Organ Dedication

If any man can prove that the organ is the king of all instruments, certainly Virgil Fox can. Last Wednesday in the Chapel Auditorium he drew from the great Casavant Organ an outstanding array of tone colors, subtle nuances, and vibrant climaxes that kept a sell-out audience enthralled for well over two hours.

Fox showed his superb musicianship in the opening work--Concert in F Major by Handel. There was power, but there was no blast; there were velvety hushed passages, but there was no melodram atic contrast. Bach's "Come Sweet Death" was stirring in its expres siveness. Seldom is Bach played with such colorful vigor and style as was heard in the monumental F Major Toccata, in which Fox demonstrated his complete mastery of the use of the pedals.

Friday, April 17, 1953 Rev. Olson Completes Talk On Prejudice

Dear Lutes:

Time ran out on me in Chapel a few mornings ago when I gave that talk on prejudices and so I didn't have an opportunity to read these lines entitled "Clearance Sale." Looking at them again after Chapel, the thought struck me that the thoughts expressed in them were just too good to just file, so here they are for whatever they are worth. It strikes me that if everyone of us would really ponder them a bit and then put the pondering into action, life here at PLC, which is very good indeed, would be much better still! What do you think? Cordially,

Roy E. Olson

Glad About Town

The Adelphian Concert Choir of the College of Puget Sound enter tained an enthusiastic audience in a very informal concert at CPS's Jones Hall Auditorium last Friday, April 10. The Adelphians have recently returned from a two-week tour, and this was their last home appearance for the year.

Three soloists shared the program with the choir. Two were dents: Ardys Reed, a capable vio linist, and Katheryne Standifer a soprana who possesses a lustrous voice, but whose singing, though dmirable secure, lacked animation Miss Margaret Myles of the CPS music faculty displayed a contraite voice of ngul crimes and gon-uine interpretive ability, particularly in her tone coloring in De bussy's "Beau Soir."

A varied program of sacred songs spirituals, sea chanties, and novelty numbers, was sung by the thirty Adelphians, who appeared in tuxedoes and white formals. Director Bruce Rodgers drew a well-balance ed, bright tone from his group, but the higher potentialities of a small choir — true precision, beautiful pianissimo, near-perfect blendwere not often approached. The sacred songs received rather superficial interpretation; occasionally through oddly inappropriate dynamics. However, the enthusiasm of the singers made for good listening in the lighter songs, some of which included clapping and pantomine. On the whole, it was a fine, successful evening of entertain-

THE MOORING MAST

TopMan the Totem Pole

Last Saturday, the 11th, saw more than the Daffodil Parade rain, although the dampening quality of the latter mentioned obscured most of the happenings. The other event to which we make mention was the running of the three and a quarter-mile marathon face in Tacoma. Although the roses (or daffodils as the case may be) went to the brothers Rader of Lincoln High, Tacoma and Washington State College, more than the thorns can be claimed by a Lute, one Ted Siek by name as he placed third in a field of thirteen. When one considers that these same brothers are two of the best in the state, the sun comes out in Parkland.

Tomorrow, if the same sun shines; will see the Lute thin-clads in their initial offing of the season at CPS. Of course Saturday is the sutpority but Oliver Magnuson, letterman, should take the discus-throw and place well in the shot-put with newcomer Dave England. Ole has been getting the elseus out around 130 feet and both he and England have been dropping the shot about 40 feet. Ted Siek figures to win the mile and two-mile events and may possibly even run the 880. Dick Brown and Stan Jacobson will prove strong in the half mile—possibly turning in times of 2:10, that should be good enough to win. Over all, the meet should be extremely close with a slight edge going to the Loggers.

By the way, you golfers and those of you who aren't, had better get that eye sharpened up. We have it that the Lettermen's Club is about ready to spring its annual Hole in one contest. In this event even the most amature is on an even basis with the best. Big prizes, so we hear,

Possibly the heavies work on the program was the Sonata on the Ninety-fourth Psalm by Reubke, which was played with great feeling but which seemed not to be as much a vehicle for expression for Virgil Fox as had been the Bach and Handel. The less towering numbers were played with finished shading and penetration; often the listeners deemed it too mundane to clap their hands and hence remained silent in awesome appreciation.

As the audience joined the organist in closing the program with the singing of "The Church's One Foundation", one could not help but feel that a portion of humanity, led by a scintallating genius, was offering in praise of God an example of the high achievement of which is it
