Warfield To Appear In Concert

William Warfield, one of America's most distinguished vocalists for the past two decades, will appear in concert at Pacific Lutheran University Monday evening, Nov. 18.

The world-renowned baritone will feature the works of Brahms and Tschaikowsky in the second of five PLU Student Artist Series presentations. The two-hour program will be held in Eastvold Chapel, beginning at 8:15 p.m.

Warfield, who travels the world extensively, has been hailed everywhere he sings. So great has been his impact upon audiences that the State Department has on six separate occasions requested his services as a cultural ambassador of the United States.

Born in Arkansas the eldest of five sons, Warfield was propelled into the front rank of concert artists with his New York recital debut in Town Hall in 1950. Every season since then he has filled a heavily booked schedule of recital and orchestral engagements from coast to coast in North America as well as all the other continents when time allows.

An experienced and gifted actor prior to his formal concert debut in New York,

Warfield enjoyed his greatest success in the theater shortly after he had attained fame as a musical artist. This was in the role of the indomitable cripple of Catfish Row in George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess". Porgy and the Gershwin opera have become indelibly associated with the name of William Warfield in the legitimate theater. The most memorable and successful run of the Gershwin masterpiece was undertaken in 1952 primarily because Warfield consented to portray the title role.

It was so successful in the preliminary performances that the State Department dispatched the production to Europe before it reached Broadway, and Warfield made history as one of America's most impressive cultural exports.

New York finally had the opportunity to see Warfield's "Porgy" when it was revived for a limited time at the New York City Center in 1961 and again in the spring of 1964 in honor of the World's Fair.

Warfield's recordings, whether solo or with orchestra, have been top best sellers. An indication of his popularity and recognition as a great oratorio soloists is the fact that he has recorded Handel's "Messiah" with both the New York Philharmonic under Bernstein and the Philadelphia Orchestra under Ormandy, as well as Mozart's "Requiem" with the New York Philharmonic under the late Bruno Walter.

According to critics, Warfield's performances are set apart because he combines musical insights and dramatic communication. According to the Baltimore Morning Sun, all of his presentations "reveal exquisite taste and sensitive perception."

The Artist Series programs are sponsored by the students of PLU. Tickets are on sale at the Eastvold Auditorium box office from noon to 5 p.m. weekdays.

'Tartuffe' Production A Biting Satire

It's a farce that addresses the Puritan . . . it's biting satire. . . it's an indictment against false piety and pomposity. . .

It's "Tartuffe" by the Shakespeare of the 17th Century French theater, Moliere. It's Pacific Lutheran University's all-school fall play, scheduled for a three-day run Nov. 21-23, beginning at 8:15 p. m. each evening.

The production is directed by Richard Arnold, a dramatist and teacher who arrived at PLU this fall. He has acted and directed in network television and radio productions and at one time conducted his own professional theater company in New England.

Tartuffe will be portrayed by Tom Helgeson, a psychology major from Burnsville, Minn. The character Tartuffe is a fraud, according to Arnold, masquerading as a saint and working his way into the graces of a very affluent family to a point where he inherits the entire estate.

The hypocrite has set himself up as the Puritan conscience of the family headed by Orgon. Orgon is played by John Elmer, a music major from Spokane.

But that's not the end.

"Tartuffe" has been banned. . . it has been called blasphemous. . . it also has been called Moliere's greatest play.

Other members of the cast include Elmire, the wife, played by Phyllis Booth; Dorine, the gadfly maid of Orgon's daughter, portrayed by Claudia Dermiel; Mme Parnelle, Elisabeth Sommars; Damis, played by Scott Green; Mariane, Lynn Gerry; Cleante, Phil Sommars; Flipote, Diane Klotz; Valere, Steve Randoz; Loyale, Jim Pederson; the officer, Kirby Underdahl; and the first sergeant, Jim Dunn.

An unusual "set within a set" has been created by Prof. Eric Nordholm to give the effect of the 17th Century stage where Moliere's plays were first performed.

Assisting Arnold is Karen Krebbs, a senior drama major from Spokane.

Tickets are on sale at the Eastvold Auditorium box office, 12 noon to 5 p. m. weekdays.

University Chorale Schedules Two Concerts

The Music Department of Pacific Lutheran University will present the University Chorale, under the direction of David Urness, in two concerts Sunday, Nov. 24.

The first concert will be given at 3 p. m. at Trinity Lutheran Church in Tacoma (across from the PLU campus) and the second concert will be at the University Methodist Temple, 43rd St. N. E. and 15th Ave. in Seattle (across from the University of Washington campus), the same evening.

Appearing with the 45-voice select choir will be a chamber orchestra consisting of members of the Pacific Lutheran Symphony. They will be heard with the Chorale in performances of the "Bach Cantata #196, The Lord Smile On You," and "Missa Brevis in F Major K. 192" for soloists, chorus and orchestra by W. A. Mozart.

In addition to these two major works, the Chorale will present a group of Renaissance motets by Palestrina, Thomas Morley and Jan Sweelinck. The final work of the concert will be the "Lamentations of Jeremiah" by the contemporary Argentinian composer Alberto Ginastera.

Urness, who heads the Sacred Music program at Pacific Lutheran, is serving his second year as conductor of the University Chorale. This performance marks the first major concert of the 1968-69 season for the choral group, re-organized by Urness last year, an outgrowth of the former Chapel Choir and University Chorus.

The public is cordially invited to these concerts. A free-will offering will be received.

Petrulis, Marra Present Joint Faculty Recital

Cellist Lou Petrulis and mezzo-soprano Karen Marra will perform in Jacob Samuelson Auditorium; the joint faculty recital begins at 8:15 p.m. tonight (Fri.).

They will be accompanied by Calvin Knapp and Kathryn Strickland, pianists.

The recital will feature "Ah, Belinda, I am Prest With Torment," from Dido and Aeneas, and "Hermit Songs" by Samuel Barber. The Hermit Songs are settings of anonymous Irish texts of the Eighth to 13th centuries written by monks and scholars, types perhaps not always meant to be seen by their Father Superiors.

Also on the program are selections from Sonata Opus 119 by Sergei Prokofieff and Sonata No. 1 for Viola da Gamba and Cembalo by Bach.

Mrs. Petrulis, who teaches cello at PLU and strings in University Place Schools, is well-known for her recital appearances, both in the Tacoma area and the midwest. She has had orchestral, ensemble and solo concert appearance in Washington, Oregon, California, Wisconsin and Maryland. She is a graduate of the Lawrence College in Wisconsin and the Eastman School of Music.

Karen Marra, a graduate of the University of Idaho and University of Washington, joined the PLU music faculty last year. She has toured with the University of Washington Festival Opera in Mozart's "Cosi San Tutte" among her numerous solo appearances.

The concert is sponsored by the PLU School of Music.

FAMILY CONCERT

ATTRITION SETS IN AS PLU CAGERS DRILL

Attrition has begun to set in at Pacific Lutheran University basketball turnouts.

Coach Gene Lundgaard last week trimmed his squad to 28 as he prepares for his 11th season at the Knights' helm. PLU will begin play against Central Washington in Ellensburg Dec. 2.

The top 16 as sorted out last week by Lundgaard are seniors Rick Ancheta, Ron Groth, Tom Meeks and Bruce Shamp, juniors Al Kollar, Kevin Miller, Doug Nixon, Leroy Sinnes and Ralph Whitman, sophomores John Rankin, Bruce Reichert, Mike Goin, John Krummel, Bob Dickson and John Olson and Ake Palm, the big Swede.

Lundgaard most likely will find it impossible this season to work with anything less than a first 10. Al Kollar, 6-5 junior from Franklin Pierce, was the regular at center last season and Leroy Sinnes, 6-4 junior from Port Angeles, was a No. 1 forward.

But Ancheta, Miller, Meeks and Shamp often got starting assignments, and the addition of the likes of Palm and Whitman give promise of more depth than ever.

Knights Extend Win Streak To 3

Pacific Lutheran University's Knights savored their third straight victory Saturday, a magnificent team effort that resulted in a come-from-behind 39-17 win over the Whitman Missionaries.

Inspired by the second and third effort running of the Hurricane Twins, Dave Halstead and Gary Hammer, the Knights produced four second half touchdowns and a safety to rebound from a 17-12 halftime deficit.

The two sophomore halfbacks contributed 256 yards rushing to a final team total of 330 yards. They scored all but one of the 37 offensive points; Halstead tying Northwest Conference records for points and touchdowns (30 pts., 5 TD's) and breaking both school records, set by Marvelous Marv Harshman in 1941 (25 pts., 4 TD's).

Halstead's 142 yard total gives him 665 for the season, 30 yards short of John Fromm's 1955 record with one game to play. He still leads the NWC in rushing.

Hammer added 114 yards, which will probably return him to second place in the conference with 550 yards.

In spite of the H&H heroics, this was a superb team effort, according to Coach Roy Carlson. "They were all magnificent, especially the second half. Downfield blocking was tremendous."

The defensive effort effectively stopped the Missionaries' high-powered passing attack, as the line threw Whitman quarterbacks for 67 yards in losses and the secondary picked off five passes.

The Knights face the roughest challenge of the season this coming Saturday at Willamette, the undefeated conference champions. But no one is writing this one off after the Lute performances the past three weeks.

Whitman jumped off to a quick 7-0 lead Saturday after a 59 yard burst by halfback

Following the Whitman game Saturday there were high spirits . . . Two happy warriors - Duane Oyler and Dave Halstead.

Malcolm McPhee to the Lute 10-yard line. They scored in four plays, with McPhee scoring from the three.

The Knights took the kickoff and marched 68 yards in 10 plays to score but Hammer missed the point and the quarter ended with Whitman ahead 7-6. Eighteen and 11-yard runs by Halstead and an 18-yard burst by Hammer were the big plays in the drive.

John Adkison put the Missionaries ahead 10-6 with a 27-yard field goal at the midway point in the second quarter. In the final minutes the two teams traded long aerial touchdowns; PLU took a brief lead on a 42-yard flare pass from Bob Lovell to Halstead, followed by an Eric Johnson to Bob Coon scoring pass that covered 48 yards. Whitman led at intermission 17-12.

PLU's offense started to roll with 4:30 left in the third period. Jack Irion recovered a Missionary fumble and Hammer scooted for a 30-yard TD on the first play. The Lutes led 18-17.

On the first play of the final quarter Halstead went over from the two after a 10-play, 58-yard drive. He repeated the performance twice more in the period on two and three-yard plunges. The Lutes sandwiched a safety in between, with Fred Moe, Fred Minch and Bill Tye dropping Whitman's Chris Cave in the end zone.

Defensive stalwarts for PLU Saturday were linebackers Fred Moe and Fred Minch and halfback Doug Jansen. Moe and Minch were in on 11 and 10 tackles respectively, and Jansen had five tackles, a fumble recovery and two pass interceptions to his credit.

Coach Carlson had a really tough decision to make in naming Lineman and Back of the Week Saturday. He finally settled on Ross Boice as his top lineman; the rugged sophomore from Custer was in on eight tackles on defense and played a top-notch offensive game. Halstead earned Back of the Week honors.

After allowing eight completions in 13 attempts in the first half for 151 yards, the PLU secondary tightened, allowing only one completion and intercepting three as the Missionaries went to the air six times. Jansen, Tim Chandler, Neil Bryant and Jack Irion all picked off aerials during the game.

Advantages Offered BB Season Ticket Holders

A special parking area and reserved seating with backrests in the new Clifford O. Olson Physical Education Auditorium Building are two additional advantages offered this year to basketball season ticket holders.

The tickets are on sale now at the Business Office in the Administration Building. Each ticket guarantees reserve seating at 12 home games, five of them in the new gym, for $20. Students get free admission but may purchase the season tickets if they so desire at a reduced price.

Athletic director Dr. David Olson expects a sizeable increase in season ticket sales over last year due to the added advantages.

Referring to the parking area near the gym, he pointed out that only season ticket holders could use the space, but due to limitations, the spaces themselves would be on a first come, first serve basis.
