongly recommended that students make use of this opportunity to find a spiritual basis from which they can approach their problems.

With this support from the student leadership on campus, the student congregation and school administration hopefully are completing the arrangements for this year's special week of Spiritual Emphasis.

Outstanding Speaker

Those involved in the preparations are especially eager for the arrival of the week's featured speaker, Dr. Gerhard Belgum. Many on campus know him; others have heard of his outstanding personality and deep convictions.

For instance Dr. Knute Lee, PLU religious professor, found words inadequate to describe the capabilities of Dr. Belgum and his particular importance to the school this coming week. "If this boy can't keep them awake, then they might as well sleep," said Lee, who taught with Dr. Belgum at Luther College before coming here.

To Speak Sunday

Dr. Belgum will speak on "A Famine in the Land" at the 11 a.m. student worship service in the University Chapel Sunday morning. He will also speak at daily chapel exercises Monday through Thursday. Each evening of the week he will talk on different topics at devotional gatherings. Subjects will include: "Living in a Copper Kettle," "Christ in the Post-Christian Age," "Choice in the Wilderness," and "Greetings from St. John."

The former Tacoma pastor (Emmanuel Lutheran Church) is now pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Hacienda Heights, California. He graduated with honors from Luther College, (A.B.), Luther Theological Seminary (B.Th.), Princeton Theological Seminary

Haley Answers Library Resolution

A recent student body meeting adopted a resolution asking the library to subscribe to the weekly news magazines. Consequently, librarian Frank Haley has asked that this student interest result in the re-establishment of the student library committee, a student group that formerly met with the library staff in discussing student interests in the library. It was discontinued this year because of apparent lack of interest.

Concerning the resolution itself, Haley reported that he would be glad to discuss this matter with such a committee. In the meantime, he said, the library has ordered a backlog of microfilms of those issues of the desired magazines which the school does not now have on hand.

ASPLU President Charles Mays, who reported these developments, asks that anyone interested in serving on the library committee should see him.

(MTh), and Yale University (PhD).

He was a member of the faculty and head of the philosophy department of Luther College for thirteen years in addition to serving several years in combat as an army chaplain. He is married and has five children, the oldest now a student at California Lutheran College.

Swimming Pool Funds Explained

Mr. C. O. Vance, Assistant to the President in Charge of Finances, told ASPLU President Charles Mays, in reply to his query prompted by the recent student body meeting, that a full report of the swimming pool finances might be available to the Mooring Mast soon.

Vance said that up-to-date auditing of these finances will not be complete until all of the current semester's fees have been included in the total. However, he did say that there is now about $48,000 in the fund, and that this money is being invested in government bonds yielding slightly over 3% interest. (This same total, by the way, was reported in the Mooring Mast in last year's March 24 issue. Evidently the $48,000 figure does not include this first semester's additions, either.)

The total cost of the pool will be about $100,000. In 1957 the student body, in a special secret ballot, voted overwhelmingly to make a gift to the Development Fund of the total cost of the swimming pool. To raise money for this gift the students voted a special $6.00 per semester fee for all students. This fee became effective at registration for the academic year of 1958-59.

According to Mays, Vance also reported that actual construction of the pool will not begin until the preliminary plans have been completed for the new gymnasium, scheduled to be constructed as a part of PLU's 10 year development program. By next year, these plans should be firm enough to allow for a decision as to the location of the pool, to be built so that it ultimately will be in conjunction with the new gym. Construction of the pool could possibly begin, then, late next year.

'Peter Pan' To Be Presented As Children's Theatre Spring Play

March 15-17, 22-24 are the tentative dates set for the spring Children's Theatre production of the Speech Department. Director Eric Nordholm has chosen the enchanting "Peter Pan" as his spring play.

Peter Pan, written by James M. Barrie, was first presented December 22, 1904, in London and ran for 145 consecutive performances. Since that date, the play has been presented hundreds of times, particularly during the Christmas season, enchanting both adults and children. Many of the world's greatest actors and actresses have appeared in various roles.

To the distinguished array, Nordholm has added many PLU names with his recent casting. Freshman Ron Miller will appear in the lead role of Peter Pan, which according to Mr. Nordholm "is one of the first times a male had taken this lead role, except for Bobby Driscoll's appearance in Walt Disney's production."

Appearing as the family will be John Ostergren and Karen Mattson as Mr. and Mrs. Darling, with Donald Tommervik, Myron S. Sandberg and Karen Hegstad as their children, John, Michael and Wendy. Daryl Ashpole will be seen in the roles of Nana, the Darling's dog, and as the Crocodile. Liz Knoll will complete the family scene taking the part of Lisa, the family's maid.

Also included in the cast are Chris Halvorsen as Tootles, Gary Johnson as Slightly, Al Eshahl as the First Twin and Jerry Gettel as Nibs—all playing roles as Lost Boys. The pirates will be created by Norton Wise as Captain Hook, Don Myhre as Smee, Kent Tekrony as Gentleman Starkey, David Swin as Bill Jukes, Garland Berger as Crocco, Niel Thompson as Mullins, Don Swanson as Noodler, and Rod Moleahn as Crookson. Finally, the part of Tiger Lily, the Indian Princess, will be taken by Judy Perry.

One of the most interesting features of the production will be the use of "flying equipment" which will enable the characters to "fly" across the stage. Peter Fry, of London and New York, will arrive on the PLU campus March 10 to train the cast in the use of the flying equipment which he designed.

AWS Schedules Fashion Show

AWS will sponsor a fashion show on campus March 24. This will be of cultural value for PLU students, create better community relations, and provide money which will be used for a foreign student scholarship.

Stores participating in the show will be Anderson, Richardson, and Hibbs's, of Lakewood, plus a bridal shop, and models will be from PLU, UPS, and several local high schools.

Homecoming Concert

The Choir of the West returned from tour Sunday night, after traveling through three states, on a trip which lasted two weeks. They left February 2, beginning their trek with a premiere at Kent, and continuing on through Oregon and California. Their last concert was given in Olympia Sunday.

The group, directed by Professor Gunnar J. Malmin, will give its Homecoming Concert Sunday evening at 8:00 in the CMS, as a finale to their tour.

They sang many selections while on tour which are "listed as candidates" for their European tour in the summer of 1963. Among them is the slow and beautiful second movement of F. Melius Christensen's "Psalm 50."

Knight Ski Enthusiasts Enter Winter Carnival In Oregon

Today marks the beginning of an event long awaited by PLU ski enthusiasts—the annual Winter Carnival. This year's Carnival will be held at Bachelor Butte in Bend, Oregon, with students attending from various colleges throughout Washington and Oregon.

During the past few months plans for the Carnival have been the key topic of discussion at all ski club meetings and the proceeds from last month's candy sale are helping with the financial end of this weekend.

PLU students will be staying at a motel near the ski area. They plan to check in Friday evening.

Saturday and Sunday will be spent on the slopes, in both competitive and pleasure events. PLU will be represented by a competent ski team consisting of: Arne Einno, Bob Howard, Bob Julin, John Loney and Chuck Sackvik.

On Friday night each school will present a song about a "Big Man on Campus" and his "adventure." PLU has chosen Brent Peterson, who has now returned to Sweden.

Saturday's events end with a banquet and the selection of the Winter Carnival Queen. Our candidate for this ski pageant is Suzie Solie.

Gwen Goldenman Elected A.W.S. Prexy

New Associated Women Students officers for the year 1962-1963 will be:

President—Gwen Goldenman
Vice-President—Ida Krogh
Secretary—Ann Soine
Treasurer—Alexia Henderson
Publicity Chm.—Judy Jacobs

KEN EJUOD (LEFT) AND ROGER HILDALH check over final plans for the current Duff's Weekend celebration. About one hundred fathers are on campus now for the annual observance in their honor. Registration began this afternoon at 4:00 and will be completed by 7:00 this evening. Special activities this weekend include the basketball tournaments in the evenings, the boating contest at Paradise Beach tomorrow morning (boats and tents are to meet at the CUR at 2:45 for transportation), a coffee hour in CK tomorrow afternoon from 2:00-4:00, and campus tours beginning at 10:00 and again at 7:00 tomorrow. A host feed with a guest speaker and various entertainment will follow the student congregation services Sunday.

Press Daze

This week's issue finds itself containing the challenges that our student body was bound to be faced with. A student body that complains, moans, and groans, runs the risk of being presented with opportunities to correct any genuine wrongs, or to question the real basis of stricture.

The student who prefers to be left alone, who wants the right of criticism, but not its responsibilities, is now finding his bluff called.

He is now faced with a receptive student leadership (that has always sought well-intentioned student opinion), a constitution committee that answers only to the desires of interested students (if there are any), a vitally concerned student group that has put in endless hours investigating campus attitudes and now needs workers to implement action, and a special emphasis week that dares students to evaluate their own Christian convictions as they are, or are not, reflected in campus behavior and attitude.

Letthargy, beware!

—Mark Lono

Are You Sure, Noisy Ones?

The hours spent on the buses during the recent Choir of the West tour provided much time for discussion. Between Oakland and Fresno we had a stimulating discussion concerning the present and future problems of our school. Much concern was expressed over those students who would endeavor to over-emphasize the importance of changing certain policies of the University. I, along with most of the participants, feared that any fanatic policy changes would harm PLU's identity as a school of Christian higher education. I was impressed by the number of students who felt a similar concern. It seems that those who would hope to have this school changed so drastically make so much noise that we are unaware that many students do feel that a deeper Christian life on our campus is the most important issue. In writing this report I do not oppose change; I will favor any change which will plant Christ more firmly in the center of our campus. A final thing that we should be aware of is the fact that a new president will not mean any great over-night changes. These changes will have to come only when they are proved in the best interests of the purposes of our University.

—Dan Erlander

Winning The Peace

Is A Lonely Battle

On Friday of last week, I received an anonymous letter which closed with the words "in der name des freiheit" (in the name of freedom). It was a letter of criticism of my "conservative views" which, according to this unknown critic, have made me "a pawn in a masters' (sic) hand." I was urged to "be progressive." Since the writer of this letter obviously did not believe enough of his own cause to sign his name to the letter, I will not answer it here, but use it as an example of a person who has only destructive criticism to give—the kind of person who will always be a liability to any school, and indeed to society. When anyone has a criticism to offer, please come to me as a man and offer it. I pray that I am enough of a Christian man to accept it and grow by it. We must work together and this we can do best with honest differences of opinion. Let us all be Christian men and women and stand for what we believe in—not behind anonymous letters which only breed suspicion and malcontent.

We have every right to state our views in our newspaper. I, for one, encourage the use of the Mooring Mast by any student interested enough to have his views heard. When this happens we shall have the kind of paper we need. We don't have to, and shouldn't always, agree on all things, but we should openly state our opinions.—Charles May, ASPLU President.

(The opinions expressed in this column are those of their writers, and not necessarily of the Mooring Mast, the student body, or the University Staff.)

CORRECTION: A Mooring Mast editorial last week erroneously listed Dr. O. J. Jordahl as a former president of PLU. The paper apologizes to the memory of Dr. O. J. Ordahl, whose presidency from 1921-1928 it wished to honor.

Uphill or Downhill?

by Deanna Dirks

As time progresses, so does our University; however, it is progressing in two ways—uphill and downhill. Uphill in the sense of academic standards, new buildings, and an increasing student body. Then there is the downhill aspect of which none can be proud.

The essence of the downhill movement for the lower campus students is the slippery rocky, goat trails that connect the elite with the lower class. However, all thoroughfares to upper campus are not bad; there is a gently sloping paved path that leads to our out-of-the-way classroom building where only a few freshmen classes are held.

Although both men and women students inhabit these lower levels, and of necessity must use these cow paths several times a day, a good majority of men students are fortunate enough to catch a ride up the hill, while the female students distinguish herself with her low leaguer, but sturdy brown oxfords, and quilted mountain cables, and her gold vest.

How clever of those crazy engineers (perhaps the same ones who designed our effective and most fragrant sewage plant) to have realized which paths would be the most time saving and therefore widely used, and to have decided to combine the student's trip to upper campus with a free physical fitness course (no grades, nor strictly audits the class.)

The two most used paths are not only beneficial physically, but each trip represents a field trip into nature's unknown. For example, in addition to the mud, there are toads, gravel, herds of snakes, sharp boulders, and the constant anticipation of "Eerie Exhibitions" popping out from behind the nearest evergreen tree.

Until this problem is solved, I feel the progress of the University is at a standstill.

Why Revision?

Prior to Thanksgiving vacation the Student Council voiced an opinion that there was need for the revision of the ASPLU constitution. A committee was appointed. We are working on a proposed reorganization plan for the student body government. As chairman of the committee, I will, in a series of articles, transmit to you the progress being made.

There are two general areas that need revision:

1) Legislative Representation—At the time only a few students became acquainted with a student government program for one of two reasons: a) Lack of interest or b) inadequate machinery. I prefer to choose "a." Our Student Body has outgrown the type of representation (not the representatives) they now have. A long range projection using optimism as foresight prompts me to see an even greater increase in enrollment following the existing trends.

2) Executive Duties—The student body president is overworked. That means the students need more men to aid in administration. We must provide the machinery to do this. One could say, "create another committee"; but this does not work. We need a firmer foundation.

The general outline has been prepared, writing is now in process, and the final approval will be yours sometime next month. In the meantime I will raise the issue through the Mooring Mast, hoping that this will aid all of us for the future.—Bob Zimmerman.

The World's Week

- Glenn Goes Up, K Comes Down
- Hall Gone, Smell Still Rises

by Janis Amond

Across the Nation . . . Astronaut John Glenn, after calmly facing ten delays, was finally launched last Tuesday on a successful three-orbit flight around the earth. Not the least interested of the spectators throughout the nation were many students here at PLU. Around the world, the Voice of America broadcast news of the flight in thirty-five different languages. Few who followed the orbital shot by television or by laser news account can fail to be aware of its significance.

Glenn was launched at 6:47 Tuesday morning (PST), and was lifted from the ocean at 12:01, again our time. The entire trip took 4 hours, 56 minutes and covered about 80,000 miles. Prior to the launching, Glenn, lying in the space-craft, talked by triphone with his wife and children. (His family, at the invitation of President Kennedy, is to be reunited with him this morning.)

Premier Khrushchev sent the congratulations of the Soviet Union on Wednesday morning, together with the suggestion that the United States and Russia join in a common effort to conquer space. The note caused a glimmer of optimism in the State Department, for it indicates a change in the Soviet attitude toward international cooperation.

Across the State . . . Student body officers from the five state colleges protested what they termed "infringement of academic freedom." In a release directed to respective university officials, and to two state representatives, the officers criticized the action of administrators who refused to allow Gus Hall, well-known Communist, to speak on their campuses. Signing the release were four student body presidents and one vice-president, representing the UW, WSU, Eastern, Western, and Central.

Lutes Grab Two Victories, Capture Conference Title

by Jim Skurdall

The Pacific Lutheran cagers probably should have been indebted to the UPS basketballers for their Friday night upset win over Western Washington College; however, they showed little gratitude as they nosed out the Loggers 70-69 Saturday night and captured their third Evergreen Conference title in four years.

Friday night the Lutes traveled to Ellensburg and defeated the Central Washington Wildcats 74-73. This win, coupled with Western's loss, clinched no worse than a tie for the flag. PLU held a nine point advantage at half-time but had to choke off a last minute rally to preserve the victory. Hans Albertsson was the leading Lute scorer with 21, while co-centralist Jim Castleberry hit several clutch baskets and finished the night with 16. Larry Poulsen and Marv Fredrickson hit for 17 and 15 points, respectively, to round out the bulk of the scoring.

Saturday evening the UPS fieldhouse was the scene of one of the most dramatic finishes ever witnessed throughout the long cross-town rivalry. With the Evergreen Conference championship at stake for PLU and the city title still undecided, the Lutes snatched almost certain victory from the Loggers in an excellent exhibition of never-say-die basketball. The end of the first half saw UPS holding a 47-42 advantage after the lead had changed hands several times. The second half was up and took until the Loggers grabbed a four point lead with three minutes remaining. The Lutes battled back to a one point deficit and with a minute and a half remaining Marv Fredrickson stole the ball and dribbled two-thirds the length of the floor for the go-ahead crapple. This was the extent of the scoring although both teams had chances to capitalize at the charity line and failed. Fredrickson led the Lutes with 21 points and was followed closely by Hans Albertsson with 21 and Larry Poulsen with 14. This win gave Pacific Lutheran a two-out-of-three edge for the season over UPS.

The two wins last weekend gave the Knights sole claim to the Evergreen Conference Basketball Championship. This first place finish gave the Knights a bye in the first night of Tournament play that will decide the three representatives to the NAIA district playoffs. If the Lutes win tonight they are assured of a spot in the district playoffs and if they should lose then they must win Saturday night to gain entry to the playoffs.

The NAIA playoffs will include four teams, three from the Evergreen Conference and an independent which will more than likely be Seattle Pacific. The first night of the district playoffs two teams will be out by single elimination and the two remaining teams will play a two-out-of-three series. The winner of this series moves on to Kansas City and the NAIA national tournament.

SEASON STATS

	Games	Tot. Pts.	Avg.
Albertsson	19	392	20.6
Fredrickson	19	298	15.5
Poulsen	19	263	13.8
Castleberry	19	195	10.3
Nelson	19	169	8.9

HANS ALBERTSSON outjumps Bob Sprague to gain the tip in last week's game with UPS. Marv Fredrickson, number 11, and Dick Nelson, number 20, wait with two loggers for the ball. PLU won the game by a score of 70-69.

Knights Have Reserve Strength In Mike Healy and Rolf Olsen

by Ed Davis

To the uninitiated fan, the two players who are the subjects of our interest this week are not of major importance. But to those of us who have followed the Lutes through the season with zeal and glee, they are two cogs without whom the Lutes would not be the same. A team cannot operate without capable reserves to back up its starting five, and Mike Healy and Rolf Olsen have provided just this capability.

Mike is a sophomore who lettered last year for the Lutes in much the ground, he plans to try his luck on the diamond again this spring for coach Gabrielsen. He is pursuing an education major, and would like to return to coach in his native town of Seattle.

Rolf is a freshman from Raynood, Washington, where he played three years of basketball, track, and football, and one year of baseball during his freshman year. His all-around ability gained him an all-conference spot on the football team his senior year and victories in the conference shotput and discus events. But his forte lies in basketball, where he was named all-conference for three years and non-tourney all-state his senior year. He is looking ahead to a tentative P.E. major.

Both Mike and Rolf have demonstrated excellent scoring potential this season. Rolf is leading the jayvee team in scoring, and Healy is right up among the leaders. Both had their finest performances to date against McNeil Island Prebentary in the championship game of the Tacoma City League, where Rolf led the way with 31 points and Mike was close behind with 29. So don't shudder when the reserves come in. They're just liable to surprise you.

Campus Poll Results Revealed

The Committee for Student Concern here lists the results of its all-campus poll. A fuller summary of the results, including a breakdown by classes, will be posted at a later date, probably in the Kiosk. Although the Committee features a fluctuating membership that urges others to join its ranks, and does not necessarily want any personal credit or recognition for its work, it would like to acknowledge the extensive work of the two members that did all of the tabulations of the questionnaire results: Mary Undlin and Joan Patterson.
