Speakers Win Trophies; Lead Congress Revolt

Squad Attends Teacher Conference

The PLC debate squad returned to the campus last Monday from the Western Speech Association tournament and convention with two first place trophies and one certificate of commendation. Don Graham captured the first place trophy in extemporaneous while Joyce Taylor won first place brass in acting. Lou Inerarity received the commendation from the Student Congress, but no trophy was offered for this event at this tournament.

Jon Ericson entered the final rounds in both oratory and extemp, and the varsity debate squad of Inerarity-Graham won four out of six rounds to bring their total to seven out of nine for the season. This team is a contender for the Pacific Northwest bid to the national champion debate tournament at West Point this spring. Their performance at the 20th Annual Linfield tournament in February will determine whether they will receive the bid.

Congress Unsatisfactory

The PLC delegates expressed dissatisfaction over the manner in which the student congress was conducted, and felt that the inefficiency of the tournament-appointed chairman destroyed any chance of constructive results from the event. During the last session of the congress the chairman refused to put to vote an appeal of his decision by Ken Campbell of CPS. This violation of rules removed all protection of the delegates from arbitrary decisions by the presiding officer. The action brought immediate protest from Lou Inerarity as chief delegate from PLC, and when it became clear that the chairman had biased himself in favor of a bloc of schools operating in the session the decision to withdraw PLC as a delegation was made. The withdrawal was announced on a "point of personal privilege" by Inerarity, and the PLC action was joined by several northwest schools with the result that the congress lost its quorum and hence its legality.

The loss of enough delegates to make up a quorum defeated the purpose of the bloc in passing any legal resolution and ended the session for all practical purposes. Inerarity expressed the belief that the congress could easily be eliminated as a competitive event because of the lack of foresight in choosing a presiding officer. The president of the Stanford Debating Society, who joined in the revolt, expressed his apologies to the PLC delegation for the actions of the chairman and took immediate steps to bring the situation to the attention of the tournament director.

Social Spot

Following evening devotions Sunday evening, Shirley Rovang was honored with a surprise birthday party. After the opening of gifts, refreshments were served by the hostesses, Bev Wigen, Jeanette Larson and Beth Gottwald, to the following group of girls: Charlotte Mykland, Peggy Ramberg, Edna Haglund, Dolores Wallen, Marcia Etzel, Dolores Langset, Blanche Kilmer, LaWanna Wellstrand, Mary Larson, Roberta Schoessler and Maria Ogren.

At a recent gathering of DRG, Shirley Hansen, freshman at PLC, told of her engagement to Jim Brown, a junior at CPS. The couple is making plans for a wedding in June of 1950.

Glads Turn Down Bid From Hamline

Honeywell, Tribune Sports Writer, Garbles the Facts

By Lou Inerarity

In an editorial of a previous Mooring Mast edition this editor made some comments upon the journalistic meanderings of a Tribune sports writer. In that editorial there was no mention of anything other than a little misguided exuberance in his obvious favoritism for our northern neighbors, but today must be a different story.

In the November 30 edition of the Tacoma News Tribune, and under the by-line of "ED HONEYWELL," our word-pugger gave out with this: "Aware of the Evergreen conference conflict which would apparently keep Puget Sound from playing his team, Hutton last week enlisted Heinrich's assistance in arranging a game with the Pied Pipers in this sector, with either Pacific Lutheran College or Seattle University as prospective opponents." The inference that PLC was chosen as a second fiddle to CPS borders close to deliberate perversion. Witness the following letter from J. W. Hutton, athletic director at Hamline, where he stated "We are flying back from Hawaii on Friday night, January 6, and will arrive in Seattle Saturday morning, January 7. We leave at midnight on the plane for Minnesota. We are therefore trying to get a basketball game in or near Seattle for the night of January 7. Mr. Art Gallon, basketball coach at University of Hawaii, recommends your college to us. If it is possible for you to play to us, I would appreciate a letter at once. If it is not possible you give us the names of someone I might contact for a game." Hutton's letter was dated November 2nd, evidence enough that PLC was the first team considered as of that date. PLC's athletic department notified Hamline that they could not play them in a letter mailed from Parkland last Sunday. One question, "How could several days of negotiations with Hamline athletic officials' have taken place?" Inside quotation from same article by Honeywell. How could the existing facts be so grossly misconstrued?

There is no doubt in the minds of the writer and his fellow PLC-ites that Coach Heinrich and the officials of the College of Puget Sound are blameless in this instance. We consider them to be good sportsmen and capable athletes to the extent that word-twisting on their part is not necessary. It is a shame that incompetent sports writers are permitted to place a college of CPS's stature in a position of possible embarrassment.

T. B. Drive Is Launched Now

The gaily colored Christmas Seals sold each year throughout the United States by local tuberculosis associations, have become one of the symbols of the holiday season during the past 43 years that they have been sold. Funds from the local Seal Sale constitute the sole support of the Tuberculosis League of Pierce County.

A year-round program of tuberculosis control is carried on by the Tuberculosis League through the support of case-finding, health education, rehabilitation, and medical research projects.

During the past two years the mobile x-ray unit, which was purchased entirely by Christmas Seal funds, has operated in Pierce county, taking free chest x-rays of the adult population. Since the first of this year, the x-ray unit has operated nearly throughout in the county where thousands of x-rays have been taken. Through this program alone, early cases of tuberculosis are found as well as cardiac and tumor conditions, which may not be found otherwise until they had developed into far advanced cases, when the chances of recovery are slimmer than if found in the early stages when treatment can be promptly stopped.

Through the support of the Christmas Seal Sale by the residents of Pierce county, this program can be carried on through next year. By the continued efforts of everyone, some day tuberculosis will no longer be a menace to the health of the community, and will not take such a large toll annually in deaths.

Camera Club Plans Display

The Camera Club held its regular meeting on Wednesday, November 16, in S-110. It was decided that one outstanding picture each month would be displayed on the campus. This "Picture of the Month" will be selected from prints submitted by Camera Club members. Watch for it next week.

On Wednesday, November 23, well over a dozen members journeyed to the Crystallite photo finishing plant in downtown Tacoma. The processes involved in developing, printing and enlarging operations were explained. It was educational and enjoyed by everyone present.

Twelve Seniors In "Who's Who" List

The faculty, in cooperation with a student committee, has elected twelve PLC seniors for inclusion in the 1950 edition of "Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities." The twelve are Eugene Ahrendt, Ritzville; Lloyd Cleven, Silverdale; Elaine Eide, Stanwood; Edna Haglund, Anacortes; Larry Hauge, Parkland; Helen Ramstad Kylo, Parkland; Dolores Langset, Portland; Charlotte Mykland, Parkland; Marilyn Pflueger, Parkland; Emely Sholeth, Tacoma; Gene Strandness, Olympia, and Delbert Zier, Renton.

The seniors chosen were selected on a basis of character, scholarship, leadership and potential success. No details as to the bases of selection were announced.

Mast, Saga Reps To NIPC Meet

Four journalists from PLC will attend the 1949 session of the Northwest Intercollegiate Press Conference to be held at GWCE, Ellensburg, this coming Friday and Saturday. The representatives of PLC will be Lou Inerarity and Phil Falk, Mooring Mast, and Helen Hedin and Ken Østoraali, Saga.

The conference will begin officially at 10 a.m. Friday, and will last until 5 p.m. Saturday. The delegates have been invited to attend the Saturday performance of Central's all-college play as guests of the dramatics department.

Phil Falk and Lou Inerarity have planned to depart from PLC on Thursday to accomplish some advance work at the conference headquarters prior to the convening session. PLC found it undesirable to extend an invitation to the conference to hold its 1950 session here, but there is every hope that we will be able to offer our college as host to the conference in 1951.

Lutes Shoot For Rangers Saturday

Tomorrow night at 8 PLC will entertain the St. Martin's Rangers from Lacey. Although this is a non-conference game it will be interesting as all St. Martin's games with PLC are.

PLC's starting five will be named the night of the game. Newcomers are improving at the nightly turnouts.

African Film Tonight In Student Union

The film, "I Am with You," which has an African setting, will be shown tonight in the Student Union auditorium by the Mission Society at 7:45. An offering taken will be for the Mission Society, but there will be no admission charge, Merlin Zier, club president, announced recently.

Pastor Oscar Rolander, missionary recently returned from East Africa, who spoke at the LSA Lake Samish retreat, will be the guest speaker. He will show slides illustrating his work in developing a new mission station.

Lutes Invited To Town Hall Sessions

Three Lute speech contestants will journey to Portland, Oregon, for a Monday-Tuesday series of Town Hall meetings in the Webfoot City. The meetings will be held before some fifty civic organizations on the general topic of U. S. policy toward the Orient, the talks being sponsored by the Vanport Extension Center of the University of Oregon.

Making the trip are Lou Inerarity, Donald Graham, Jon Ericson and Professor Theodore O. H. Karl. PLC did not enter the events when they were initiated last year but plans to enter them regularly from this year on. The group will leave on Sunday afternoon and return Tuesday evening.

Trophies will be awarded for first, second and third places, and for the sweepstakes which is determined by the best score any school attains through its three contestants. George Loerch from CPS won the first place trophy last year and is entered again this year.

Preps Request 2nd Congress In Spring

The student congress for high schools that PLC sponsored just prior to Thanksgiving vacation has received the praise of the coaches and students who attended. A request has been made for another session in the spring semester, and for a two-day session in the fall.

Michael O'Lane of Kent-Meridian was the winner of the first place trophy at the first PLC-sponsored congress. James Erickson of Puyallup took the second place trophy, and certificates of merit were presented to the chairman of the eight committees.

Top Missionary In Chapel Talk

By Alan Hatlen

E. Stanley Jones, famed author and Methodist missionary, addressed an overflow crowd of students and faculty members at chapel Wednesday morning in a message marked by humor but with a chief note of personal evangelism.

Dr. Jones was a missionary in India and has written several well known books, one of which has been translated into twenty languages. Two million copies of all his books have been sold. He is also a contributor to the widely read Christian Herald. "Grace, Grass, and Gumption" are the things that keep him going.

"His Tacoma appearance is part of the city evangelistic effort presently being sponsored by the Tacoma Council of Churches," announced Pastor Loyal Vickers, executive secretary of the group, in introducing the widely known missionary.

The relationship and interdependence of science, which is quantitative, physical verified truth, and religion, the qualitative aspect of life which is open-eyed faith, comprised the body of Dr. Jones' address.

The fundamental thesis of this Christian spokesman is that God's rule is totalitarian in that the whole life is demanded. Only when the whole life is surrendered is there complete freedom, he explained.

"I have not had a blue day in thirty years because I have a friend . . . My way of life works."

New Chaperon Rules Now Established

At the request of the Inter-Club Council, the Committee of Deans has drawn up the following chaperone requirements for social events.

The requirements are as follows: For a social event on campus, the club advisers; for a social event off campus, lasting not longer than ten hours with fewer than 25 students participating, two chaperones, at least one of whom is a woman; with 25 or more students participating, three or four chaperones, at least two of whom are women. For a social event off campus where a group consisting of both men and women students is spending a night away from the campus, there should be four chaperones—two women and two men.

Faculty members and their wives or husbands are eligible to serve as chaperones and are the guests of the club which invites them.

Linne to Show Film On Wash. Wildlife

The Linne Society will hold its regular meeting on Tuesday evening, December 6, at 7:30 p.m. in S-108. Entertainment will be in the form of a color movie on a phase of Washington State wildlife, provided by the State Game Department, and a lecture on bird songs by Dr. Arlton. Dr. Arlton is a well known bird authority in Parkland and PLC. He is a former member of the PLC biology staff and has written several books on birds and bird songs. His lecture will be accompanied by a demonstration of bird songs, featuring the "Arlton Bird Whistle," a mechanical gadget device (invented) by Dr. Arlton.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting.

Thanks a Million!

There have been several issues of the paper so far this year which have motivated a number of faculty and student members of the PLC family to approach yours truly with a word or two of praise concerning the Mooring Mast. These comments are always well received and of course are always appreciated, but at the same time the editor always feels a little guilt in answering with a simple "thank you."

No one knows better than the editor of this hectic but lovable little enterprise that there are many other people who should receive remarks of congratulation whenever such are warranted. A worthwhile paper is never put out by one or two people because the job is too big for that, and the people who perform the tasks necessary to good publication are the ones who deserve the credit. Their deservance far outshadows the editor's.

It is difficult for the editor to remember to pass these compliments along to all of the members of the staff, so this is the best place to forward them. Such people as Marlene Schwenke, Phil Falk, Bob "Stretch" Ferguson, Bob Brass, and the many others listed in our mast head on page two of each issue are eligible for most of the credit when a paper turns out to be better than average.

It is the editor's pleasure to take pride in the work that these people do and to strive to assist them in every way possible. The fact that they are working because of a selfless desire to do a job for their fellow students and their school is further evidence that they are a swell bunch of people. The conditions under which they work are far from the best, what with beat-up typewriters, a lot of writing, copy reading, make-up, ad chasing, mailing, telephoning and regular classes to contend with. Few of them have given up under the strain and dropped from the staff. A few more have been automatically eliminated from the staff by reason of continued and persistent adherence to a policy of violent inaction. Most of them have stuck when there is no pecuniary interest, grade credit or recognition for their labors.

These people deserve the gratitude of the students and in many cases they get it. Expressed here is the gratitude of their editor who gains most of his compensatory pleasure from working with them. When the policies of the editor have been under fire at odd times this year by non-journalistic groups, these people have been loyal to the cause beyond question. Thanks a million, the Mooring Mast can hardly help seeing some improvement as long as its future is designed by this loyal and hard-working group.—LAI.

More Could Be Told

With congratulations to the twelve seniors selected for inclusion in the 1950 edition of "Who's Who . . ." the Mooring Mast raises the question of "What did these people do to be selected?" No doubt is expressed or implied here that any of them are not worthy of the designation, but the students on campus cannot be expected to know of all of these persons' activities and accomplishments.

Many questions were raised last year as to how the selections were made and as to what the selectees did to indicate their high character, abilities of leadership and potentialities for success. When these things are not included much of the importance that should naturally accrue to the selections is lost.

These seniors, deserving of this recognition, are also entitled to have the student body know how they came to deserve the honor. Steps should be taken to make sure that this honor has meaning to the entire student body as well as to the people who are chosen.—LAI.

Organists Hear Seattle Concert

Last Wednesday evening the Organ Guild made one of its many trips, when they attended an organ concert at the University Methodist Temple in Seattle. Germani, official organist of the Vatican in Rome, presented the program and from all indications it was well received.

Mrs. Malmin, adviser, was in charge of the group and another trip to Olympia to hear the state organist is planned in the near future. This trip will be discussed Monday night at 6:30 when they hold their Christmas party.

9 Zuit!

My best girl friend and my mother, it seems, Are just like they're two of a kind. For they think I must learn (oh, their ears must be burned!) How to know how to make up my mind.

They bawl me out if I run from boys, But then if I get a bit bold, They're worried again — that I'm chasing the men. And, boy, you should hear how they scold!

I think the best thing for me to do, (I've finally reached a conclusion), Is to turn into a mole, crawl back in my hole, And live happily there in seclusion.

vention of the National Association of the Teachers of Speech at San Jose, California, on the 24, 25, and 26. They sat in on several different types of discussion panels that were concerned with various fields of speech in the teaching profession. All squad members were voluble in their praise of Dr. Basset, professor emeritus of Stanford University, over his speech at the convention banquet. Dr. Basset reviewed his experiences as the first teacher of speech (elocution) at Stanford University.

Enjoy Faust

On the evening of the 26th, the PLC group joined the other convention delegates at the San Jose State College little theater to witness a translation of Goethe's "Faust." The play itself, and particularly the stage sets, were roundly applauded by the audience. Mr. Kendall Johnson, formerly of Stanford, is well known in that area for his outstanding ability as a set designer. Nine different scenes were used in the two-hour production.

Portland U. Defeats Gladiators

Led by a trio of altitudinous backboard aces, a smooth working Portland University basketball quintet copped PLC's season opener Monday night.

Vociferous fans, crowding Memorial gymnasium to near capacity, watched the Portland outfit pull ahead early in the game and stave off repeated Gladiator scoring bids.

The Lutes took an early lead when Gene Lundgaard sneaked in a two-pointer. After Jack Winters, the rangy P. U. center, had hurriedly knotted the count, Del Schafer togged a free throw which put the Gladiators ahead for the last time. The rangy Pilots, now in control of the backboards, took leads of 6-3, 15-8, and 20-15. However, the Lutes closed the gap to 23-20 at the half.

Midway in the second period the Harshmen pulled even with the Pilots 35-35 on a long one-hander by Harry McLaughlin and a free throw by Duane Berenson. The score was tied again at 40-40 on a bucket by freshman Jack Johnson, and for the last time at 41-41 when Lundgaard dunked a foul shot.

Five consecutive points by P. U.'s Pete Petros, however, put the Pilots in the lead for good. In the last two minutes freshman Glenn Huffman hit the twine for four and Harry McLaughlin got two; but the game ended with Portland on the long end of a 53-48 score.

Gene Lundgaard and Harry McLaughlin were high point men for the evening with 13 and 12 points, respectively.

The Portland scoring was spread quite evenly. Jack Winters was high with 10.

The backboard combination of Foleen, Devich and Winters, all over 6 feet, 4 inches, gave Oregon's 1949 N.A.I.B. representatives the edge.

26 Games On The Schedule For Lute's Casaba Squad

By Jim Kerns

The student body may well wonder what our chances are in the current campaign. In an attempt to get the opinions of those who should know, several well-known "men about basketball" were consulted. All in all they seemed to think along the same lines, so for the benefit of the fans we present the opinions of the experts. Coach Marv Harshman reports: "We have the smallest team in the conference and are way behind the other clubs in training. If we are to win many ball games we must improve our shooting. Central Washington and CPS are rated the conference powerhouses but the University of British Columbia and Western Washington are greatly improved and are the dark horses in the race."

"High" Harry McLaughlin, Lute center, gave his opinion of the squad as follows: "We've got lots of all round good material this year but have not had a chance to develop it. We have had supervised turnouts for only a week and a half and the team has yet to round into shape."

Del Schafer was brief and to the point when he was asked to comment on the squad. As Del put it: "We have as good all round material as last year. We could certainly use some height although it isn't height alone that wins ball games."

The Lutes are playing a rough 26-game schedule this season. No team can win them all. It's up to the team and to you, the fans. We know our players and know what they can do. They will be out there every game doing their best and every loyal fan should be backing up the team as they battle their way along the road to the championship.

This year the All-Conference selections followed the trend of the two-rotation system. The conference mentors picked an offensive and a defensive team, thus putting twenty-two men into the twenty-three spots made available by this type of selection. The only player to make both squads was Dick Brown of CPS.

Jack Carbone was the only Lute player to receive a berth on the All-Star team. He was picked as a guard on the defensive squad, gained honorable mention for his offensive ability, was placed on the Tribune's All-American, and received honorable mention on the A.P.'s All-Coast team. Seven Glads rated honorable mention on the offensive team and three on the defensive squad. Jack Guyot, Bud Hatley, Vern Morris, Lowell Knutson, John Jurkovich, Steinar Gorud, and Carbone are the boys who got the nod in the offensive department. Defensive men were Blaine McKanna, Ray

Green, and Walt Oden. Congratulations to these men; all of them played good ball this season. Casaba Season Starts

Monday night the Lute basketball squad opened their season against Portland U. The story on that tilt will be found elsewhere on this page, but here are a few highlights of the game. Gene Lundgaard wound up as high-point man with 13 to his credit while Harry McLaughlin had a twelve count for second place. Three of Gene's tallies were technical foul shots making 100% in that department. It was a close game from start to finish, and this preview made things look a little brighter for the Harsh-men this year.

Sportsmanship?

This scribe, and several other persons, were more than slightly perturbed by the display of unsportsmanlike conduct of the rooters at the game Monday night. What would your opinion of a school be, if you were attending another school and came here to see a basketball game, and you witnessed an exhibition of "booming", such as went on last Monday? It wouldn't be good, would it? Well, that is probably the same opinion that the rooters for Portland U. took home with them. In the future, let's not show our backwardness and barbarian instincts, but let's put on a display of good sportsmanship, the likes of which has

Here's your opportunity to qualify for Aviation Cadet training. To be eligible, you must be single, between the ages of 20 and 26½, with at least two years of college and with high physical and moral qualifications.

Find out about the academic, military and flying training you'll get as an Aviation Cadet—either for pilot or navigator. If qualified, your papers will be processed so you can begin training after you finish college.

Learn about the important career opportunities open to you as an officer . . . after you have won your wings as pilot or navigator . . . and received a commission as second lieutenant in the Air Force!

...NON-FLYING CAREERS, TOO!

Never before in peacetime has there been such an opportunity for college-trained men and women to obtain commissions in the U. S. Air Force. If you are interested in a non-flying career in aviation, ask for information about Officer Candidate School.
