Glenn Yarbrough In Concert Saturday

Glenn Yarbrough, one of America's most popular folk singers, along with the Fred Ramirez Trio and comedian George McKelvey, will appear in Olson Auditorium Saturday, November 15, to present the Pacific Lutheran University Homecoming Concert.

The performance is scheduled for 8:15 p.m.

A top recording star for the past 10 years, Yarbrough broke into show business at the age of eight, but it was not until he became a member of the Limelitters trio in 1959 that his career skyrocketed. During the next four years the Limelitters were one of the most sought-after folk singing groups in the nation.

Possessing the outstanding solo voice in the group, Yarbrough was the featured performer on most of the group's ballad numbers, and it was his voice that gave the Limelitters' sound its unmistakable soaring quality.

But in spite of the financial success of the Limelitters, by the summer of 1963 Yarbrough had decided to move on. "I never thought I would like to take a crack at sailing around the world," he recalls.

His success is assured by his albums, "Time To Move On", "One More Round", "Come Share My Life", "Baby the Rain Must Fall", "It's Gonna Be Fine", "The Lonely Things", "Glenn Yarbrough--Live at the Hungry I", "For Emily, Whenever I May Find Her", and his latest, "Honey & Wine," as well as by his nightclub and television appearances and extensive concert dates across the country.

Though his recordings are extremely popular, critics are even more impressed by his personal appearances. "The recorded work somewhat misses the grin and warmth of his concerts," a Los Angeles writer observed.

With Yarbrough Saturday will be the Fred Ramirez Trio, consisting of a pianist, a bassist and a drummer, and George McKelvey, a singer-comedian who has appeared on the Mike Douglas and Tonight Shows and is a veteran of the college entertainment circuit.

Tickets for the Yarbrough concert are on sale at Ted Brown Music Co. and Bon Marche, Tacoma; Lakewood Record and Book Shop in Lakewood, and the PLU Information Desk. Alumni may get tickets from the Alumni Office. Price ranges are $3.25 to $2.50.

THE SECOND STUDENT FACULTY COMMUNION SERVICE WILL BE HELD SUNDAY, NOV. 16, 8 P.M. AT TRINITY LUTHERAN CHURCH. THE SERVICE IS SPONSORED BY THE STUDENT CONGREGATION.

Seminar On Trusts Here Next Wednesday

Tacoma bank officials will be on hand this coming Wednesday to present a "Seminar on Trusts," explaining the use of trusts in financial planning.

Making the presentations are Gershom Rowland, executive vice-president and trust officer at the National Bank of Washington; Austin Burch, trust officer for Puget Sound National Bank, and Richard Powers, a trust officer for the Bank of California.

The seminar, to be held in Xavier Hall at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 19, will begin with a general overview of the uses of trusts, presented by Burch. He will discuss income and principal payments, termination provisions, effects on probate, and life insurance trusts.

Rowland's presentation will deal with investments, investment objectives, personal portfolios and trust funds.

The final section of the program is devoted to estate and inheritance taxes. Powers will discuss charitable deductions, evaluations, lifetime exemptions and real estate.

An honorary PLU doctor of divinity degree was conferred Sunday on Rev. Dr. Clarence Solberg. Rev. Solberg, center, was also installed as the third president of the North Pacific District of the American Lutheran Church. Discussing the honorary doctorate are from left, Dr. Charles Anderson (dean, college of arts and sciences), Dr. Emmet Eklund (rel.), Rev. Solberg, Dr. Stewart Govig (rel.) and President Eugene Wiegman.

Knapps Plan Piano Concert This Week

Calvin and Sandra Knapp, pianists, will present a complimentary piano concert Tuesday, Nov. 18, at 8:15 p.m. in Eastvold Auditorium.

The duo-pianists each received their bachelor and masters of music degrees from the Juilliard School of Music in New York City and now teach piano at PLU.

For the past 10 years they have given recitals and concerts throughout the Puget Sound area and have appeared in concert both individually and as a team. They have also given solo performances with orchestras and ensembles throughout the Northwest.

The Nov. 18 concert will include works by Mozart, Brahms, Rachmaninoff and Milhaud.

Dr. Wiegman Selected For Handsome Harry Crown

Dr. Eugene Wiegman, PLU president, was crowned Handsome Harry Saturday morning as Homecoming festivities at PLU got under way.

Selected by student voice last week, Dr. Wiegman became the first PLU administrator or faculty member selected for the title since the tradition began in 1952. As Handsome Harry, he became a part of the Homecoming royalty reigning over a series of activities continuing through next Saturday evening.

PLU's 1969 Homecoming Queen, Marcia King, was crowned Friday evening prior to the annual homecoming songfest. Miss King is a junior from Port Angeles.

The songfest, called Pandora's Box this year in keeping with the Grecian theme, "Mythical Marathon," was won by the combined program of Alpine Hall (men) and Stuen Hall (women). Their skit was entitled "Peace in Our Time."

Second place went to Pflueger Hall (women) and Foss Hall (men). Third prize cups went to Rainier House (men) and Kreidler (women). Honorable mention was given Harstad (women) and Ivy (women).

Judges for the event were Mrs. Eugene Wiegman, Jon Olson, Mary Lee Webb, Charles McCrum, Marvin Swenson and Dr. Dwight Oberholtzer.

NO OFFICIAL MORATORIUM DAY SET; STUDENTS PLAN ACTIVITIES

The Vietnam Moratorium committee at PLU has scheduled a series of events for Nov. 13-14, but there will be no official school recognition of the events and classes and activities will proceed as scheduled, President Eugene Wiegman announced this week.

Paul Berg, spokesman for the committee, announced plans for the reading of the list of American war dead beginning Thursday morning, along with the distribution of arm bands and Vietnam war histories to those students wishing to take part in the observance.

Dr. Wiegman clarified the university's position, saying, "The student legislature, ASPLU officers and faculty have NOT requested official recognition of Nov. 13-14 as days for university participation in the study of peace and war. Therefore, the university will in no way officially recognize these days. Classes, as well as university events, will be held as scheduled.

MENZEL REPORTS ON ST. LOUIS SOCIAL ISSUES FORUM

Robert K. Menzel, CHOICE director, was a participant in the Lutheran Health and Welfare Forum sponsored by LCUSA in St. Louis last week. He served on the panel of reactors to the keynote address of the conference, "Major Social Welfare Issues of the Seventies," by Dr. Anthony Downs, one of the writers of the Kerner Commission Report.

Along with William Youngdahl, director of a similar urban center at Augsburg College, Minneapolis, he led two half-day workshops on "Polarization of the Races." Conference calls were carried on with Rev. Andrew Young of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference and Dr. Albert Cleage, Black militant United Church of Christ clergyman, Detroit. Both Black leaders charged that integration has failed as a national policy due to the refusal of the white majority to change institutional structures which they regard as "racist." As a result Black people, they contend, must find their own destiny as a "nation within a nation."

Young pointed out that the Black people no longer look to white people for leadership, but encouraged them to "make yourselves available when we need your expertise." Cleage labelled all efforts of the past two decades by white, liberal, well-meaning Christians as "feeble tokenism." He stated that, in his view, the only thing white Americans can do is to alter institutional structures to make them work for minority people as well as they work for middle class Americans.

"Students who wish to recognize the days set aside for the Moratorium may do so on their own free time. This I believe, is a basic right one has as a citizen...on the other hand, the university will not tolerate compelling of any PLU student to participate in any of the Moratorium Day activities," he added.

Lutes Face C of I In Season Finale

The early season high-flying football teams meet tomorrow at Franklin Pierce Stadium. For both, it's a last ditch effort to snag a share of the elusive 1969 Northwest Conference football title after two frustrating weekends for both teams.

Coach Roy Carlson's Lutes ripped off five victories in their first six games of the season, and College of Idaho grabbed five straight wins, but both have now gone three weeks without a victory. At one time it was PLU and the Coyotes at the top of the conference heap; now Linfield, Lewis and Clark and Whitman share the title with the winner of tomorrow's game destined to make the mixed-up 1969 race a four-way tie.

Last Saturday the Lutes started quickly, scoring on their first offensive thrust, but they had to wait for three more quarters to get their second score. In the meantime the Willamette Bearcats used the long pass to score three touchdowns and put the game out of reach. A final Bearcat field goal making the score 24-15 was only icing on the cake for the defending NWC champions.

For the Lutes, all four backs ran for between 60 and 70 yards on the ground as the team broke both school season rushing and total offense records. PLU again outgained and outplayed their opponent the majority of the game, but Lute mistakes led to the Bearcat scores.

Now 5-3, the Lutes will be shooting for their sixth victory of the season in Saturday's Homecoming finale, beginning at 2 p.m. Gala halftime festivities revolving around the theme, "Mythical Marathon," are also planned.

A women's crew team has been organized at PLU this fall. Manning the oars of the new four-man shell are from left, Sandy Sundquist, Cathi Unseth, Megan Bailery, Kay Jansen and Carol Scafturon.

THOMAS ANDERSON ELECTED TO THREE YEAR BOARD OF REGENTS TERM

Thomas Anderson, president of Concrete Technology of Tacoma, was elected to a three year term on the PLU Board of Regents during the regents two-day session at PLU Monday and Tuesday. The board also accepted the president's balanced budget for the current school year of $6,275,700.

The board accepted the recommendation of the president that the card-key system for women residence hall students be adopted. Developed by the Associated Women Students, Dr. Daniel Leasure and Margaret Wickstrom, the plan permits women who are 21 and those senior, junior and sophomore women who have parental permission to have card keys to unlock entrance doors after 11 p.m. Regulation of the privilege will be handled by the student affairs office.

A committee was appointed to engage an architect to make preliminary plans for the construction of a new president's residence, and a faculty exchange program with Concordia College, Seward, Neb., was ratified.

Appointed as regents members of the Presidential Inauguration committee were Howard Scott, Melvin Knudson and Ronald Douglas.

FAULTY AND STAFF TO SEE BB GAMES FREE

As in the case for all our home athletic events, faculty and staff will be admitted (when seats are available) free of charge to our home basketball games, states Dr. David M. Olson, director of physical education and athletics. However, season tickets for the 11 home games in Olson Gymnasium are available at reduced rates for employees and offer the following advantages: 1. Guaranteed admission; 2. A choice seat reserved in the padded bleacher section with back rests on the south side; and 3. Reserved parking privileges.

Season tickets are now available in the business office at just $6.00 per ticket. The price to the general public is $20.00
