

Queen Clintena Starts '58 Homecoming Reign

Clintena Wells was chosen 1958 Homecoming Queen by the PLC student body in yesterday's election. Royal attendants to Queen Clintena are Princess Barbara Johnson and Princess Marilee Andersen. Handsome Harry, also chosen this week, is Paul Templin.

Queen Clintena, from Anacortes, Wash., is a junior majoring in secondary education. Radio and television appearances to publicize PLC Homecoming are on Queen Clintena's schedule next week.

She will be crowned next Friday at 8 p.m. in the CMS Auditorium by Thor Tollefson, U. S. Congressman, to officially start 1958 Homecoming activities.

Also highlighting Friday will be the judging of campus decorations, pep rally, and mixer. The traditional bonfire pep rally is scheduled for 9 p.m. on the athletic field. The new song and cheer leaders will be on hand to promote school spirit. A mixer held in the gym, promising entertainment, refreshments, and fun for all, will top off the evening's activities.

This year's Powder Puff football game, between upperclass women and freshmen, will be broadcast over a public address system. Programs will be available, giving the starting line-up, jersey numbers and other vital information. "Handsome Harry" will be officially crowned following the game. A "tug of war" between freshman boys and sophomore boys will climax the morning's agenda.

Open house in all dormitories is scheduled between 2 and 5 p.m. Saturday. At 5:30 p.m. the annual alumni dinner will be served in the CUB dining hall. Students will participate in a picnic dinner that evening to be held on lower campus or CB-200. Sack lunches will be distributed during the noon meal.

"The Imaginary Invalid," a satirical farce-comedy on doctors of the 17th Century, is the Homecoming play to be presented Saturday evening in the CMS auditorium.

"It's the type of show where the actors have as much fun as the audience," says Robert Fleming, the play's director.

Cast for the play includes Herb Dempsey, the invalid; Solveig Leraas, Foinette the maid; Sonja Philp, the shrewish wife Beline; and Sylvia Sodergaard, the daughter Angeliqne.

The rest of the cast includes Fred Bindel, Mickey Anderson, Zane Wilson, Larry Iverson, Bob Olson, Art Ellikson, Orville Jacobson, and Sam Struthers. Lyle Pearson is assistant director and the various committee heads include Lynn Dam, Dan Triolo, Mavis Everette, Jane Ross, and Glenn Arne. Mr. Eric Nordholm of the PLC speech department is in charge of sets.

Homecoming worship service will be held by the student congregation Sunday, Oct. 26, at 11 a.m. in the CMS auditorium. Music will be provided by the student congregation choir and the Choir of the West.

Coffee hours for alumni are: Friday (after the Coronation) in South Hall, Saturday (following Powder Puff game) in CUB student lounge, and Saturday evening in the CUB dining hall.

Help is still needed by the half-time committee chairman, Clintina Wells; decoration chairman, Jerry Erickson; and mixer chairman, Barbara Johnson. Decoration chairmen should note the deadline for turning in campus themes is today.

2 Hygiene Talks Left in Series

This year the Student Health Service is sponsoring an extended series of hygiene lectures. The series is required for all freshmen and other new students.

The remaining lectures are listed below: October 23, Dr. M. Stuen, "Mental Hygiene"; November 6, Dr. P. Van Arsdel, "The Hygiene of the Respiratory System."

The speakers for the series are specialists. Most of them are medical practitioners and are members of the faculty of the University of Washington School of Medicine.

While the lectures are required for all freshmen and other new students, all students are invited to attend.

Spurs Sponsor Mums Today, Movies Tonight

Spurs' activities for the next week include a double feature tonight, selling Mums for Homecoming and pom poms for the Homecoming game.

The movies are "Prince and the Pirates," starring Barbara Rush and John Derek, and "Yankee Pasha," with Jeff Chandler, Mamie Van Doren and Rhonda Fleming. Tickets for these technicolor features are 50 cents a couple or 35 cents stagg. Starting time is 7:30 in the CBS, so "come early and avoid the line." Ice cold punch will be sold at five cents a cup.

Mums are being sold for $1.25 in the CUB during lunch and dinner today and Monday through Saturday next week.

The flowers will be delivered to the girls' dormitories Saturday, October 25, in time for the Homecoming game. Cards for the sender's name and any endearments will be included in the box. "Mum's the word," says chairman Sharon Julian.

The Spurs will also be selling pom poms for the Homecoming game beginning Monday, October 20, for 25 cents. These "symbols of school spirit" will be sold in the CUB at mealtime, they announced.

Campus Additions Ready January 1

Expansion is the key word about PLC at the present time. Evergreen Court, a new men's dormitory, was completed this fall and work on additions to the Science Hall and the College Union Building is scheduled for completion January 1.

The two additions now being built are a part of the PLC Development Fund drive. This fund raising drive has been concentrated in the Tacoma-Pierce County area and among the PLC alumni. The goal of the Development Fund is one million dollars. Pledges and contributions now total $760,000.

"We are still pursuing our million-dollar goal and hope that we can reach it by the first of the year. Our main problem is time. Usually a project of this type takes two years or more, but we are trying to complete it in one year," stated Mr. Cecil Vance, assistant to the president and head of the Development Fund drive.

Upon completion of the drive for PLC expansion funds, the biggest step in the building program will start. The Tacoma-Pierce Memorial Hall, center for business administration, economics and education departments as well as faculty and college administration offices, will be constructed where the business administration buildings are now located.

Evergreen Court, which is not a part of the Development Fund program, is an "H" shaped, one-story residence hall built at a cost of $45,000. It is located on lower campus at 127th and Yakima. The Rev. C. K. Malmin is the housefather in the new dorm that houses 69 Lutes.

The 3-story addition to the Science Hall will give added classrooms, laboratories, library rooms and offices. Total cost of the building is $175,000, of which $28,000 is for new science equipment.

A third serving line and seating space for an additional 400 persons in the dining hall will be the main results of the added wing to the CUB. Thus, all the members of the boarding club will be able to attend all-school banquets at the same time.

Campus groups will be allowed to use a small service kitchen in the new "pagoda" roofed CUB annex.

PLC Site of Deans Of Women Confab

Deans of Women from all over Washington will congregate on campus tomorrow for their annual fall conference. Miss Wickstrom, convention chairman, estimates that 60 to 90 will attend.

Various speakers will elaborate on the convention theme, "Eternal Verities in a Changing World." Of special interest will be a panel consisting of two students each from PLC, CPS, U.W., and Lincoln and Stadium high schools. Carolee Chindgren and Jay Troasdale will represent PLC.

Coffee will be served from 10:45 to 11:00 a.m. in CB-200 and again between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. in South Hall lounge. The women will lunch in the coffee shop and attend an evening banquet at Lakewood Terrace.

Some students from Washington may have their own high school counselors here. If they would like to see them, they may drop by the coffee shop at noon or look for them during the coffee hours.

Library Adds Study Room

Ever wonder if there's any activity on campus while you're gone for the summer? Ask a librarian.

First of all, books were kept in circulation from June to September by 500 students in each of two summer school semesters, not to mention the 13 conventions with their 2500 participants.

But that's not all. As you may have noticed, the Congressional Records (nearly complete from 1789 to date) have been moved into L-104 for the convenience of the history department. The second level of the stacks, where these books were, has been converted. The addition of $3,000 worth of new furniture has helped to transform this into a group study area for those who can't stop talking. This room will soon house the math and physical science books.

The staff also bound and covered more than 300 more volumes of magazines, bringing the library's total to 3500. About the same number have been screw bound. Many gaps in periodical holdings have been filled, too.

Hundreds of books have been added to the general collection, including several on the subject of gifted children.

The work was under the direction of Miss Almyra Baker and Mrs. Mary Malinowski. Student assistants from the Parkland area were Marilyn Markert, Linda Engvall, Peter Jordahl, and Bob Olsen. Other workers were Twila Springer and Audrey Hart, who just didn't bother to leave the college.

'58 Homecoming Revised

Changes in Homecoming planning and alumni organization indicate that 1958 Homecoming could be outstanding for PLC.

First of all, Homecoming will receive greater publicity this year. Announcement of the Queen one week earlier than previous years will produce more extensive radio, television and newspaper coverage. Televising the Homecoming game and the half-time festivities is also a 1958 innovation.

Elimination of the parade, which was costly in time, money and effort and relatively ineffective, will allow greater concentration on campus decorations. Prizes for the outstanding decorations will also add incentive.

Even the theme of Homecoming, "The Spirit of the West," should provide extraordinary latitude for creativity by the decoration committees, the drill team and the band.

But the biggest change revolves around the alumni, the honored guests at Homecoming. Loosely knit in the past, the alumni are now better organized after being contacted by the Development Fund workers, according to Mrs. A. W. Ramsjad, executive secretary of the alumni association. Many of the alumni have gained greater understanding of and appreciation for the growth and progress of PLC. Because of the Development Fund work, better records of the alumni are now available.

A new magazine for the alumni, published for the first time last week, is another step toward solidarity among the graduates of PLC.

Thus, through the diligent efforts of the students, interest of the alumni, perseverance of the football team and cooperation from Old Sol, 1958 Homecoming could be the best yet.

Nonconformity at PLC?

"Whoso be a man be a nonconformist," is a Ralph Waldo Emerson epigram stressing the need for individuality in America.

Colleges especially are noted for their rebels. Some collegians express their individuality via unusual clothes, cars or other material symbols. But these pseudo-individuals hardly fit Emerson's invocation.

Other college students try to show individuality through expression of sensational ideas. These radicals have an obsession about controversy. To them any polemic discussion has great intrinsic value. No urgent need exists for this superficial nonconformity, either.

True nonconformity is illustrated by the intellectual rebels who constructively question, criticize, search and evaluate the world around them. While seeking the truth they are aware of their own shortcomings and willingly consider the ideas of others. This type of rebel dismays many college instructors, who prefer more docile students. But these nonconformists delight the instructors who see a college education as a springboard to life-long learning.

PLC, as most colleges, is well-supplied with individuals of the first two categories. But when compared to other colleges, PLC seems to face a serious shortage of intellectual nonconformists. For instance, one yardstick for comparison is the campus magazine. This medium for student expression is absent from the PLC scene. Another outlet for student ideas, letters to the editor and articles in the Mooring Mast, is neglected.

Does this mean that PLC students are content, complacent conformists?

—DICK LONDGREN

Coffee Shop Windows Foil Oglers

A coffee shop on a college campus can serve many purposes, only one of which is eating or drinking.

Our coffee shop has served as study hall during basketball games, as a Carnegie Hall for PLC jam-sessions and as the place for an inexpensive date.

During off periods the coffee shop is largely occupied by the male Lutes. They are generally busy peering through the foggy windows, while they drink their coffee, at a late model automobile, or better still, at a late model coed.

But some architect long ago, obviously unaware of the future frustrations to ogling PLC men, constructed an obstacle to vision exactly at eye level. This misplaced horizontal window frame evokes "Where is she? I can't see her!" and a, "Too late, buddy-boy, she's gone now," type of conversation.

To the eternal regret of those who persistently champion the cause, no enterprising collegian has yet formed a working crew, complete with saws, hammers, pneumatic drills, and bolos to remove this disgusting obstacle.

PLC Physics Department Adds Morning TV Classes

"Just to watch TV I'm getting up at 6:30 every morning," is a typical muttering of a sleepy PLC physics major.

TV has invaded the PLC curriculum, and the new program is "Physics for the Atomic Age."

This educational program is on KOMO-TV (channel 4) from 6:30 to 7:00 every morning, Monday through Friday. It is designed specifically as a review type of course for those who have had a year of college physics. However, anyone having the requisite mathematical background, high school algebra and geometry, may benefit from the course.

It is set up with the high school physics teacher particularly in mind, and presents the subject with emphasis on new developments and approaches, to bring the teacher more up-to-date and enable him to present a course with more bearing on modern times.

"Physics for the Atomic Age" is divided into two parts. The first part is a review of general physics, as previously mentioned. The second part will cover the field of modern physics. The latter part covers the rapid growth of physics since the beginning of the century, starting with the discovery of the electron, and continuing through electronics and atomic and nuclear physics. The two parts correspond approximately to the first and second semesters of our school year.

This course is being offered for credit at many colleges, including PLC, and started Monday, October 6. Credit registration has been closed; however, audit registration is still open. A three-hour discussion, question, and test session is held every Thursday evening for those who are registered, either for credit or audit.

Outlines for the first forty lectures are available free in the bookstore, and the complete outline for the year and the syllabus for the first 80 lectures (first semester) are available at the bookstore for 50 cents.

Huxley Satirizes English Society

By Barbara Jackson

Come with me into a land of intrigue, romance, and scandal; and you will be in the middle of English society as Aldous Huxley saw it in "Point Counter Point."

It's almost impossible to keep the characters straight, as the complexity of the plot with its myriad of people making guest appearances throughout the book demonstrates aptly the intricacies of high society.

One can hardly pick out one main character. Walter Bidlake, living with his mistress only from a sense of responsibility, passionately loves Lucy Tantamount, a vivacious debutante who delights in leading men astray. As a contrast to all this hypocrisy and infidelity, we find the sincere and deep love of Mary and Mark Rampion, who live completely for each other.

The dialogue in "Point Counter Point," intellectual, satiric and disillusioned, is quite thought provoking and makes us re-evaluate our own lives. Are values absolute or are they merely relative according to the situation?

For an insight into the social and ethical problems of the day woven into a dramatic and provocative plot, you won't want to miss reading "Point Counter Point," one of Huxley's finest novels.

U. S. Foreign Policy Irks South Americans

By Juracy Carlton Minchin

(Editor's Note: Juracy is a PLC student from Sao Paulo, Brazil. Last summer he came to PLC after attending the Lutheran Bible Institute, Minneapolis, Minn., for a year. He has been previously on a newspaper staff at a Brazil college).

I'm sure that many Americans, reading the headlines about the anti-Nixon riots in South America last May, began to wonder, "How can they do this to us?" What is wrong with them? Aren't we the best, most wonderful and most humble people in the world?"

I will try to isolate a few points that seem to hinder the relations between the United States and some South American countries.

First, nationalism is strong in South America. For years politicians have sought success by criticizing "those who are selling our country to the American imperialists." Criticism of American oil companies in South America was considered a quick route to the presidency. This idea of "American imperialism," also exploited by the Communists, is so impressed upon the people that every action by the United States is viewed as a threat to independence.

Foreign aid is another point of misunderstanding. Every year the United States gives away millions of dollars through the Foreign Aid Program—and wonders why the world doesn't love them for this benevolence. The nationalist leaders, however, maintain that the United States takes millions from South America. Attempts to buy friends, they say, only aggravates the insult.

One of the most disliked traits of the United States is what we of Brazil call American "moody friendliness." This ranges from a personal friendship to foreign relations. South Americans don't like the coincidence of these friendly moods coming almost always when the United States is in danger of losing its oil wells in the Middle East . . .

Who is wrong? Both are, and both must be willing to change. Less pride from one side and more understanding from the other would eliminate misunderstanding among nations of the Western hemisphere.

Fortunately, in spite of these differences and misunderstandings, we "Americans" (may I take back the term stolen by our brothers from the United States?) have something great in common: our battle for the defense of the West and the values it represents.

Fleming sez:

By Bob Fleming

Heigh ho and away we go on another chapter in the lives and loves of Stuporman. . . . SCOOP: ARSON ON CAMPUS—What well known man about campus set fire to the pool last week? . . . "I can whip any man working for me," boasted the foreman. "You can't whip me," said one husky lad. The foreman looked him over carefully. "You're fired."

Is it true that in the upper class mathematics courses they don't even mention common fractions? . . . I just invented something that's gonna revolutionize the hi-fidelity business—a record player with bobby pins instead of a needle—for playing longhair music.

Whatever became of Sonny Tufts? . . . FROM MY HISTORY NOTEBOOK: The Romans had to give up the Coliseum. The lions were eating up all the prophets. . . . You'll have to excuse some of the gags this week. I'm not feeling well. Two days ago I was run over by Prof. Karl's MG.

I can't stress the importance of a college education enough. Just think, when you get out you'll be the only one in your neighborhood who can fill out your unemployment form in Latin! . . . Something I can't figure out. People are really strange! If you tell a man that there are 279 trillion stars in the milky way, he will believe you, but if you post a sign that says "wet paint" he'll stick his finger in it every time.

He: "Darling, I've lost all my money. I haven't a cent in the world." She: "That won't make any difference, dear. I'll love you just as much, even if I don't see you again." . . . New way to park foreign sports cars—wear them on the end of your key chain.

Lutes Face Ramblers At Renton Saturday

Still looking for their first win of the year on the gridiron, Pacific Lutheran's Gladiators travel to Renton tomorrow night to face a real strong Seattle Rambler squad. The game will be held in Renton's high school stadium and will start at 8 o'clock. PLC students will be admitted free if they show their student body card at the student entrance.

Last week the Lutherans fell before Pacific University, 14-6, in Lincoln Bowl.

The Ramblers are an independent amateur team of former college stars, Armed Forces gridders, and men who play because they love the game.

Their coach is Don Sprinkle, a detective in Seattle, who is a graduate of the College of Puget Sound.

The Ramblers hold wins over two Evergreen Conference teams this year, beating CPS 27-7 and the University of British Columbia 27-25.

Last week PLC scored first against Pacific University when halfback George Fisher went over from the three yard line in the first quarter.

Pacific came right back in the second quarter, however, to score and their try for point kick was good. P.U. led at half time, 7-6.

One more touchdown and an extra point in the third quarter gave the Badgers their 14-6 victory.

A week from Saturday will be Homecoming for the Gladiators and their opponent will be a strong Western Washington College team.

TOUCHDOWN PLC as George Fisher, Lute halfback drives into the end zone from three yards out for Pacific Lutheran's only touchdown of the night. Other Gladiators in the picture are: 81, Dave Bottemiller, and 71, Al Brockel. This score came early in the first quarter after PLC drove from their own 44 yard line in 11 plays. Tomorrow the gridders travel to Renton to meet the strong Seattle Ramblers. Game time is eight p.m.

Tom Gibbs Takes Over Total Offense Lead; Jacobson 2nd

Freshman quarterback Tom Gibbs moved into the top spot in total offense for the Gladiator gridders this week by rushing and passing for a total of 131 yards last Saturday against Pacific University's Badgers.

Last week's leader, John Jacobson, carried the ball only once from his new position at fullback and slipped to second place in total offense.

Speedy halfback John Mitchell still leads the Lutes in rushing with a total of 70 yards in 22 carries for an average of 3.2 per try.

Pacific Lutheran's big end, Chuck Curtis, has a spectacular pass receiving average of 29.3 yards per catch. He has pulled in seven tosses for a total of 184 yards. All of these came during the Lutes' past two games. He came down with four at Cheney two weeks ago and three the other night in Lincoln Bowl.

Freshman end, Dave Bottemiller, leads in passes caught with eight. All of Bottemiller's catches have come during the last two games also.

The only department that PLC as a team leads their opponents is in passing yardage. The Glads have a total of 380 yards through the air to their opponents' 329.

Powder Puffers Ready for Tilt

One of the special features of homecoming will be the Powder Puff football game between the freshmen and upperclassmen girls. The game will be held a week from Saturday at 10 a.m. on the lower field.

The confident upperclassmen expect to win by at least nine touchdowns. Gordie Gradwahl, Chuck Myklebust and Art Munson are the coaches and Cammy Emerson is the captain. They have practiced three times a week for a month and claim to have mastered over fifteen plays.

The Freshmen are ably coached by Bob Roiko, Jack Lensing and Jim VonSchriltz. Barb Aust and Pat Ladd are co-captains.

Dominated by the Upperclass, the Freshman have not won since 1954.

STICKY FINGERED END Chuck Curtis hauls in another Lutheran pass last Saturday night in Lincoln Bowl when the Glads dropped a 14-6 grid contest to Pacific University. Curtis caught two others during the game and totaled 75 yards with the catches. Trying hard to knock the ball down is Pacific's Frank Imbrie.

Hap-hazarding

by Eugene Hapala

CHUCK CURTIS proved to local fans last week that he isn't playing football on his basketball reputation. Chuck's spectacular jumping catches of the pigskin aerials thrown by freshman quarterback TOM GIBBS had the Pacific Lutheran College fans on their feet on several occasions last week.

Curtis is definitely the most versatile athlete to come to PLC since the TOMMERVIK-HARSHMAN era. Besides being one of the leading hoopsters in the Pacific Northwest and playing on the gridiron, Curtis does an outstanding job on the baseball field. Chuck led the Lute baseball team last spring in the pitching department with a 1.96 earned run average, 34 strikeouts, and a powerful .353 batting average.

Chuck has also proved his prowess in track during the intramural meets, and could definitely be a threat in the high jump if he turns out next spring. LUTES TO DROP FIFTH STRAIGHT

Nothing but hard knocks appear in store for our Lute gridders when they take on the powerful independent Seattle Ramblers in Renton tomorrow night. Look for the Lutes to fall by a 28 to 0 score.

Oregon's Ducks will throw up a tight defense and outscore the air-minded Washington State Cougars 21 to 6, and Washington's Huskies will disappoint a large homecoming crowd by losing 15 to 14 to UCLA.

The College of Puget Sound Loggers travel to Eastern Washington to take on the Whitworth Pirates. CPS should roll to a 20 to 14 win.

PLC Concert Chorus

PLC's Concert Chorus has elected officers for the 1958-59 season. They are Clare Ledum, president; Bob Erickson, vice president; Sylvia Fylling, secretary-treasurer; Anita Gregersen and Betty Muscus, librarians; Dave Gaenicke, ICC representative; and Neal Stixrud, publicity chairman.

This group is under the direction of Mr. Frederick L. Newnham, who is temporarily relieving part of Dr. R. Byard Fritts' busy schedule. Several performances are already scheduled, including the traditional Christmas concert in conjunction with the Choir of the West and the orchestra.

Alpha Phi Omega

This evening the annual Alpha Phi Omega (APO) pledge party will be held at Camp Kilworth. The party, to be held from 7 to 11 p.m., is strictly a date affair. During the evening's pledging ceremony approximately ten new members will be taken into the fraternity. (After this initial ceremony the pledging initiation will continue for one month). The remainder of the evening will be spent playing games, eating and singing.

Chairmen for this affair are Dave Christian and Bill Newcomer, preparation of Camp Kilworth; Sig Larson, games; Bob Olson, pledging; and Don Schultze, refreshments.

Greek Club

Greek club members, parish workers and others interested in church work are invited to the annual get-acquainted party sponsored by the Greek club.

The party will be held Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Friendship Room of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Men do not have to be members of the Greek club to attend. All guests are welcome. Entertainment and lunch will be provided.

Student Congregation Gets Second Pastor

The Rev. John Larsgaard of Bellevue has accepted the call to serve as pastor of the student congregation, it was announced by Dr. Philip E. Hauge, PLC dean.

Rev. Larsgaard, who will assume his new post in January, succeeds the Rev. Robert W. Lutnes who left October 1.

Rev. Larsgaard is a graduate of PLC and Luther Seminary. He has served parishes in Conway, Wash., and Ventura, Calif.

He was a chaplain in the U. S. Army from 1953-57 and part of that time he served at Fort Lewis.

Two former PLC teammates are now each other's rivals. TOMMY GILMER at Franklin Pierce High School is the assistant football coach for the Cardinals while RON McALLISTER is an assistant grid mentor at Renton High School. McAllister drew first blood last week as the Renton Indians defeated the Cardinals 19 to 12. Both Gilmer and McAllister are 1958 grads.

Recreation Program Scheduled for Gym

A co-recreational program for all students will open its second year at PLC this evening in the gymnasium. Every Friday and Saturday night, except during Homecoming or when the gym is in use for another function, the facilities will be available to both men and women students between 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Members of the physical education department are organizing this program.

This Saturday the Social Committee of the Inter-Club Council will present a specially organized evening of activity. The members of this committee are Karen Knutson, Barbara Johnson, Mavis Everett, Kathy Knutson, Jerry Erickson and Bob Erickson.

Any club or organization which is interested in being responsible for an evening's recreational program is invited to speak to Jay Tronsdale, ICC president.
