Miss Payne to Appear in Recital

Miss Dorothy Payne, instructor in music, will appear in faculty piano-recital in Eastwood Chapel Wednesday, Oct. 20, 8:00 p.m.

Miss Payne, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, New York, came to PLU in 1959. Prior to that she had spent two years as a scholarship student in Vienna and Salzburg, where she studied with professors Haukens, Panofsky and Krich.

During the past summer, she returned to Austria to continue her studies under Dr. David Burge, whom many students will remember for his contemporary music recital and seminar which took place on September 10th.

Miss Payne's program will include varied works, ranging from the Baroque period through the contem-

PIANIST DOROTHY PAYNE

Dorothy Miss Payne will open her recital with the Bach Toccata in D minor, and of Bach's easier keyboard compositions. Following this will be two shorter works by Rachmaninoff: the Prelude in C major and the Rhapsody in D minor.

Students to Represent Iran at UN

The political science department has announced that PLU will represent the Kingdom of Iran in this year's session of the Model United Nations of the Far West. There will be six PLU delegates.

Any student interested in international politics or picking up a preparation in history-political science department in the library basement, room 16. Turn applications in to Miss Payne by Oct. 30, 1960.

This year's session, theteenth annual, will be held at the Claremont Colleges at Claremont, Calif., April 7-10, 1961. The basic function of each delegation is to follow as accurately as possible the views and policies of the countries which they represent.

To do this, the history, background, beliefs, traditions and customs of the countries must be studied. In addition, the workings of the UN and of the MUN must be investigated. Therefore, those who apply should be prepared to spend some time in the study of their subjects and also to meet once a week to discuss and plan.

There will be no admission charge for the recital. A reception will be held after the concert.

Cornelia Otis Skinner to Present One-Woman Show

Cornelia Otis Skinner, this year's first Artist Series performer, who is appearing here Oct. 20, at 8:15 p.m. in "The Wives of Henry VIII," says that one of her chief problems is finding the appropriate title for her unique form of drama, the one-woman show.

The word monologue, she says, sounds too "academic." Character sketches comes nearer the mark and so far "monodrama," that bright brow term used by screaming from the room. "One-woman Show" just about describes it. There are two other terms which people sometimes use in describing it but which Miss Skinner says cause her great distress—the word "readings" and the word "drama."

"Why anybody should call it readings I cannot imagine. You might think that I sat out my glasses, sat down in an easy chair under a good light, and read aloud from a book or manuscript in a cozy fashion, to

Homecoming Court Candidates Revealed

One of the highlights of the school year comes near at P.L.U. With the selection and crowning of the Homecoming Queen to be held Oct. 30, 6:00 p.m. in Eastwood Chapel. For this event the campus has rallied and 1000 girls have come to vie for the honors. The girls chosen represent various organizations on campus. Their names are as follows:

Jean Andrews, representing the Senior Class, is a senior from Olympia, Wash., majoring in nursing and sociology.

Judy Frantz, sponsored by Howard Hall, is from Spokane and is majoring in elementary education.

Nancy Diane Hall, representing Xerox Hall, is from Wood Park, Calif., and is majoring in literature.

Karen Land, sponsored by Lee and Otto Hall, is a senior from Wilkeson, N. D., majoring in French.

Dorothy Madsen, for West Hall, is a junior from Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, majoring in nursing.

Karen Pahl, sponsored by Evergreen, is a senior from Seattle majoring in elementary education.

Audrey Sorbel, sponsored by Fletcher Hall, is a senior from Everett, N. W., majoring in elementary education.

Students will vote for their choice in a beauty contest on Tuesday, Oct. 26, and the field of competition will be narrowed to the three with the highest number of votes.

The final voting will take place on Thursday, Oct. 28. The first choice will be announced at Student Study Convocation on Oct. 27. The two runners-up will serve as princesses of the royal court.

For the first time in school years no admission charge will be made for the coronation ceremony and program. Joe Ashton is chairman of the program committee.

Fans Charter Train for Football Game

With 7000 fans in elation they bound for the state fair play. The Lettermen's Club is now making arrangements in order that PLU students may travel over 300 miles to Cheyenne, Wyo., to see the Wyoming football team and take the Eastern Washington Suite College Savings.

Dick Robbins, PLU cheerleader, has announced that arrangements have been made with the Northern Pacific Railway to charter special sleeping cars for the athletic troupe.

Running announced that the cost will be $13.00 if a minimum of 100 students sign up by Oct. 15. If less than 100 there is no interest, the price will rise accordingly.

What Should We Call It?

Cornelia Otis Skinner to Present One-Woman Show

Also, on a couple of occasions she had some slightly ludicrous mishap when she was playing in England and the typewriter on one of Scotland's leading papers cast out with the startling inscription that "Cornelia Otis Skinner, a well-known American actress, was appearing in London."

The same error was reprinted some years later in a Boston paper. "I can only hope the disease is contagious," said Miss Skinner seriously. However, she is still searching for a title that would describe her highly specialized acting.

Miss Skinner will also include in her performance here modern monologues which she will introduce from the stage. The second part of the program will be "The Wives of Henry VIII" and will include scenes depicting the life of each of Henry's six wives.

Students should be in their seats by 8:00 p.m., after which time the public will be admitted.

As for the word Disease, this, she claims, is really the correct description. However, it is a French word and she realizes that many people are leery of the affectation of using foreign terms.

No EndorsementMooring Mast Enters Political Scene

Few editors are more incisive than the impulsive political editor who cannot define his views because he really does not know what he is talking about.

And this is why there are those type right here on the campus. Their political enthusiasm is fully overshadowed by their narrow mindedness and failure to give the other person credit for any type of benefit or understanding.

The Mooring Mast does not wish to join the ranks of these impulsive politicians. Therefore he reply to the many students who have asked if the MM is endorsing a candidate for the presidency of the United States, the answer is an unequivocal "no."

The MM acknowledges the fact that many college newspapers across the country have been endorsing their favorite candidates in general with certain editorials. However, it is the failing of the editorial staff that has led them to do this to help solve the political riddle that now exists across the nation. Furthermore, we have our doubts whether anyone would vote with us editorially without us.

Last year, I told us "middle-of-the-roaders" or "sophisticated hedgers" to be considerate of us by making a statement made by Sojourner in the "Apostasy": "I am better off alone than to be known with you, and thinks that, be known, I neither know nor think that I know."

The editorial staff of the Mooring Mast has decided to raise the political issue slightly to introduce us to readers a series of articles that will appear on the editorial page each week until election time. In these short upcoming newspapers, a member of each of the two major political organizations will present their views on campaign issues.

Read what they have to say. Be critical, but also recognize that they are speaking in effort to be considered as well as natural.

Frankly SpeakingSocial Injustice Seen at Home

by Skip Harrington

Last in 1960 the editor I now report and second in the newspaper was the matriculation of a couple of little Negro children to a New Orleans school.

Behind these small dark faces were the big and the big power to enforce—both the white and the world were filled with the intense—what caused them were surely needed to all of fear and anger and terror of change to a changing world. There were photo graphs in the paper every day and express pictures on the television news.

These pictures and words showed people jiving, shouting and yelling at the Negro children and a white-lady who dared to send her child to school with these three people had no principles, good or bad, and no direction.

This would be absurd. They were easy actors stories to a ready audience. But where were the others—the ones who would be glad they were of a species with the white man?

Today people at the church stand back and holler—watch and read, kill him! Let him burn! Where were these people when the life of Governor Wallace dripped with hate, injustice, and destruction? Where were they when segregationists spoke loudly against Christian beliefs and principles?

Young Demos Speak Out*Johnson Knows Foreign Affairs

by Roger Stevens

Why would Lyndon Johnson be a better president than Barry Goldwater in the field of foreign affairs? These men's advantages and disadvantages can be classed in two groups, personal and ideological.

Whatever Sen. Goldwater's personal image at home may be, abroad his impulsive and ambiguous statements have created serious misgivings not only toward Goldwater himself but toward the U.S. as a whole. If such rash words (and perhaps acts?) were to issue from the White House instead of from an underdog candidate, the consternation among our friends abroad would be many times greater than it already is.

Ideologically Goldwater views nations as either for or against us. He wants, whatever happens and wherever he goes, to have control of the house. This sort of rigid congection, pure black, white and old race. Every Sunday three congregations gather to worship their Father and Lord. Senator, James Easton, the one who died for "HRC" at the house construction, members said, "The most segregated house in the United States is every Sunday between 11:00 and 12:00."

In this America, little young Negro children are made to live with their Negroes. Where there are no schools, the ideals of the United Nations, and the new glories? Did God put different colored people on this wonderful earth of His to breed hate, persecution, prejudice and death?

Todays is the time to speak out again—and not just in the indifference of the crowd, but in our great United States as well. Can anyone tell me now how about you?

Skip Harrington is a senior at Bellard, Wash., and is majoring in business administration. He is president of the Senior Class and the Senior's Club.

concern in general, lack of functioning discord and turbulent attitudes in the young ranks.

Johnson has a detailed program for world opinion, but he is by no means timid or "soft on communism." On the contrary, his air strikes against North Viet Nam to the Tonkin Gulf incident shows his capacity for decisive, resolute action when the situation calls for it.

President Johnson, like his all of Sen. Goldwater's policies without his rashness, all of his devotion to America without his blindfolds to the viewpoint of the rest of the world, and in addition, a statesman's capacity to reconcile and unite people for common action.

The foreign policy of this administration is summed up in the words of his great predecessor: "We shall pay any price, bear any burden, meet any hardship, support any friend, oppose any foe, in order to assure the survival and the success of liberty."

Young Republicans Concerned*Goldwater Tries to Educate Public

by David Libby

One of the central issues of the 1964 presidential race seems to be the control of nuclear weapons.

BARRY GOLDWATER has stated that he believes area commanders must have the delegated authority to use tactical nuclear weapons. I will focus his on the basis of two ideas which appeared in an editorial of The Wall Street Journal of Oct. 1, 1964.

The debate over nuclear arms is an issue which each intelligent American should give some serious thought. It is not an issue which should be clouded with emotion or irresponsible talk. Barry Goldwater has brought up this issue because he believes it should be given serious consideration.

The "Old Politician" (Johnson) has sought to make political hay out of this issue by deriding Goldwater as irresponsible and a warmonger. Johnson has offered no comment on this issue other than to say that Goldwater is reckless.

I believe a closer examination of the facts would suggest that Goldwater has what, alone, is sufficient to educate the American people in this vital issue. Goldwater has put forth proposals dealing with this issue only to be ignored as either by our own weapons leaders and commentators without serious discussion.

Again the charge is reckless irresponsibility. Goldwater says that we should delegate this authority to use tactical weapons to the NATO commander. Johnson implies that this is wrong and only the president has the power to push "the button." But in fact, under Eisenhower, Khrushchev, and even Johnson, the NATO commander has had this power under certain conditions.

Our vital concern is why the major area commanders should have this power to respond on their own. It is not only our freedom, but their freedom, which the United States has taken to defend. To this respect they must have the authority they will be defended.

America's concern is the concern of assuring our own people that a cumbersome and rigid procedure will not impair our own ability to respond to nuclear attack. This must be ignored. We must afford to its rigid procedures of safeguard systems to completely tie up our nuclear deterrent. Some degree of flexibility must be maintained.

The other which comes forth when Goldwater suggests an examination and re-evaluation of our authority to delegate nuclear arms is unbridled. Tonight should be put into this question. Careful consideration is required.

The readings I recommend: Time, Sept. 23, 1964; Newsweek, editorial pp. 128, Oct. 12, 1964; The Wall Street Journal, editorial, Oct. 23, 1964.

MOORING MISSED!

By Pauline

It is 10:30 and the sun is shining brightly when we find our hero, Christian E. Duration, a young man in a bill toward his dons. Two thoughts occur to us: "What the two hill is such a purrfect cartoonist?" Duration is trying to prove with all this sun just did I get any mail?"

His house father was Jim Sibley, and the mail he carried. Michael found the mailbox and took out the envelope. Up in his room he opened the letter gingerly. He read it with great interest, then read them again carefully and laid them on his roommate's desk. "Dad," he thought, "I never get any mail."

As he started to reread it, he reminisced about the only time he ever sat at Pacific University. It was a letter from home and he remembered it had originally been a note from his father: "Dear Son, Everything is here — tragi-comic about your Aunt Lucy went better. Love, Dad." He would have been happier to see the enclosed check if his father had signed it.

If a mother added page and pages of news about the relatives in the neighborhood, the meat-man's bad luck, and Chris' great-aunt they called Nasty Lucy because of her strange ways. It always kind of chilled him when she called up to him and whispered, "Whose side are you on?"

The last note in the overloaded envelope had been written in the large, clumsy script of his older brother. "Hi, Chris, how are you? Just like when you come home a big me a present? Kindergarten is a drag, love, BILL."

Chris' severe exclamation at this moment Skip Chapel entered the room and cheerfully shouted, "Chris, Butterfield eats branwelpaste," and picked up his mail.

"More junk mail?" queried Chris exuberantly. "I didn't get anything again."

"Yeah," answered Skip, trying, "One from Disease-Of-The Month Club, one from Old Club, of America, and one from the French Tourist office — probably an invitation from abroad. Let's go get a maple lat."

The two walked across the room to the PLB coffee shop, but couldn't see the waitress. The waiter took their order and told them to have just a sip or they'd get phased out.

Chris found a forgotten letter at their table; it was to some girl from his parents. "Hey, Skip, listen: Dad says, Your father and I are concerned about your attitude toward school. We want you to study and improve your mind and all, but don't forget the real reason you're at school, love, Mother."

With the noon sun high over the sprawling community of Donalson, our hero stared out the window toward The Dunes From Behind Which Rose the Sun. The Dunes had thought it strange when Skip philosophically sighed, "Never was more than one kid, Chris."

Book Review Program Outlined

Last spring the University Review Committee instituted a program to encourage reading and discussion by students and faculty. Now at the beginning of this new academic year, it is the desire of the committee to instill an interest among the students to participate in this program.

The selections for the 1964-65 school year were chosen from the 100 submitted by interested faculty and students, and careful consideration was given to select significant works representing varied historical periods and types of literature.

The following is the complete list of selections for this current academic year:

- (Sept.) Fielding, Tom Jones (Readers Library CE T13)
- Nov. — Pascal, Pensees (Penguin L 110)
- Dec. — Muller, The Uses of the Past (Galaxy Books)
- Jan. — C. Northcote Parkinson, Parkinson's Law (Senate ed.)
- Feb. — Pavlow, The Sound and the Fury (VTP Victoria)
- Mar. — Voltaire, Candide (Craft's Classics)
- April — Bronowski, Science and Human Value (Holt Torch)
- May — Shakespeare, Hamlet (Many ed.)

-- Letters to the Editor --

Dear Editor:

During the past few months, our Roman Catholic brothers have been undergoing a period of soul-searching and re-examination under the guidance of the Ecumenical Council.

This should have been the time, also, of a similar period of orientation on the part of the Protestant layman. Instead of rejecting at the opportunity provided by modern scholarship for careful definition of our religious dogmas, the Protestant layman has often been heard by this person to say such undergraduate things as, "Well, it's about time the Catholic caught up with us" or, even more revealing and revolting, "It still won't get to the point after many years."

Instead of each person joyfully reviewing his or her own beliefs in the light of the new findings, many have passed a dogmatic judgment, born of misinformation and prejudice.

Instead of trying to answer boldly the challenge handed us by the Protestant world by the fact of the Vatican Council, we Protestants seem content to either wallow in our ignorance and prejudice or to pass the finger of judgement at our Roman Catholic brothers because he has not come to agree completely with us.

The second of these attitudes is dealt with by St. Paul in Romans 2:12-12. Actual himself, I have already

The first attitude is not so easily diagnosed at. The fact of the Vatican Council hurts this challenge to the Protestant world since the Roman Catholic Church has gone the first mile, we are now obliged, each of us, to review critically the errors and interpretations which caused Maria Lourdes to break with Rome so many years ago. We must decide for ourselves, if, in our own interpretation, are present sufficiently to warrant the freedom of our Christian brothers.

— Jim Mitchell

Dear Editor:

This year two people have contributed to the "Order" over one dancing dances — this example, I would like to go a step further in offering suggestions which may make the dances more enjoyable for all, especially the food. After all, it is in their honor that the first dance is ultimately produced.

Have the freshman formal — a finale to initiation rather than to orientation. If more time is given the Freshies and others, to meet new friends, and recruit a date, a more relaxed atmosphere would result.

Orientation is an unfamiliar and stressful situation, so why end it with something which cannot help but be uncomfortable for the person who knows very few people and is psychologically fatigued?

An exuberant, ice-breaking activity like a mixer would be very good to all and to the first work. After this and a two or three week settling down period everyone, especially the Fresh, will be in a much better position to graciously accept a sincere welcome. During it conclude initiation would end that tribulation of good feelings instead of defensive ones, and would heighten the "welcoming" aspect.

Hold the dance and other formalities to the GLB dining hall. Dance can could be used more sparingly, if at all. Girls wouldn't have to negotiate the tables with tables. The atmosphere there is much warmer; utilize the possibility for decorations and lighting. The place is plenty big, too.

A formal right off the bat is too much too soon for the fresh, a change in setting, and a badly timed change in timing (for the people concerned) would improve the situation markedly. — Jack Kramer

Editor's Note: The Mooring Mast continues to welcome "Letters to the Editor." However, to be considered for publication they must be in the MM office by 7:00 p.m. Monday.

Diana Yu Speaks Many Languages

by Mary Wittenberg
MM Feature Writer

Do you know anyone who speaks German, Spanish, English, Cantonese and Mandarin who was born in New York, schooled in Hong Kong and Japan, lived in Peru, worked in the Missouri Pavilion at the New York World's Fair, and attends PLU? If you know Diana Yu, you do indeed.

Miss Yu, a senior German major, arrived to PLU after living several junior years at Hope College in Holland, Michigan, where she had piled up her German credits bearing in hopeful preparation for a term of study in Spain after graduation.

Does it seem a paradox to major in German and desire to teach Spanish?

She thinks of Putumayo as her home because that is where her grandfather lives. She feels that Hong Kong is probably the only hope for millions of Chinese refugees who will be escape from the Chinese Communist regime.

Miss Yu came to PLU because a friend of her brother had been a student here. Her brother is presently a student of physics at Columbia University. Her father, a member of the diplomatic corps, is conveniently situated in Kingston, Jamaica, which also explains Miss Yu's exposure to Peru. They had lived there for five years previously.

It is a real privilege to have uni-

Student Panel To Question in Chapel

Two PLU students will question State Reps to state presidents in chapel at 11 a.m. Wednesday. David Elberg, Bill Johnson and Roger Clader have been selected by the PLU chapter of Alpha Rho Phi as student leaders in community to field the questions.

Their answers on the problems of the business world will be given to corporation presidents Robert Blockstein and Stephen Hall. Both of these men head medium-sized Seattle corporations.

Carroll Roberts and Joann Philpott in a plaid jacket donned in style. Both PLU Alpha Rho Phi decided that a similar program would be of interest to the PLU student body.

Elberg, a senior from Seattle, will be representing the political science department. Heide, a senior from Bremerton, represents the economics department. The business administration department's representative is Maridur, a senior from Kalispell, Mont.

Campus Movies Show Comedy, Foreign Film

Tonight the Campus Movie present the recently-released movie, "The Touch of Heat." The movie, starring Gary Grimes and David Darr, will be presented in color and runs at 7:30 and 9:30 in A-101.

The film relates unusual & wealthy and charming bachelor who becomes involved with a boyish blonde girl from a small town. The richly comic romances sweep her from New York to Bermuda and back again in one of the few most refreshing sophisticated comedies.

Saturday morning there is to be a film to French dialogue with English subtitles. Feature Truffaut's director "Jules and Jim," beginning with the beauty situations of two men and a woman spending their winter days together, and ending with no explanation of the person left possible.

A writer for the Life Magazine said, "I look forward to seeing this picture at least once or twice a year for years to come. It's a film with the beauty and novelty and wit and losing high spirits that I scarcely know where to begin in singling its praises."

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

WHILE THE REST OF THE BOYS ARE OFF FOR A WILD WEEK-END, MORTHAZ ALWAYS BARRICADES HIMSELF ON THE THIRD FLOOR IN ORDER TO DEVOTE ALL HIS TIME TO HIS MUSIC.

Marko Stenmark, president of Alpha Rho Phi, will moderate the program.

There are also 10 programs for students to speak in regular chapel calling the speaker Dr. Dan Scott, whom who installed a similar program last year who had a nomination to enter the National youth.

Youth Program Needs Students

Last summer PLU senior Sandy Dowdell served as youth director of SURF, a new approach to church related summer programs, for the church at the Ketchikan River Lodge, Alaska. The group consists of high school age young people who are now looking for PLU students interested in participating in such a program to the beach area.

The main project of the summer was a worthwhile ministry known as "Project Reservoir," to young people, for periods of one week each, at the little school sponsored recreation for children, called "Beach Camp," and organized for them.

SURF will meet four times this winter to discuss the full range launching of next summer's program. Ted M. Dowdell, "We want our SURFers to keep to see that God is always pleased to know His personally and not just to church on Sunday."

A group of enthusiastic college students, called Young Adults, serve in the staffs of the SURF organization. Nine of their Young Adults are needed to carry out SURF plans. Shirley Worcester, director will be held on campus for those interested.

Because of the members of SURF in the Northwest Seattle Lutheran Parish, doors open are becoming one among South Seattle Lutheran Church and one in the Belltown-Rainier area.

Miss Bowden says interested PLU students can be there Seattle area to contact her for more information.

— The — Intramural Scene

On Thursday, Oct. 8, when only two out of the many important games of the season were played between Evergreen and 2nd Floor, Evergreen had the lead in the first half. Then 2nd Floor came back to tie it up 12 to 12 and then go ahead 14 to 12 as they scored a safety against Evergreen.

Last in the game, however, Evergreen scored the deciding touchdown with less than a minute to play as Bruce Hildahl passed to Alvaro Cadena to the end zone. The 14 to 12 win moved Evergreen into sole possession of first place in the standings.

In a game played Oct. 6, 1st Floor came out of the colors and beat Western their by themselves as they defeated Western 30 to 22 in their game. Mills Loggers threw four touchdown passes for 2nd Floor.

In Evergreen Day games last Monday and Friday 2nd Floor defeated 1st Floor 36 to 2, and 1st Floor defeated Western 24 to 6. In the Fall games 2nd Floor features back Rocky Mason threw four touchdown passes, 10 of them to Evergreen Lynn and 10 to the two others. In the other games fullback Pete Quam also threw four scoring passes.

An important game was played Tuesday between 2nd Floor and Eastern. The game broke a tie for second place in the standings as 2nd Floor won an off-schedule battle 22 to 25, and moved into second place. In that game 2nd Floor quarterback Bob Walker threw an amazing seven touchdowns—three to Bob Dicus and two to Jim Holton. Eastern quarterback Emory Billings threw four touchdown passes, three of them going to Herb Homfeld.

In the other Tuesday game Western was in search of their first win as 2nd Floor 14 to 10 as they lost a close one to 2nd Floor 16 to 14. Rocky Mason threw two touchdowns points for 2nd Floor and ran for another 2nd Floor after three two touchdown passes to Western.

Lutes Dump Cross-Town Rivals; Loggers Lose First Homecoming

The Loggers, scoring in every quarter, ousted the University of Puget Sound's homecoming celebration by defeating the Loggers 27-7 before 3,500 football fans at Baker Stadium Saturday afternoon.

The win was Coach Carlson's first over the Loggers since he took over the PLU ranks in 1962. The game was the second night for the Lutes in the 41-game series with the cross-town rivals.

The Lutes got an early break when UPS freshman quarterback Dennis Miller fumbled for the second time in four plays, and PLU tackle Norm Glavin recovered on the UPS 31. Ten plays later, fullback Ken Teitz got over right tackle for the final four yards.

The Loggers got a break when a bad kick sailed over PLU punter Jeff Corp's head and elicited the taunt from Knight 15-yard line. Five plays later Jim Parson recovered a pass for the only turnover.

The Lutes wrapped up scoring when low ball hit Baker's a quarter back Bob Hartman and Jim Baker with a 27-yard pass and then connected with Miller for a 10-yard gain. Hartman cracked over left tackle for the final 10 yards.

PLU dominated the statistics, out-scoring the Loggers 16-7, out-rushing them 111 to 107, and outgaining UPS 39-36.

Junior Transfer Helps Knights

by Stephen J. Johnson

Oliver Johnson, number 10, big, boisterous and on the little gridiron sound, played a key role in Saturday's triumph of University of Puget Sound Johnson, 24, junior transfer from Olympic Junior College originally hails from Washington, D.C.

During 30 months in the Aztec, Johnson decided to become an Industrial education director and in that is his course of study here at PLU. It is that he loves to help people spend their money. Johnson serves as a camp counselor in the summer and participates in playground activities during the school year.

Besides football, Johnson enjoys basketball, track, ping-pong and many other individual sports. He also likes to dance, listen to jazz records and travel.

When asked about the two-platoon system Coach Carlson used against UPS, Johnson stated, "The double platooning helped us find ourselves. We were not operating as a team until we played UPS the second time."

"We had the unnecessary personnel to be a winning team, but it took the double platooning to help us realize this potential. Our morale was boosted by this system, also, because we were working together and working for each other. Instead of being a group of individuals, we were a functioning unit."

Johnson said, "I enjoy playing basketball, but my friends enjoy me. I am grateful for all the help from that's because it takes too much out of me and takes me so good for other things."

In his final statement, Johnson remarked, "I'd play ball like we did against UPS we will win the rest of our big games."

Lutes Travel to Oregon For Non-Conference Tilt

With their lone win of the '64 season under their belts, the 1st and 2nd Floor Knights will take a break from the regular Puget Sound Conference and add travel to their non-conference slate. They will meet the Pacific University Badgers at McCrorey Field.

The Badgers are members of the Northwest Conference, and although they are not figured to be a contender for the conference title, they will figure strongly in who the eventual champion will be.

According to most reports the Northwest Conference should be pretty well balanced this year. Other members of this conference are Portland State College, Oregon College of Education, College of Idaho, Willamette University, Whitman College, Lewis and Clark and Linfield.

World Record Holder of the Badgers has 22 returning lettermen from last year's squad which had 2 wins and 6 losses. Headed the backfield corps is quarterback Dick Weber and halfback Gordon Watanabe. The top three receivers are Bob Knobell, Bob Mueller and Dick Edwards.

In 15 games at the Pacific University during back to 1959 PLU has won 5, lost 7 and tied 2.

Not only did the PLU defense play a solid game in last Saturday's win over the University of Puget Sound, but the offense turned in an exceptional game. The Lutes made very few ball handling mistakes and overall the game reflected the hard work of both the Knight players and the coaching staff. The win also moved the Knights out of the conference cellar.

Eklund Rolls 238

Last week saw a complete change in the Little League baseball scene in the Little League Baseball League. Instead of mere team captain's names heading the scoring chart, there were such inspiring names as "Animals," "Pluvions," "G.I.'s" and others. Some even carry on with the odd name of "Kingshurts."

Carl Eklund of the "Toms" team took eight individual honors with a 238 score and a 330 record. Much team game and series went to the "Animals" squad. The "Animals" held a commanding lead in the G division while the second division is very bunched with the "600 Club" holding temporary first place.

Critic Impressed By Showmanship

by Bruce Olson

MM Entertainment Critic

Last Saturday's "Stars of Tomorrow" show was both an educational and an entertaining experience for those visionary few who felt it worth a buck to witness some genuine showmanship.

Richard and Jim led off the show with a broad selection of "bluegrass" and "hill" songs. Their spirit and natural flowing manner quickly won the favor of the audience.

Guitar, banjo, steel guitar and harmonica were used to accompany their numbers. Not soon forgotten will be their "Them Poems" and their sensitive interpretation of "Travelin' Man." This twosome should go far with their authentic and disciplined country sound, and their infectious delivery.

Stan Wilson and Jeanne Carter were next on the program. Their material was composed largely of popular folk songs and ballads.

This group, however, lacked the polish that one would expect from a group that has had considerable audience exposure. The low times that Carter assisted Wilson weakly led me to wish that he would save what he has at his disposal later.

The others lacked resources and control, and their phrasings and delivery could have been improved. A greater sensitivity and rapport with the audience could have improved their presentation measurably.

The Wayfarers presented several popular ballads and interpretations of folk songs. Though they began their program at the show rather weakly, they picked up momentum as they went along, and one was left with a favorable impression.

The group's occasional lack of concentration on stage let the audience's attention wander a few times, but the movement and interaction among the four of them was smooth and natural; a little more experience could pull the group.

Leadership Retreat Held at Camp Seymour

The PLU Leadership Retreat, which will be held tonight and tomorrow at Camp Seymour, will feature speakers Dr. Jane Williamson, Rev. John Languard and Dr. Curtis Fisher.

Dr. Williamson of the education department will present her topic, "Leadership Dynamics," on Friday night.

Rev. Languard will address the group Saturday morning. His topic, "Fellowship," will deal with fellowship.

QUESTION OF THE WEEK

Have you been embarrassed by student conduct at any PLU events? Why?

Walter Tschannen, freshman, Visalia, Calif.
I haven't been embarrassed yet. The conduct has been good. It is much better than what I ever knew.

Cindi Weaver, senior, Portland, Oregon.

I was embarrassed there for a while but the freshmen clapped for the guitars.

Bob Larson, senior, Culbertson, Nebraska.
No, I think the conduct is very good, especially at athletic events.

Kathy Farnham, sophomore, Portland, Oregon.

No, I haven't been embarrassed. On the whole it's a lot better than high school participation.

Dennis Davenport, sophomore, Seattle, Washington.
I was a little embarrassed during fresh orientation. The sophomores really went overboard at Columbia Center.

Janet Tenner, sophomore, Seattle, Washington.

The conduct has been terrible the last two or three weeks. However, a few individuals have been quite good in conduct.

AWS Tolo Features Variety

Variety entertainment is planned for the AWS Tolo, Friday, Oct. 25, from 8 to 11 p.m. in the gym reported co-chairmen Dorothy Gaynor and Andie Tilson.

Entertainment chairman Nancy McCallum announced that there will be folk dancing and a bazaar.

The Evergreen Guards, 600 members, Phil Ransdell, regional comedian Curt Gammon, Wilma Bass and John Pedersen as hosts and Arnold Larson in skins will also provide entertainment for this extra day affair.

TO THE POINT.

Fresh Officers Are Chosen

Eighteen freshmen class officers during the past week were Tom Stine, president; Laurin Vance, vice-president; Carol Christopher, secretary; and Nancy Frost, treasurer.

Torch Team Tops New Students

Torch, senior women's honorary, will hold a Scholarship Tea in honor of its freshmen and transfers who have a 3.0 grade average upon entrance. The tea will be held Sunday, Oct. 18, at 3:30 p.m. in South Hall lounge.

Political Club Focused on Knight-time

"Campaign '64" will be the topic of Wednesday night's Knight-time show. Discussion the hours and candidates will be representatives from the Young Republicans and the Young Democrats.

Saga Problem To Be Put to Vote

This coming Wednesday, Oct. 21, PLU students will have the opportunity to vote on the problem of Saga Finance. The Saga is $6000 in debt and has not yet begun to earn money for the 1964-65 school year.

Two alternatives are being considered: the elimination of the debt and the pay for forward publication costs. One is to decrease the yearbook fees for this year by $2.00. The other is to increase the size and quality of the yearbook which has been able to expand with the growing student body.

In the last Legislative meeting ASPLU Vice-President Andie Ondas voiced concern over student apathy: "I cannot stress too much the importance of student body members giving their opinions on this matter. I hope that disinterest will change so voters for the coming referendum."
