ORIGINAL JAZZ ARTISTS
TO PERFORM APRIL 16

Jazz was born only a short half century ago, but it has circled the world. New Orleans was the birthplace of jazz and the people who created it are still playing there in Preservation Hall.

This Friday, April 16, the Preservation Hall Jazz Band is making its only Northwest appearance at Pacific Lutheran University. The performance, to be held in Olson Auditorium at 8:15 p.m., is sponsored by Tacoma Allied Arts and PLU.

Now in their 60's, 70's and 80's, the jazz pioneers in the Preservation Hall Jazz Band are still playing their music with all the vitality and joy they gave it when it was being born in New Orleans.

Preservation Hall was originally a place where these original musicians could get together and play, mostly for their own pleasure. Now it is a place where people from all over the world pack the benches each night to hear the music as it was played when it was created. It is also a place from which traveling bands tour the world with their unique brand of music.

There are labels. You can call it Blues, and be right, Ragtime and be right sometimes. You can hear the marches of funeral parades and of John Phillip Sousa. New Orleans Jazz is not slick and arranged on paper to be played the same each time. It is not Dixieland and it is not the vaudeville and night club brand of vaudeville music. It is not straw hats and funny jackets and cheap tricks.

When you finally reach New Orleans Music, you find men playing a tradition, still reaching into a deep well of creative genius to improvise. The trumpet plays the melody, the clarinet plays the counter melody, the trombone plays the harmony, the piano plays the chords on which it is all based, and the rhythm section keeps everyone inside the limits of tempo. Then suddenly the melody moves to a different instrument and that player improvises and changes everything.

Whatever New Orleans Jazz is, it will be on stage here. The audience will hear something that has never been heard before and will never be heard again, just as the audience on the next night will hear a unique concert.

Tickets for the Preservation Hall concert are available at the University Center.

ARTIST SERIES PRESENTS
PHILADELPHIA STRING
QUARTET APRIL 15

The Philadelphia String Quartet, former members of the Philadelphia Orchestra dubbed "The Magnificent Four", will appear in concert at Pacific Lutheran University Thursday, April 15.

Sponsored by the PLU Artist Series, the concert will be held in Eastvold Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

Long known and highly respected in the United States, the Quartet has won fame in the international world as well. It first appeared in Europe in 1964. As a result of the tremendous critical acclaim received on this tour, the U.S. State Department was prompted to sponsor the Quartet for succeeding tours to Europe, South America and India. In Buenos Aires the artists enjoyed an audience of 4,000 persons, 1,000 of them standees.

These artists, who have performed over 80 works, have a formidable list of firsts to their credit. They were the first quartet-in-residence at the University of Pennsylvania and the Philadelphia Museum of Art; the first to perform all the Schoenberg quartets in a series in New York City; the first quartet sent to India by the State Department; and now have a unique appointment as quartet-in-residence to the State Colleges and Universities of Washington. They are the only major musical group to be sponsored cooperatively by a group of affiliated educational institutions.

Tickets for the concert are available at the University Center Information Desk or at the door.

WOOD SCULPTURE EXHIBIT
OPENS AT PLU

"Man-Tree", a collection of roughly-hewn wood sculptures and assemblages by Vancouver, B.C. artist George Sawchuck, is on exhibit through April at the Gallery, Mortvedt Library, Pacific Lutheran University.

Some 20 objects are on display with an additional two dozen works illustrated by large mat photographs. The work reflects Sawchuck's ambivalent attitude toward the effects of man's handiwork upon nature.

A relative newcomer to the acknowledged art scene, Sawchuck has experimented with random creations for years in his various jobs and on camping trips. An admitted vagabond of 41, he has settled down with a family only in the past six years.

Before then he was, among many occupations, a merchant seaman, railroad worker, hard rock miner, and construction worker. He recently lost a leg as the delayed result of an industrial accident.

Sawchuck's talents have developed and been made public as the result of association with Iain Baxter, the versatile artist-businessman president of N.E. Thing Company of Vancouver. Baxter recently became Sawchuck's next door neighbor.

The Mortvedt Library is open from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m. weekdays and from 2-11 p.m. Sundays.

APRIL 10

The Lutes pulled off a grand slammer in the last go-round Friday to defeat Lewis & Clark 78-62 at Spanaway. With a narrow 69-62 lead going into the final event--the discus--PLU made a clean sweep of the saucer throw. Steve Harshman led the way with a 144'5" toss followed by Dan Pritchard and Stan Pietras.

Glen Higgins was again a double winner, turning in a 9.9 hundred and sprinting the 220 in 22.3. Other individual standouts included John Oberg, who won the 440 intermediate hurdles with a 56.1 clocking, and Neil Martin with a 1.59.7 time.
