Large Influx Of International Students Due To PLU's Academic Reputation

By LIsa Dyer

There are 218 international stu dents from 30 countries attending PLU this year to "taste American cookies," as freshman Rasheed Almutairi from Kuwait put it.
PLU's international student population has doubled over the past two years. Cristina Cables director of foreign and adult studies programs, explained that the students, most of them from Europe and Asia, "are here to study through the sponsorship of their governments." Most did not come here to study abroad, but more properly put, "have been sent abroad to study."
The majority of international students have been sent to PLU and other universities in the U.S. and abroad to study subjects such as computer science and business in which their own country "feels they are underdeveloped," stated Rasheed. In return for the financial support of their personal and educational expenses, the 42 Malaysians and some other international students at PLU will be obligated to work for their gov ernment for a minimum of 10 years upon graduation in designated job fields
The largest group at PLU, 48 Norwegian students, attend PLU on a slightly different basis from most of the university's interna-

Trade With China Topic Of Barnowe Seminar Topic

"Doing Business with China" was the topic of a seminar presented by Dr. Thad Barnowe at a recent national conference of Beta Gamma Sigma, national business honorary.
Dr. Barnowe, associate professor of business administration at PLU, spent the 1982-83 academic year as a Fulbright Lecturer at Zhongshan University in the Peoples' Republic of China.
"We selected Dr. Barnowe because of his significant in-depth knowledge and understanding of the cultural, managerial and regulatory differences between the U.S. and China," said Ronald J. Patten, national BGS president, following the San Diego conference.

BCS has over 225 student chapters at schools and colleges of business nationwide.
tional students. Recruited by PLU Registrar Chuck Nelson, most of these students attend PLU with the assistance of government loans similar to that of a U.S. Guaranteed Student Loan. Loans, or sponsorships, however, are only granted for certain majors. Otherwise students must pay from their own pocket.

Although Norwegian students are not obligated to work for their government, the general idea of promoting and advancing specific subjects in their country is important to them also.
'No doubt it was PLU's reputation for well integrated computer science and business programs that attracted our government toward the selection of your school," stated freshman Khairil Hanzah, a Malaysian business major. "But though we have been sent here to take in and learn educational aspects, we would also like to experience America socially and culturally. We try to share our own culture as well."
"Adjustments have not been too hard," stated Khairil. "Our major problem is religious schedule conflicts with our prayer times."
He added that he has some difficulty approaching people. "Though we'd like to get to know others, we're too shy to talk especially the girls," he said, laughing.

Rasheed, on the other hand, had few problems with adjusting to the new social atmosphere. He said, "I really like the freedoms you have in America. We are here to take whatever good we can and apply it to our own government and economy. I believe both the individual and the government is benefiting from the experience of a melting-pot society. PLU holds a lot of cultural diversity. The people are friendly - and they don't reject you because you're foreign. I guess that's why I chose to come here. I feel comfortable."
As chairperson for one of the three advisory committees of PLU's international Student Organization, Rasheed explained that "one of the main objectives of the organization is to increase cultural awareness" for both international students and American PLU students. The organization sponsors lectures and international events," emphasizing cross-cultural communications," stated Cables
One of the organization's highlights this year will be an Intercultural Awareness Week, March 4-9. It will begin with an intercultural symposium on Monday and conclude with the annual Intercultural Fair on Saturday. Student panels, country presentations and displays will also be featured.

PLU Group May Be First American Study Tour In Far Western China

Participants in a Pacific Lutheran University study tour next June will be among the first Americans to visit Kashi in far west China.
The city, near the Soviet, Indian and Afghanistani borders, has only recently been opened to visitors, according to tour host Dr. Greg Guldin, PLU Global Studies director. To his knowledge, no other American group has yet visited Kashi.
The three-week tour beginning next May 30 will visit several exotic and unfamiliar regions in central and west China in addition to the more familiar tourist stops in the East.
Kashi is the China embarkation point of the Marco Polo, or Silk Road, one of history's great commercial trade routes. Because the PLU tour will visit several points along that road, it has been labeled the Silk Road Study Tour.
This tour may be of particular interest to persons interested in art, Guldin indicated, citing the varieties of cultures to be encountered on the tour. West and far west China show strong Indian, Persian and even European influences, rather than traditional Chinese culture, he explained.
Two years ago a PLU tour was one of the first American groups to venture as far west as Urumai on northwest China
Kashi is several hundred miles further west. "This exotic par of China belongs to Central Asia and is populated by Muslim minorities, said Guldin. "Their cultural affinities lie more with Soviet Inner. Asia, Siberia, Tibet and Mongolia."
Xining, a Tibetan-oriented, recently opened city in the southern west, is also on the itinerary, as is Xian, the ancient capital and site of the vast underground terra-cotta army buried 2,100 years ago with China's first emperor.
Other tour sites include an old ghost city where treasure can still be found in the dust of the streets, the oldest Buddhist shrines in China, as well as Buddhist caves and grottoes and, or course, the Great Wall. Cities include Hong Kong, Beijing, Lanzhou and Turpan.
Both Guldin and the tour coleader, his wife Mun-Jong Fung, have taught courses on China and Asia at PLU, are tri-lingual, and have made numerous China visits. The tour may be taken for academic credit

' 84 Grad Creates Campus Sculpture Inspired By Greece's Parthenon

What would the Parthenon have looked like if the Greeks had had ballbearings?
That is the theme of a recent work added to the outdoor sculpture collection at Pacific Lutheran University.
The painted steel work with kinetic panels is the result of a university commission to Cam Schoepp, a Chicago native who graduated from PLU with an art degree last spring. He currently lives in Tacoma, and plans to attend graduate school next year The "Parthenon" sculpture is located at the southwest corner of the Mortvedt Library, advantageously placed so it can be seen from both the east and west ends of campus. According to Schoepp, the sculpture was intended to complement the architecture of the library and to "add campus color."
Proposed campus sculptures are approved by a campus art committee.

The new addition to the PLU permanent collection has been on display for the past five years at the Seattle Center Playhouse.

The abstract four-panel work in beige, lavender and green was officially accepted during a Regency Concert Series program at PLU Nov. 15. It now hangs in Chris Knutzen Hall in the University Center.

WALK IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF BACH celebrate the Bach Tri-centennial in person!

From Bach's birthplace in Eisenach, to Leipzig, the place of his death, you will trace in living color and sound the remarkable life and career of this renowned Lutheran musicial and theologian.

- You will be a part of the impromptu (and historic) choir (our group) intending to sing at worship in Stormthal, E. Germany. Bach dedicated and played the organ in this village church. It has never been recorded, and is perhaps the only unrestored Bach instrument remaining today.
- Professor David Dahl, will play historic Bach organs throughout the itinerary, and you will sing favorite Bach chorales where they were composed. Take home your own music tape of the trip.
- You will attend Special European Concerts in honor of Bach (and Handel and Schuetz) in Leipzig, Dresden, Hamburg, etc.
- You will visit some Luther sites.
- And there will be shopping and sightseeing with a wrap-up in Copenhagen.

Haas Annuity One Of Largest Gifts Ever Received By PLU

One of the largest gifts ever received by Pacific Lutheran Un iversity has come in the form of a charitable gift annuity, according to PLU President William O. Rieke.

A 31-unit apartment building had been given to PLU by Donald and Virginia Haas of Seattle. Value of the gift is estimated in the high six-figure range, Rieke indicated.
In return tor their generous gift, the Haas' will receive tax benefits and a guaranteed monthly income for life, according to Ed Larson, PLU director of planned giving, who has assisted Mr. and Mrs. Haas throughout the gift planning process.
The apartment, located in the Queen Anne area of Seattle, was build in 1930 and acquired by the Haas' in 1935. Since 1940 Haas has served as president of the Apartment Operators Association of Seattle-King County, which maintains offices in the donated building

Volunteers Key  Science Center Capstone drive

One-hundred Seattle and Tacoma area volunteers are spearhead ing a six-week Pacific Lutheran University fund drive aimed at raising $$ 275,000$ in gifts and pledges from business firms.
According to campaign director Sammie Davis, the effort will raise matching funds stipulated by a recent $$ 400,000$ challenge grant from the Kresge Foundation of Troy, Mich.
The grant and matching funds are to be used for completion of the William 0 . Rieke Science Center, which will be dedicated Jan. 27 1985.

Davis indicated that 500 calls are being made by volunteers between Nov. 1 and Dec. 15.
Designated Tacoma area campaign leaders include Dr. Thomas Anderson, Concrete Technology Corp.; William Baxter, United Supply Co.; Gene Burgoyne, retired; Scott Buser, IDS-American Express Financial Advancement; Charles Cereghino, Weyerhaeuser Corp.: Jim Chartrey, Washington Natural Gas; Gary Gonter, Gonter's Music City; Charles Knight, Concrete Technology: Fred Nelson, Washington Natural Gas; Bill Rogers, Almond & Rogers Associates; and Vern Taft, Architectura Woods.
PLU Regents Gary Baughn of Nordstroms and Frank Jennings of Eddie Bauer are in charge of the Seattle area volunteer group.

Luther Bekemeier, PLU vice-president for development, explained that a charitable gift annuity is one of the oldest and simplest ways of making a deferred charitable gift. It combines gift and investment, so that in exchange for cash, marketable securities or real estate, the beneficiary, in this case PLU, will guarantee a lifetime income to the donor
There is a tax deduction for the gift, a portion of the monthly income is tax free, and the donor is free of management worries, Bekemeier added.
The proceeds from the Haas gift will be earmarked for the PLU endowed scholarship fund. As such, a portion of the gift will qualify for one-for-two matching funds from a Lutheran Brotherhood Life Insurance Company challenge grant, Bekemeier indicated.
Explaining the decision to setup the annuity with PLU, Haas said, "It provides us a way to give something to a school that has an outstanding reputation and that isn't a burden to taxpayers." Mrs. Haas noted their ties with the Norwegian heritage and the Lutheran church.

Haas attended the University of Washington and Mrs. Haas was a student at Cornish Institute in Seattle.

LITE Offers New Resident Theologian Program For Lutheran Congregations

The gifts and resources of teacher-theologians will be available to Lutheran congregations in the Northwest through the new Resident Theologian Program offered by the Lutheran Institute for Theological Education (LITE) at PLU.
According to LITE director Dr. Walter Pilgrim, the program will (1) enable congregations to have a clearer concept of what it means to be Lutheran and ecumenical within the body of Christ; (2) offer a theological resource to the ministry of smaller congregations; (3) help congregations develop specific plans for continued theological growth and implementation of their ministries; (4) help neighboring congregations become better acquainted and to affirm their joint ministries within their community; and (5) include diverse groups within the congregation (leaders, teachers, youth, seniors, children, singles, new Lutherans etc.) in reflections upon role and mission.
Eight area clusters of congregations will host the first resident theologian Sept. ' 85 -May ' 86 . He is Rev. Dan Erlander, director of the resource center at Holden Village and widely known as a dynamic, creative teacher (see separate story). Erlander, who has written outstanding study materials on a variety of topics, such as Baptized We Live and By Faith Alone, will spend two to three weeks in each of the eight area clusters.
Pilgrim explained that he will work with local committees on event schedules, and that primary financial support will come from the congregations served.
The program has been endorsed by each of the Northwest district/synod bishops. One wrote, "I am particularly pleased and intrigued by the possibility that this program can be available to small tows and rural congregations."
LITE is currently accepting requests for 1985-86. Potential congregation clusters should consult with one another, then write to LITE at PLU. For more information call (206) 535-7341

Alum Is First LITE Resident Theologian

By Richard Londgren

Serving as director of the resource center at Holden village has been the fulfillment of a dream for Rev. Dan Erlander, a 1962 PLU alumnus.
Next year Erlander, a formerPLU art major who combines graphics and words to convey his Christian convictions, will be the first resident theologian to serve clusters of Northwest Lutheran congregations on behalf of the new LITE Residential Theologian Program (see separate story).
At Holden, a retreat center on a mountain above Lake Chelan in Central Washington, Erlander, teaches, preaches and counsels, but also collects and generates Christian informational materials to share with some 6,000 guests and staff members, plus over 1,800 on a quarterly mailing list.
A graduate of Augustana Seminary in Rock Island, III., Erlander applies his art skills to his ministry in many ways. He designs, does lettering and prepares drawings for booklets and pamphlets he prints at Holden. For a slide show about his 1983 trip to China, he mixed informational sketches with photography.
His drawings also enliven tracts he has written for Lutheran publications.
Erlander counts on his pictures being worth a thousand words, because he believes in brevity as well as levity
Erlander may be contacted c/o Holden Village, Chelan, Wash. 98816.

PLU Publishes  Jerke's Lord's Prayer Meditations

In 1976, during his tenure as university minister at PLU, the late Rev. Donald Jerke presented a series of chapel meditations on the Lord's Prayer which PLU President William Rieke has described as "a treasured landmark in the life of PLU."
Those meditations have been published by the PLU Press as a memorial to Rev. Jerke. Harvey Neufeld, executive director of church relations, and David Yagow, deputy provost, edited the manuscript of Meditations on the Lord's Prayer Jerke served as university minister from 1975-78. He was then appointed as PLU vice-president for student life. He died Oct. 24, 1981.
"Jerke often mimeographed his sermons for students," Neufeld said. "They were very popular." Yagow said that he wanted to publish the sermons because Jerke was a very close friend and because they are "the most brilliant mediations on the Lord's Prayer I have ever heard or read."
The project was a community effort. PLU's Central Services volunteered the printing, and campus graphic artist Paul Porter donated design time. Sandra Jerke of Tacoma, wife of the late pastor, provided funds for printing materials and paper.

Proceeds from the book sales will go to the Jerke Scholarship Fund.

Copies may be ordered bysending $4 to the PLU Church Relations Office. For more information cal 535-7423.

Deputy Provost David Yagow and library director John Heussman examine the recently published James Beckman Memorial Lectures.

Faith And LIfe Lecture Series Is Established

A new lectureship, knownas the Annual Faith and Life Lectureship, is being established at PLU. The first speaker in 1985 will be Dr. Jaroslav Pelikan. The establishment of this new series coincides with the publication of the Beckman Lectures. (see photo)
Over a period of five years theologians of national and international reputation lectured at Pacific Lutheran University under the sponsorship of The Beckman Memorial Lectureship. The appeal of these challenging lectures, both to the general public and the academic community, made the lectureship one of the significant academic and theological events on the campus. This new lectureship will continue that series.
In the spirit of the former Beckman Lectureship series, this lectureship will promote public and lively discussion between students, faculty, and visitors on key issues of Christian faith.
General themes for the lectureship will be: 1) Foundation offaith: Biblical, historical, and contemporary theology. 2) Faith in the world: ethics, the arts, and scientific perspectives. 3) Faith and the church: liturgy, ecumenics, ministry, and education.
The lectureship is presently being supported by the Jerke family and relatives in memory of the late Rev. Donald Jerke.
A fund drive with a goal of $$ 25,000$ is planned for 1985 to permanently endow the new series.

Reflections On A Typical PLU Parent's Response

By John Adlx
Parents Club Representative

I have listened to parents in many different settings. If they could write a corporate letter to PLU, it might read something like this:

Dear PLU:

Four years ago we began the college search. We were first attracted by your strong academic program. The beauty of the campus helped in our final decision as well. Even after receiving your financial aid award, we wondered if we could manage; we knew we would have to stretch. It certainly has been worth it. Fred has grown in his years with you. He studies a good deal, and has been awakened with a hunger for learning. He has taken many different classes, which we know has prepared him well for whatever he chooses to do. His parttime job is important financially, but it also has taught him some new skills. We were pleasantly surprised that he had a part in the next play, and not too disappointed that his intramural basketball team came in last. Though his life in the dorm has had its ups and downs, he has made some good friends. He really does not complain much about the food. We appreciate his opportunity to participate in the campus religious life. To struggle with values in life's decisions seems to go on forever. It is gratifying for us to know that in the challenging and competitive process of learning and growing and preparing, there are also people who care. Thank you PLU!

Sincerely,
PLU Parent

Q Club Nears $4 Million In Total Gifts Since 1972

By John Aakre
Assoclate Director of Development

Thirteen years ago a small group of friends and alums of Pacific Lutheran University gathered together to celebrate a small milestone.
The PLU Q Club had been founded several months earlier and when the membership reached 100 they held a banquet. Those charter members of the $Q$ Club raised $$ 51,000$ that first year to help students attend PLU.
Since that time some remarkable things have happened. Today there are over $1,200 \mathrm{Q}$ Club members. While most live here in the Northwest, we have members in 31 states one in England and another in Saudi Arabia!
Thanks to the continuing generosity of many people, the Q Club will soon top the $4 million mark in total contributions since it's modest beginnings in 1972. Those gifts have helped literally thousands of students receive a PLU education. Without that help, many could never have afforded to come here.
When I talk to people they sometimes ask me how their $$ 20$, $$ 40$ or $$ 83$ a month contribution to the $Q$ Club can make a difference. Though its hard to believe, I just tell them the truth, that's how we've raised nearly $$ 4$ million so far - one person at a time.

Alaska Airlines has DONATED two round trip tickets to encourage $Q$ Club recruitment. The two people who recruit the most new $Q$ Club members and/or secure the most increased pledges to a higher Q Club level will win a FREE ticket.
The contest began in mid-November and will run until December 31st. Remember, by recruiting a new member you can effectively double your contribution. If you'd like to help, just call our office and we will work together with you to get another Q Clubber.

Night Life

By Harvey Neufeld, Executlve Director of Church Relations

The vast expanses of the Dakotas or Montana, Eastern Washington or southern Idaho all have highways punctuated by famous "watering holes" and rest stops for truckers and travelers, troopers and tourists. At night the sky is aglow with color as garish neon signs beckon and entice the weary driver to break the spell of interstate hypnosis. The Circle T. The Buckhorn. Myrtle's. Barney's. Or maybe just plain Ceneric Cafe! When you've seen one, you'll have known them all. What's so inviting about them?
Religiously, they are very leveling. You can't tell the Mormons from the Pentecostals, the Baptists from the beatniks, the high church folks from the hitchhikers. Inever see ministers. I think, like me, they are camouglaged in wool shirts and work boots. At midnight on the freeway peopie love anonymity.
The surroundings are comfortable and predictable, always warm. The walls feature calf-roping scenes, wild eyed stallions, and bears breaking up a fishing camp. Occasionally a piece of art work is hanging above the booth, like the mining pick menacing table 14.

The clientele is easy going and doesn't care who else is there. A bleary eyed trucker fills his stainless steel coffee thermos, inadvertently adding a few cigarette ashes for flavor. Always there seems to be a new waitress acting out, like a lead in a play, her first job on the grave yard shift. The entire business is supervised by a gravelly throated dowager of the deep fry. Everyone knows her. She loves the lonely. She tenderly heats up a baby's bottle while a couple of teens are playing big time night life, just on the way home from the junior high tolo.
These are good people. And my time with them is well spent. At this time of year our memory turns to one who had "no form or comeliness" that we should desire to see him. These folks weren't pretty either. But to be among the ordinary folks, the night travelers of life, that's pretty good stuff. No telling who will enrich our life at Barney's on the Interstate. The coffee was good. It was time to head out. "You take care, now. Have a good night," said the gravelly voiced lady. She meant it. It wasn't in the green hymn book, but I took it as a blessing. Home was just over the next hill.

Rapidly Increasing Fundralsing Success Shows Growing Popularity Of KPLU-FM

KPLU-FM, PLU's National Public Radio-affiliated radio station, is making a name for itself, and the university.

In Western Washington, its stereo jazz-news-public affairs format, just one year old, is proving to be an unqualified success. Just how successful is reflected in the financial support the station is receiving from listeners.

Nationwide, it is beginning to receive exposure through feeds to NPR. There have been several news features aired, including one on Coach Chuck Knox and his Seattle Seahawks. Jazz concerts from area clubs, such as Jazz Alley in Seattle, have also been submitted.
On Nov. 14, FM 88 wrapped up its sixth semi-annual on-air fundraiser with cash and pledges totaling just over $$ 60,000$. That figure was $$ 10,000$ over goal and

Nlsqually Plains  Room Has New, Expanded Space

The Nisqually Plains Room, a collection center for Northwest historical memorabilia located for many years in Mortvedt Library at PLU, has been moved to East Campus.

According to director Dr. Art Martinson, PLU professor of history, the move allows more space for expansion and fits in nicely with the community service emphasis of East Campus units.
The move, in turn, allows for expansion of the Scandinavian Immigrant Collection, a similar resource center which previously shared the library space. As a result of the move, it also has been expanded and reorganized, coordinator Kris Ringdahl reported

The Nisqually Plains Room houses a variety of studies, documents and photographs as well as an established archive collection that is designated on the State Register. Just as important is the increased work, study and conference space now available, Martinson noted.
Community study projects include The Working Watenfrontand Hart's Lake School: Symbol of Pioneer Education. Both were coauthored by Dr. Martinson and Dr. Ron Magden, also of Tacoma.
A Parkland School (East Campus) history is underway, Martinson explained. 'It will document not only its near-century of operation since 1888 , but its relevance to the community, both during its school days and in its present role," he said.
A Northwest Trek education packet for public schools is also available.'NPR facilities are available by appointment (535-7173).
four times greater than income from the station's first on-air appeal only two-and-a-half years ago.
According to station development director Dean Zuch, the three fund raisers held while still a classical music station raised $$ 50,000$. The three appeals since the format change have brought in over $130,000, even though the first came only days after the change was made.
Zuch believes that the station not only found a niche for itself in the highly competitive and volatile radio listener market, but that the niche is one that is just beginning to see its growth potential.
'Today, on a national level, the jazz market is still smaller than the classical market," he said. "But it's a growth market. It is where the younger adults, the Baby Boomers, seem to be going as they gradually grow away from rock."
And while KPLU-FM had quality competition in the classical market, there is virtually no quality competition in the jazz market.
A typical jazz listener is also likely to be attracted to the station's news and public affairs programming and to PLU generally. The profile is that of professional people, highly educated, with good incomes.

Our news has considerably more depth than you get from other news stations, which are essentially headline services," Zuch continued. '"National Public Radio's 'Morning Edition' and 'All Things Considered' try to give you a more complete story. You could compare it to the difference between the New York Daily News and the New York Times.
NPR news covers not only the events of the day, but broader topics and issues - science, economics, art, music, dance, and many more.
FM 88 's stereo signal is constantly being upgraded. The increase to 100,000 watts four years ago theoretically provided service to more than two million listeners from Vancouver, Wash., to Vancouver, B.C., but since FM is a line-of-sight signal, there were still many pockets in western Washington unable to hear the station.
As of this month there are four new translators (signal boosters) in operation in southwest Washington that open up new listener areas in Aberdeen-Hoquiam, Raymond-South Bend, LongviewKelso, and vastly improve the signal around Centralia-Chehalis. The signal should be particularly appreciated by $1-5$ travelers, who traditionally lose most program selection between Chehalis and Longview.
The translators were funded by a grant from National Telecommunications and Information Administration.

Within the next few months a translator will be installed near Orting to improve the signal in the Puyallup and East Tacoma area. Another possible installation would be north of Seattle to reach a number of missed pockets in northwest Washington.
In addition, KPLU-FM is on cable systems in Seattle and Olympia.
While a format change and technological advances have made an important difference, so have the efforts of station management and staff, according to general manager Dr. Martin Neeb.

For example, he explained that jazz music director Charles Tomaras, hired a year ago, has many connections in the jazz community and with record companies. Both he and morning host Dale Bundrant have Seattle area followings based on previous tenures with KJZZ in Seattle and CJAZ in Vancouver, B.C. respectively.
Tacoman Ken Wiley brings his own large jazz collection and historical perspective to weekend p.m. programs. Jim Wilke, for many years a classical and jazz announcer at KING-FM, does a late night stint on Fridays and Saturdays.
News director Lynn Francisco came recently from KING-AM in Seattle. Local news coverage is expanding and includes a Puget Sound area version of "All Things Considered," Neeb indicated.
And KPLU-FM has been visible in the community, broadcasting live from the Tacoma Dome, Pantages Centre, the new Tacoma-Sheraton Hotel and elsewhere. This past month its first anniversary of jazz party was held at Jazz Alley in Seattle, where a sold out house heard Tacoma-born jazz singer Diane Schuur.

Schuur, who is blind, recently performed at the White House at the invitation of Nancy Reagan. FM 88 has been enthusiastically airing cuts from her newest album "Deedles," since early October.
Like its signal, which regularly bounces off the Westar satellite 23,000 miles out in space, KPLUFM is flying high. But if growth in the numbers and enthusiasm of its listeners during the past 12 months justifies an optimistic prognostication, its effective outreach and impact on western Washington may be only the beginning.

Regents Approve Worship Center Feasibility Study

A feasibility study to determine availability of funds for a new worship center at PLU was approved in November by the PLU Board of Regents.
Board chairman Rev. David Wold will chair the study, which will be conducted only for that purpose and exclusively within the church community.

In other business, PLU President Dr. William O. Rieke presented plans for a university-wide Centennial Plan, which will receive input from faculty, students, administration and staff during the coming year
The plan, intended to guide the university through the 1990 centennial year, will be presented for Board adoption in November 1985.

The Regents also approved the concept and site for the proposed new theatre building, and set Summer Sessions ' 85 tuition at. $$ 120$ per credit hour

Defense Is Strong Suit As Lutes Finish '84 Season With 6-3 Mark

By JIm KIttllsby

Two bands of Wildcats and a gang of Loggers climbed the fence in 1984 to prey on the Pac. Those who couldn't cope with defense were the Clan, Vikings, Boxers, Pioneers, Bearcats, and Pirates.
Defensive opportunism was PLU's strongest suit during a 6-3 football season. The Lutes had just two 100-yard games from its running backs and only four 200yard passing performances from quarterbacks.

Fast Finish Nets Booters WCIC Runner-Up Slot

In the beginning, the Lady Lute soccer squad couldn't play well. At the end, they literally couldn't play at all.

After a lackluster showing in the season-opening Costello Cup Tournament, PLU settled down. Tournament, PLU settled down.
the Paclutes won six of their last seven games and posted a 12-5-1 ledger.
Colleen Hacker's reign as queen of the WCIC ended after a threeyear run. Whitman, 7-1-2 in league play, nipped the Parklanders, 7-21.

PLU had an exercise in futility at the season's end. Following the October 27 WCIC finale, the Lady Lutes practiced ten days in preparation for a post-season invitationrationfor a post-season invitational tournament before learning that the tourney had been cancelled.
Freshman midfielder Ruth Frobe emerged as the Lady Lute scoring leader. Frobe leathered 17 goals and four assists for 38 points. Sophomore forward Stacy Waterworth, slowed by an injury, had 12 goals and matching assists for 36 points.
Sophomore goalkeeper Mary Ryan posted seven shutouts while fashioning a 1.06 goal yield per game. PLU outscored the opposition 69-21.

Volleyball Season  A 'Net Loss' For Young Squad

Their stock went up, but the bottom line showed a net loss.
PLU won its WCIC volleyball opener and registered a convincing victory in the season finale. In between, the Lady Lutes were on the verge of court bankruptcy
The Parkland net set was 4-24 overall, 2-11 in district play, and 1. 9 in WCIC action.

It was a rebuilding year for the young squad, which will return ten players in 1985.

PLU did have voluminous medical statistics. Fifteen Lute starters missed at least one game because of injury or illness.
In its last four victories of the fall, defensive heroics paved the way. Defensive end Jeff Elston returned an intercepted pass 16 yards on the opening play from scrimmage to trigger the Lutes to a 45-7 runaway win over Pacific.
Fumble recoveries by cornerback Mike O'Donnell and Tony Sweet set up two first quarter PLU touchdowns in the 34-14 decisions over Lewis and Clark. Sweet, defensive tackle Mike Jay, cornerback Mike Grambo, and linebacker Keith Krassin either halted Willamette scoring drives or set up PLUTDs as the Lutes mudded outa 21-8 victory. Krassin scored on a 39-yard blocked punt return.

PLU defenders put the nets on Whitworth's vaunted passing game in a 38-8 come-from-behind victory. The Bucs, NAIA District 1's most productive aerial team ( 236 yards per game average), were held to just 65 sky yards.

Offensively, junior fullback Mark Helm led the ground attack. Helm, with two 100-plus yard days, bulled for 480 yards in 81 carries, a 5.9 yard average per tote. Senior quarterback Jeff Shumake, sidelined in the sixth game of the fall (Linfield) with a shoulder separation, threw for 1033 yards. His replacement, freshman Jeff Yarnell, tossed for 779. Senior end Rich Hamlin, who missed three games, hauled in 32 passes for 403 yards.

Cornerback Mike Grambo was the tackle leader with 48 solo stops and seven assists, while brother Mark was the overall stop specialist with 46 tackles and 15 assists. Jeff Elston had nine quarterback sacks for minus 83 yards.

It was also a season of milestone and irony. On Nov. 7, 1964, PLU met Whitworth at Franklin Pierce Stadium, the first intercollegiate football game ever played in Parkland. Twenty years later - to the week - the Lutes and Pirates met again in Tacoma. To take advantage of the artificial turf, the game was shifted to Lincoln Bowl, which PLU had avandoned when Franklin Pierce was constructed.

PLU had its problems with wildcats - Linfield and Central, which finished first and third respectively in the NAIA Division II and Division I regular season national polls. The Lutes also fell to the Puget Sound Loggers.

Scores:

27 Simon Fraser 3
22 Puget Sound 32
22 Puget Sound 32
24 Western Washington 13
14 Central Washington
45 Pacific 7

Kathy Hemion

Hemlon Plans End-Of-Year Resignation

Kathy Hemion, PLU women's basketball and volleyball coach since 1975, has announced her resignation effective the end of the academic school year.
Hemion, a 1974 Western Washington University graduate, compiled a $96-191$ volleyball mark at PLU. Entering her tenth basketball season, Hemion's hoop coaching record is 102-138.
A member of the NAIA District 1 executive committee since 1982, Hemion served as PLU women's athletic coordinator from 1981 to 1984. She was named a 1983 Pierce County "Newsmaker of Tomorrow." Hemion was inducted into the Western Washington University Sports Hall of Fame in 1983.

Her 1980 hoop squad advanced to the AIAW national playoffs.
Hemion said that her future plans are uncertain.
"Kathy Hemion's stay at PLU parallels remarkable growth in our women's sports program," said Lute athletic director David Olson. "We are indebted to her for her faithful efforts in fostering such growth and excellence."

Harrier Women, Men Both Earn Conference TItles

PLU harriers started the season in Parkland and ended in Parkside, putting a few long runs in their sweat sox.
The Lady Lutes captured a fourth straight WCIC cross country championship and a first-ever NAIA District 1 title before notching a fifth place finish at NAIA nationals in Kenosha, Wis.
Brad Moore's men won the NWC title, their first crown since 1975, and placed second at district. The Lutes wound up 14th at nationals, which was staged on the University of Wisconsin-Parkside campus.
In addition to the women's initial district victory, there were a couple of other firsts. It marked the first time that PLU has won companion cross country conference crowns. Junior Dave Hale became the first PLU runner to win an individual NWC title in the 23 years of competition.
Sophomore Melanie Venekamp, just the second woman in school history to cover a 5000 meter course in under 18 minutes (17:57 in finishing second at the conference chase), placed 20th at nationals to earn All-America recognition (top 25).
Senior Corrine Calvo claimed WCIC all-star honors for the fourths traight year.

Quote...

Kevin Cutting, Southern Oregon lineman, after the Raiders defeated rival Oregon Tech Oct. 27 in a game marred by a bench-clearing brawl, several ejections and an angry faceoff by the opposing coaches, observed, "They weren't the nicest guys. They weren't like Pacific Lutheran - those guys intimidate you with smiles on their faces."

Men's Soccer Squad Wins Third Straight League Championship

Loosely speaking, it was President Reagan who suggested, "There you go, you've Dunn it again."
PLU, which hasn't tasted defeat in Northwest Conference soccer since 1981, did it for Dunn this fall. That's Jim Dunn, the first-year Lute mentor.
The Lutes, who have won 16 straight NWC games, captured a third consecutive league title. PLU also came within 30 seconds of unseating Simon Fraser, 1983 national champion, for the NAIA District 1 crown.
PLU, 9-4-3 and 4-0 in the NWC, battled the Clansmen for 90 regulation minutes and two ten-minute overtime periods without reaching a decision. Four minutes into the sudden death third bonus frame, SFU scored to claim a 2-1 verdict. PLU led 1-0 until the 89:30 mark when the Clan converted a penalty kick.
Sophomore midfielder Kevin Iverson wrinkled the nets for 12 goals and added eight assists for a team-high 32 points. Goalkeeper Scott Gillette, a junior, had five shutouts and gave up just 1.33 goals per game.

By Janet Sheffels '57 Alumnl Assoclation 1st Vice-President

When was the last time you were able to visit PLC - oops, I mean PLU, in person? Yes, I'm already showing myera byslipping into the "PLC vintage." It's so easy to do when four very intense years of my life were spent living and loving PLC and one of the most satisfying parts of being on the Alumni Board is that I am back on campus at least three times a year, reliving some of the good ol' memories and experiencing anew love for PLU.
There was such a showing at Homecoming and how neat it was to renew acquaintances that had not been renewed for sometimes over 25 years. It was fun to learn about others and what goes on in their lives; the hurt, pain, joys and rewards. All are so important to us and to share those experiences in person helps us to become close and united.
For so many though Homecoming is not a possibility. Because of the many miles that separate us, or the busy life style that prevents us from making the trip, your Alumni Board is reaching out to share with alumni wherever you are. We call them chapters and in the four years since we started, we have organized 16 chapters that meet about once a year for a socially fun time for alumni, students, and friends.
Since being on the Alumni Board I have been directly involved working with Chapters and it is an ing with Chapters and it is an exciting way of renewing friendships, and also a way to meet new friends. I live in Wilbur (Yes, I can hear you - "Where's Wilbur?). Wilbur is a small farming community about 17 miles from Coulee Dam. In looking at my PLU directory, I was amazed to find the number of alumni from this area. I wanted to meet them as it seemed exciting to meet 'PLUites" that live so close.
I started a chapter, calling it "The Big Bend Chapter," and met on a Sunday for a salmon barbecue at Keller Ferry. There were about 55 of us having a good visit: parents visiting, kids boating and water skiing. We look forward to having an annual affair.
At our smaller events we plan to have some representative function from PLU. Dr. Phil Nordquist and wife Helen attended our barbecue and Phil gave a very informal rundown of what was going on at PLU. Now we have some neat videos that can be used for this same purpose. We are becoming more flexible as we go along.
Where does your part come in? । challenge you to actively find those people in your area who have gone to PLU and invite them to a chapter gathering. Let the Alumni office know of this and they will send you all the information you'll need to get going.
Do you have a copy of the PLU alumni directory? Look up your town and the surrounding towns and I think you'll be amazed at what you find. People, perhaps some friends of yours, who have gone to PLU. If its just a few people you might invite them to your home for an informal PLU evening and use one of the new video tapes to keep you up to date on what's going on at our alma mater.
Yes, I'll admit that being able to serve on the Alumni Board has been a real thrill for me and l'm excited about PLU and what is going on there. Its larger and there are many new buildings and many more faculty and students, but there still remains a special kind of feeling that comes as you walk that path you once walked as a student.
I was proud to be a student at PLC and I'm equally proud to be an alumni of PLU. We have much to be proud of; let us work to make PLU proud of us.

The welcome mat is out for any friends who venture north. Nancy's brother SCOTT SCHULTZ '74, is spending the current year not far from Fairbanks "out in the bush" ( i.e. roughing it).

Crary Heads New Alumni Chapter In Anchorage

Fifty people were in attendance when Pacific Lutheran University's first alumni chapter in Alaska was formalized in Anchorage Oct. 10.
There were 36 alumni attending the meeting. Jim Crary ' 76 was elected as the chapter's first president. Dianne Ellis '67 is the new vice-president, and Marilyn Rudolph '76 is secretary-treasurer.
Mrs. Ellis and her husband Steve hosted the event
President and Mrs. William Rieke and administrator Al Hove represented PLU at the event, which featured signing of the chapter constitution.
Dr. Rieke described recent progress at PLU and noted that twothirds of the new Anchorage chapter members had graduated from PLU since 1975, during his administration. Thus the chapter is one of the Alumni Association's "youngest."

Her brother, Rev. KEITH SWENSON '64, pastor at Bethany Lutheran Church in Engelwood, Colo., also participated in the ordination service.

In Memoriam

Theodore O. H. Karl, one of Pacific Lutheran University's most well-knowri professors for over 30 years, died Oct. 23, four days short of his 72 nd birthday.
Karl, who earned bachelor's and master's degrees at Custavus Adolphus College in St. Peter, Minn., in 1934 and 1936, originally served on the Pacific Lutheran faculty from 1940-42. After world War II he returned in 1948 as chairman of the Department of Speech llater Communication Arts).
According to PLU President William O. Rieke, who was one of Karl's prize pupils in the early ' 50 s, the professor "put PLU on the map in terms of regional and national forensics competition." Always active in Pi Kappa Delta, the national forensics honorary fraternity, he headed the national organization from 1967-69 and 1976-80.
Many referred to Karl as the "voice of PLU," since he served as master of ceremonies, parliamentarian and grand marshall at countless PLU events. He served as faculty athletic representative for 18 years and was chairman or
