"The Prince Chap" Chosen as Annual Presentation to Be Put on by Graduating Class of 1929

Characters will be chosen within the next day or two for the annual senior class play to be given late in May by members of the graduating class. The committee that selected the play, is composed of Prof. Ph. E. Hauge, Miss Stixrud, and Lyell Kreidler.

The play selected, entitled "The Prince Chap," written by Edward Peple, deals with a young American artist who is pursuing his calling in London, leaving in New York, the customary girl he left behind awaiting his attainment of success and his return to her. Complications arise during which the hero, William Peyton, adopts the baby daughter of a woman who at one time had been a model. Upon her visiting London the sweetheart of the hero senses a peculiar situation exists because of the presence of his young ward. From this point on the story becomes more complicated, embracing in its plot many situations involving several very excellent character parts. The characters of Runion, a servant of the hero, Phoebe Puckers, a child of the London slums aspiring to a high life, and the three artist friends of Peyton's will furnish both interesting and amusing moments.

Those who will participate in the presentation will fill the following roles:

William Peyton, the hero: Jack Rodney (Earl of Huntington); Runion (Peyton's servant): Ballington, Fritz Yadder, artist friends of the hero: Claudia at the age of six, Claudia at the age of eight, Claudia at the age of eighteen; Alice Travers, Phoebe Puckers, Mrs. Arrington, and the Truckman.

U. of W. Hears Choir Sing at Meany Hall In Chapel Services

On Sunday evening, April 14, at six o'clock, the P. L. C. Choir sang at Meany Hall, University of Washington, at the Christian Campus Chapel Service before an audience of nearly two thousand. This is the second time in the choir's history that the singers have had the opportunity of appearing before the University students. It is not only an advertisement for the school, but an inspiration to the students.

After the chapel service the choir was entertained by the Inkwell Club of the University Lutheran church. The club president, Martha Hjermstad, a P. L. C. graduate of '26, welcomed the choir heartily. A short program was given by members of the club and also by the choir. Of the numbers furnished by the club several selections were given by an instrumental trio. Miss Hjermstad also gave a reading. The numbers given by the P. L. C. students were a vocal solo by Anna Mikkelson, several songs by the male octet and by the choir.

Refreshments were served to the choir members and other guests of the club.

The choir appeared in concert at Meridian High School, Tuesday, April 16, and at the Presbyterian church in Sumner, Friday evening, April 19. Future concert dates are not yet definite.

DRAMATIC CLUB BUYS FURNITURE FOR STAGE

Long may the girls' reception room furniture live, for now the stage in the gym is amply equipped with a brand-new outfit of its own. An overstuffedavenport and chair to match, two occasional chairs, a library table that can be adjusted as a dining-room table, a library lamp, double drapes, and rods have been bought by the Theatrical Society with the proceeds of the play "Clarencé." Since there was not enough money to pay for the furniture in full, a part payment was made, the rest to be paid next year. In addition to this the Theatrical Society hopes to be able to buy some flood lights and a new rug.

MRS. KREIDLER GETS OFFICE IN GROUP

At the meeting on April 3rd, of the Soroptimist Club, Mrs. Kreidler was elected a member of the board of directors.

Soroptimist is a selective group of women who are in administrative or executive positions. It is an international organization. Only one person in any classification is eligible in the same group, and Mrs. Kreidler as Dean of Women and Miss Stixrud as Teacher-trainer were selected to fill these classifications for the City of Tacoma and vicinity.

FAMOUS SPEAKERS TO DEBATE IN ORAL CLASS

Apparently desiring to demonstrate their oratorical and argumentative abilities, two of the boys of Mr. Hong's oral expression class, Gerhard Molden and Fred Walter, have challenged two of their classmates, Glenda Waters and Eugenia Orobey, to a debate. The question selected for debate is resolved: That all moving picture theaters, including vaudeville, opera, plays, and concerts, other than of a religious nature, shall be closed on Sunday. So far it is a deep, dark mystery as to which side the challenged shall choose to debate.

MR. CHARLES ALTFILLICH Landscape and Architectural designer who will make plans for the P. L. C. Campus and Building.

Art Play Turns Out Big Success

Art Class Members Fit Parts Well; About 15 Dollars for Suits

The two-act play, "Art Where Art Thou?" given Saturday night, April 20, in the college auditorium, was well received by a large audience. This play was put on by the college art class under the direction of Mrs. Kreidler. The proceeds from it will be applied as part payment on the new baseball suits bought recently.

All the characters were excellently fitted for their parts. One can perhaps still hear the wailing of the janitor spirits as the artistic ones came to rule in the Brown home.

The lighting effect was especially beautiful and artistic, especially so when Elna Trulson and Anna Mikkelson sang "Love's Old Sweet Song" and "Juanita." The girls were dressed in costumes of long ago. This together with the lighting made their appearance very effective.

Extra music between acts was furnished by the College orchestra, and the Men's Octette, both under the direction of Professor Edwards.

Receipts for the play were thirty-five dollars, of which everything above expenses will go towards paying for the new baseball uniforms. Although the expense has not yet been determined, about fifteen dollars profit is expected.

Graduate on Debate Team

In a non-decision debate between the Universities of Washington and Idaho, Martha Hjermstad, '28, presented the main argumentative speech for the University of Washington team.

CALENDAR

- April 24—Baseball game with C. P. S. at Tacoma, 3:30.
- April 28—Baseball game with Bellarmine at Parkland, 3:30.
- April 27—Baseball game with Centralia at Parkland, 3:30.

STUDES AND TEACHERS TAKE PART IN CARNIVAL

At the annual school fair and carnival given by the Parkland Public School Friday evening, April 12, two one-act plays were presented in which several students and faculty members took part.

"And Then the Lamp Went Out," a comedy pantomime, was cleverly worked out by Mr. Hauge, Mrs. Edwards, Miss Stixrud, and Burton Kreidler. A short scene from the play, "Art, Where Art Thou?" was given by Arnold Thostenson, Lillian Anderson, Pauline Larson, Robert Monson, and Ida Hinderlie.

And It Rained, Rained And Then Rained More

Yeah, spring has sprung, all right. It's sprung a leak. We don't know where the leak is, but that there is one sure sure, for this spring is all wet. People speak of cool, gurgling springs; now I think I know where they got the idea—probably heard and saw some girls running from the post office and getting their new polka dot dresses drenched in a sudden shower.

But we don't know what is meant by soft shoulders—Johnnie Wise wanted to know what that meant. Well, anyway, I haven't seen anything around here that looked soft, unless I should refer to some heads, and I don't want to get personal. Besides, we don't like to make room for any reflections. Soft spring! This is the hardest one we've lived through in case we do. Lessons get harder every day. Hearts, contrary to tradition, are hard, including the teachers'. We even heard one of the boys say the kicking post seat feels hard since a certain someone has refused (also contrary to tradition) to walk down there anymore. He said she said her mother said that she heard someone say that people said they said what they shouldn't say when they walked down to the Kicking Post. She told her mother they didn't say anything; then her mother said, "That's worse—people in love never say anything." I know some people that are going to find it hard to hold their tongues long enough to fall in love!

MRS. SOVIG SPEAKS AT D. O. R. MEETING

The Daughters of the Reformation were entertained at the home of Mrs. J. O. Edwards Thursday afternoon. The girls enjoyed having Mrs. Sovig of Tacoma, speak to them. She spoke very interestingly about the mission work of our church in China.

The rest of the program included a violin solo by Dagmar Hagness, accompanied by Cora Vist at the piano, a vocal solo by Elvira Hokenstad, and a piano solo by Anna Aamodt.

A business meeting was held and a self-denial offering was taken.

Tasty refreshments were served by the hostess.

REV. CHRISTENSEN TALKS AT CHAPEL EXERCISES

At chapel exercises Wednesday, April 17, Rev. M. A. Christensen, of Astoria, Oregon, spoke a few words. He said, among other things, that though we may often become discouraged and wish to get away from responsibilities, we should remember that the only thing worthwhile is to stick to our work. Instead of striking we should dedicate whatever good we have to God's service.

Famous Architect Arrives to Survey Campus at P. L. C.

Charles Altfillich Plans Future Buildings for Improving Pacific Lutheran College

Yesterday, April 23 was an important day in the history of Pacific Lutheran College, for upon this day three events took place which will determine largely the future of this institution.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees in the afternoon, the accreditation committee from the University of Washington conferred with the board members regarding the accrediting by the University of the Junior College department. The results of this meeting cannot yet be definitely stated.

The same day Charles Altfillich, the architectural engineer, who arrived here Monday morning, April 22, from Decatur, Iowa, presented in part his plans as to what the future development of the campus and school should be.

Mr. Altfillich, a member of the American Institute of Architecture, is an architectural engineer of renowned ability. He received his training at the University of Iowa, the Carnegie Institute of Technology, and in several of the larger offices of the east, specializing in institutional design. His work has been largely along these lines, perhaps the most familiar being that at Luther College, which by Dr. Tingelstad is regarded as exceedingly fine in every way. His plan of the C. K. Preus gymnasium, according to Dr. Tingelstad, is masterly from the standpoint of service, usability, acoustics, interior arrangement, and general architecture.

In the further development of the Luther Campus, Mr. Altfillich has been at work on tentative plans for a new dormitory which would house about 100 boys. This building was planned so that it would finance itself over a period of about 18 years through the income of the rooms. In connection with their campus development he has also made sketches for the official museum of the Norwegian American Historical Association, which has authorized the building to be located on the Luther College campus. In order to obtain a building which will be in harmony with the service it is to render, Mr. Altfillich contemplates a trip to Norway.

The architectural engineer will spend several days here, working on a campus survey, which has been financed by a Pacific Lutheran Academy alumnus of the class of 1900. From previous experience in work of this kind and from his study of buildings at various institutions, including Princeton University, Denison University, Concordia Seminary, and a number of smaller colleges.

Trustee Board and Committee Confer About Accreditation

On April 23 the accreditation committee of the University of Washington visited Pacific Lutheran College to consider whether the Junior College should be accredited by the University.

The members of the committee were: Dr. Benham for the English and foreign language departments; Dr. Riggs for history and allied subjects. Dr. Creer for history and economics.

This same committee, which also inspected Spokane College April 10, will visit St. Martin's College April 24.

THE DORM ORACLE

A new weekly paper, the Dorm Oracle, published and distributed by its small staff, has appeared on sale during the last month. To all appearances it is growing bigger and better with every issue, and as soon as enough money is taken in above expenses to justify it, a press for this new paper will undoubtedly be bought and installed somewhere in the building.

Whether the Mooring Mast in this weekly has found a rival, or an ally bent on developing talent for the Mooring Mast cannot yet be ascertained. We indeed hope that the latter is the case. In either event this paper, with a little more respect for the rules of grammar and news style, will undoubtedly prove a success.

SHALL WE HAVE A STANDARD RING?

At a recent student-body meeting the question of adopting a standard ring for all graduating classes was brought up. Since the students were undecided and showed little interest in the discussion, it was decided to leave the question until the seniors had received their rings in order to see if this ring should be satisfactory to all as a standard.

Although up to the present time the graduating classes in most schools have had individual rings, the time is at hand when we come to see the more liberal viewpoint of having a standard ring, with a seal that can be used as the college emblem. After all, are we getting rings so much to remember our class by, or is it the school we want to remember? Whether we belong to the same class or not, we are all classmates, graduates of the same school, and should have these rings in common.

Everyone agrees that a standard ring should be adopted. The hardest thing to decide upon is the standard. The rings chosen by the '29 Senior class are all gold, with Luther's coat of arms as the seal. There will be two sizes—girls' and boys'. The seal is very appropriate for a Lutheran school and should make a very artistic ring.

April 24, 1929

Dear Ma and Pa:
 This has been a dead week. All we had was three choir concerts, a Pep Club meeting, D. O. R. Society, a Art Play, a track meet, and a baseball game, besides the usual class meetings, baseball practice, play-practices and dress rehearsals.

The play, which was given by Mrs. Kriedler's art class, was called "Art, Where Art Thou" and I wish you could of seen it and found out where he was and also where he wasn't. Don't get the idea, however, that Art is the name of a boy, and that "Art, Where Art Thou" is a pet expression of Rammy's looking for a bashful baseball player, who did not like to play in a apron. It would be a false impression, so to speak as the B B boys has bloomed out in brand new suits and miton-smiles and the aprons has been left in the kitchen for another ten years or more.

Well, to come back to the play, there was much that could be learned from this piece of art. For instance, Dorothy Ebersole from now on denotes Royal Dignity. It is a good thing that wading in the creeks is not mentioned in the rules on Royal Dignity, as it would be awful hard for Dorothy to keep from having a little sprint in the creek about the first week in March.

Marie Gardlin was supposed to be Red in this play. However, this was not peculiar, as Red Carlson, has been beside her considerably, and I suppose she had caught the reflection.

Arnie took the part of a tired business man. I guess he thought he had been dragged through a knot-hole, and he worked like a bigger to get tired enough to look his part. Now he is having a fierce me to rest up again, as all the profs thought he had become a model example of industry, and are on the jump all the time helping him to keep him fit for his part.

Some boys in this school has started a paper which they call the "Dumb Oracle." It is a fine paper and tells all about the Market Reports and such vital things which people sends in to them. There is some awful bad grammar mistakes in it, however, and you know, Pa. If there is anything I am particular about it is grammar and spelling. So last week I takes the Oracle in my hand and busts into the Editor's office all worked up like, and says, "Where's your grammar, Zud?" "Aw, go on," he says, "She died a long time ago."

You can tell by this answer that the staff ain't very strong in English, and the trouble with the average student is that he don't know that he don't know what he ought to know.

I am glad I am not a student like this. I have found out that my resources has slowly shrank to a mere pittance, and I think I ought to let you know about it at once so that you can send me some more money.

CHEROBA

Your loving daughter,
 SPRING
 The air is spiced with sweet perfumes,
 The birds their songs let ring;
 They fill the air with joyful sounds
 Of happy, glorious spring.
 That wondrous spring at last is here
 And oh! the load it brought
 Of sunshine, flowers, and hosts of things
 Which we so long have sought.

Those dandelions and daffodils,
 That thrush's joyous lay—
 All seem to shout the glorious fact
 That spring is here to stay.

And folks forget those dreary months,
 Those days that held no cheer,
 When nature's clothes were cold and wet,
 And winter's elves were here.
 Oh! spring, thou joyous, happy time,
 Thou'st cast our gloom aside,
 And filled our hearts with joy and cheer,
 With hope, and strength, and pride.

Daily Diary

Friday, April 12

We are very much concerned over a report that reached us, stating that the "Silverton Bunch" didn't have its tri-daily giggling spell today! This indicates that something is radically wrong and requires an investigation.

Monday, April 15

There is much rejoicing among the dorm students. The evening study bell will not ring until 7:30 after this.

Tuesday, April 16

Soph: Anyone in the library? More: Just one—"Red" and Marie.

Wednesday, April 17

Judging from the response, the boys didn't seem to enjoy the concert given them by the Pep Club.

Thursday, April 18

Anyone attending the dress rehearsal of "Art Where Art Thou" will agree that it was well named.

Friday, April 19

It seems that Miss Myhre had a rather hard time establishing the fact that she is a member of the faculty.

Saturday, April 20

Mrs. Kriedler has a very original method of making actors remember their parts. After a threat of a "D" in Art if any blunders were made, nobody in the play needed prompting.

Sunday, April 21

Tennis and swimming were the predominating sports of the day. Peggie Harvey and Agnes Klippen claim the title for being the first students to go swimming in Lake Spanaway.

Monday, April 22

We are pleased to have our architect with us, and hope that his trip brings results.

"Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean; wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow."

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord. Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool."

At the present time we have a beautiful background, the snow covered ground, for these two verses, the one from the fifty-first Psalm and the other from the first chapter of Isaiah. There is nothing purer than snow as it comes down, and there are few things dirtier than snow churned up by human traffic.

Since sin came into the world, the earth, not man, has been cursed. Man was pure in the beginning, but now he has become defiled and has defiled all else. But we read that only the pure in heart can see God. Nothing filthy can come to him. Since our soul is a part of God himself, we belong to him and are His helpers, which is a great honor bestowed upon us. But first, we ourselves must be saved, washed in his blood. As snow is the symbol of purity, let us keep ourselves pure.

This means that the entire arrangement is worked out with regard to the needs of future years. "Architctural beauty," said Mr. Altfilisch, "results from the planning of the whole rather than planning buildings separately." With this in mind plans for Pacific Lutheran College through the next twenty-five years will be made; not only will the type of architecture be decided, but also the kind and classification of buildings to be constructed as the school grows will be considered. Herman James Holtz, 25, a senior at the University of Minnesota Medical school was married to Miss Irene Blanche Leson, February, 23. The bride is a graduate nurse from Northwestern University.

Let me but do my work from day to day in field or forest, at the desk or loom; In roaring market place or tranquil room.

Let me but find it in my heart to say When vagrant wishes beckon me astray, 'This is my work, my blessing, not my doom. Of all who live, I am the one by whom This work can best be done. And in the right way."

SMILE.—SMILE!
Nothing on earth can smile but man! —Gems may flash reflected light, but what is a diamond-flash compared to an eye-flash and a mirth-flash? Flowers cannot smile; this is a charm that even they cannot claim. It is the prerogative of man; it is the color which love wears, and cheerfulness and joy—these three, it is a light in the windows of the faces, but which the heart signifies it is at home and waiting. A face that cannot smile is like a bud that cannot blossom and dries up on the stalk. Laughter is day, and sobriety is night, and a smile is the twilight that hovers gently between both—more bracing than either.
—Henry Ward Beecher.

"Peter, Peter, we've been thinkin'—I hope we have!
Who would possibly have thought it I'd like to know!
One of our most highly esteemed seniors, too.

Oh dear me! An' what may our dear school be comin' to?

What's that? Oh, you wants know what were becomin'?

Excuse me, please! I was a thinkin' that you'd surely comprehended what our tribulations concern.

Well, anyway, it's just this—now hold on, everyone, because it's sure to be a check if you don't already know.

Whv, sure, it's the biggest scandal we've had for years and years.

Now do you know? Oh me, Oh my! If this ain't the dumbest bunch I've ever seen!

Well, to be brief, a certain pin was found a short time ago in the girl's dorm!

Now, ain't that the limit? We wouldn't have been so surprised if it had been, say Red's or Carl's, or lots of others—but gracious! The initials on it were "P. P." and he had to admit it was his!

Well, Pete, my lad, I'm thinkin' that had it been I, the pin would have gone unclaimed, for, methinks, it's better to have dignity—whatever the cost.

IT ISN'T THE WORLD—ITS YOU
You say the world is gloomy?
The skies are grim and gray,
The night has lost its quiet—
You fear the coming day?
The world is what you make it—
"The sky is gray or blue
Just as your soul may paint it
It isn't the world, it's you!"

Clear up the clouded vision,
Clean out the foggy mind;
The clouds are always passing,
And each is silver lined—
The world is what you make it—
Then make it bright and true,
And when you say its gloomy,
It isn't the world, it's you!

Lutheran Friends Promise Help For Development Plan

As a result of the work of Dr. Tingelstad and Rev. Bogstad, new members have been added to the Pacific Lutheran College Development Association. Dr. Tingelstad presented the association plan to Rev. Rastad's congregation in Tacoma on April 14, and the same day Rev. Bogstad presented the plan to Rev. Hendriksen's congregation in Seattle.

Encouraging results have come from the east. Dr. Boe, president of St. Olaf College, wrote an encouraging letter and sent his second contribution to the development. Dr. J. A. Aasgaard, president of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, also wrote an encouraging letter and joined the association. One pastor in Iowa voluntarily promised to get 100 new members.

Also, as a result of Dr. Tingelstad's sending the February issue of the Bulletin to the pastors of the Norwegian Lutheran Church, these pastors either joined themselves or sent names of members of their congregation.

As a result of the work of the association, Charles Alfthiltsen, an architect from the East, will come on April 22 to survey the College campus. He was the architect who drew up the plans for the C. K. Preus gymnasium at Luther College, a building which is considered the most beautiful of its kind in the Mississippi valley.

Definite plans have been laid as to the work of the Development Association in the future. On April 21 Dr. Tingelstad is to present the plan to the congregations in Raymond and South Bend, and the following Sunday to the congregations near Stanwood. On April 21 Mr. Hauge will present the Development Plan to Rev. Haavik's congregations in Everett.

Mooryad Swen

We're making our bow again to society after a sojourn to the South Sea Islands during the rainy weather. All polite people should make a return sign of recognition.

Do you know what we know? That's what we don't know it.

The prospective teachers are still prospective, judges from the remarks that are slung around the day room.

A green and yellow mystery has been mystifying the mystery-loving youngsters the last couple of days. Said puzzle is a beautiful bouquet of daffodils, set on a shelf with a background of evergreens. Thank you, gracious donator.

And then came the rain along with a grand rush for cover. Tennis seems to be thriving by spurts.

Just six more weeks Yipp!! Hooray! and other exclaimations of joy. Good by and Adios.

Agreeableness

The first thing you want to do when preparing for a motor trip is to take a cert in motto, polish it up a little, and put it right where you can find it when you need it. Not when you want it, but when you need it! because you'll need it lots of times when you don't want it. That motto is: "Be Agreeable!" Agreeableness is one of the most valuable virtues you can have. Take this quality with you, and you'll be in demand, for people everywhere are looking for the agreeable person. But if you do not intend taking it with you, you had better stay at home.

Now, when you have this packed away, you can b k out your twelve-cylinder omnibus, get set, and weigh anchor.

Are you now under way, getting a bright and early start, while the neighbors are still in bed, before the milkman arrives with the monthly bill, and there is no traffic, so that you can "step on it" and see if she will make that fifty miles an hour as easily as the salesman said she would. (She, of course, refers to that mass of machinery in which you have invested more than you should). She does, and it is easy to be agreeable when things are going smoothly. But then you want to look for the unexpected, for that is really what you travel for, and whatever happens, make a joke out of it, and "be agreeable!"

Suppose the carburetor gets out of kilter and fails to suskatehitate, or the kooljigger in the tingsamabob fails to catch on the hicky in the whelshamaccallit, or the gas has too much water in it, so that spontaneous combustion is impossible, or something goes wrong, so that you have to stay over night in the fast village of Brookdale, when you wanted to reach a certain staid metropolis only a short distance farther, why, "laugh, clown, laugh!" Not so that you look, as though it hurt your school-girl complexion, but let it come naturally, and it will be a wonderful asset to you when you try to sell too thin, less cabs, rubber tacks, or a new paint for taxicabs. That's it! "Be agreeable!"

Do this. Then no matter what happens, or if something in that spoorun of parts you have under the hood fails to happen, you'll have a hilarious time, and be of more value to the party than your consumptive twelve-lunger that is delinquent in more ways than one.

The one and only panacea to take along on a motor trip is the motto: "Be agreeable!"

Wonderful Speaker Discovered in Class

Members of Professor Hong's Oral Expression class were very much surprised to discover that they had as famous a person in their midst as the Honorable Lady Aamodt, senator of Oregon. With her wonderful speaking ability, she held the class spellbound. Such talent cannot be left obscured a day longer, so Lady Aamodt and Miss Bolstad's speeches will be quoted.

"Ladies and Gentlemen: I am surely happy to introduce the next speaker on our program, namely the Honorable Lady Aamodt of Oregon, Lady Aamodt has attained world wide distinction as "The Efficiency Senator of the West." She will speak to us this afternoon on "Putting Efficiency into Practice at the Capitol." Lady Aamodt has taken the initiative in eight long needed reforms, two of which I shall briefly state to you. The first is that of eliminating smoking in the capitol by placing all the capsidors on the front steps and requiring all the senators to throw their cigars and cigarettes into them before entering the building. The second is that reform in which the Senators are required to wear bedroom slippers in their offices at the capitol, in order to save the furniture from being scratched when they put their feet on the tables. This saves many gallons of varnish every year, yet, who but Lady Aamodt would have thought of such a simple remedy? I take great pleasure in presenting to you Lady Aamodt, Efficiency Senator of the West."

Your chairman, Miss Bolstad, was quite right in saying that I was putting forth my utmost efforts to put efficiency into practice at the capitol. These two reforms were the most difficult to put through, and I would never have succeeded had it not been for my marvelous ability as an orator. For I speak with the eloquence of Cicero and the forcefulness of Caesar, which I learned in Professor Hong's Oral Expression class many years ago at P. L. C. I will tell you of a few reforms on which I am diligently working and which I will soon present to Congress. The first of these was brought to my attention by the public sentiment regarding the number of hours a day spent by the Senators at their work. I have devised a plan by which the Senators will walk backwards when leaving their offices at the usual early hour, so that it will appear to the public that they are just arriving after lunch or after doing some errand. The second is the proposal that the Speaker who has the floor talks barely above a whisper and after his speech utters off the platform in order not to awaken the sleeping Senators. The last reform about which I will tell you today is the movement to equip all the Senators with roller skates so that they can move about the halls more easily and quickly, thereby saving much time going up to make their speeches. This will eliminate the use of the stairway completely, and will necessitate inclines which will be covered with noise preventives. These are the reforms which will soon be brought before Congress and which I feel confident will be passed. I, hope to have another chance to speak to you again on my work at the capitol."
